Dear Parishioners:

We celebrate our national holiday of the Fourth of July as we mark our independence from the British Imperial Empire. It is customarily a day for all Americans to joyfully celebrate with family and friends. Typically there are picnics and cookouts, trips to the beach, and in the night, beautiful displays of fireworks.

Sadly our celebration is very muted this year due to several factors. First, we are still amid the COVID 19 Pandemic. The restrictions on our gatherings and activities have limited our celebrations.

In many places, parades and fireworks are called off. Families cannot travel, and the number of people allowed to gather at festivities is limited. This situation certainly dampens the spirit of celebration, usually associated with Independence Day.

Our world continues to deal with this plague of the Coronavirus, and we continue to pray for it to end. Many still suffer from the virus, and many are even dying from it. Perhaps then our celebrations should be a bit muted and restrained this year.

I believe this holiday is overshadowed this year not only by the pandemic but by the great spirit of unrest and unease across our nation. In the last weeks, we’ve witnessed the tragic death of George Floyd in Minneapolis. With this terrible event, we began to see peaceful protests that turned into violent and destructive riots very quickly.

Over the last weeks, heated discussions about racism, inequality, poverty, and injustice have filled our nation. The proper role of the police and the justice system has been attacked and questioned.

We’ve also seen statues toppled and destroyed. Historical figures like Christopher Columbus, George Washington, and Abraham Lincoln, once esteemed and revered for their accomplishments and leadership, face new scrutiny and ridicule.

As I reflect upon what has taken place over the last month, it gives me great pause and at times real sadness. Vitriolic attacks and rash judgments now replace all thoughtful debate and civil discourse. Many in our nation are tragically growing intolerant of any rational disagreement or reasoned dialogue.

It is helpful to pray in times such as these. We must turn to the Lord in prayer in times of trouble and seek his guidance. It is also vital that all of us, no matter our personal opinion, carefully and prayerfully reflect upon the current situation of our nation as Catholic disciples.

I recently reread the U.S. Bishop's 1979 Letter on Racism. It reminds us to work to combat the evil of racism. They state: "To the extent that racial bias affects our personal attitudes and judgments, to the extent that we allow another's race to influence our relationship and limit our openness, - to that extent we are called to conversion and renewal in love and justice."

We must pray in solidarity for all those hurt and pained by racism. We must also work for the conversion from this grave sin of racism in our lives, community and nation.

I also pray for the police. Theirs is a difficult job, that is now more challenging in light of recent events. The vast majority of police officers are honest and decent people. Are reforms needed? I'm sure there are some required; what institution doesn’t need to reevaluate and reform itself.

However, some of the attacks on police and the call to defund the police are callous and reckless. As a Police Chaplain, I know many officers personally. They are kind, hard-working, and just men and women. I am proud to know them.

Over eighty years ago, my late Grandfather, Providence Police Patrolman Michael Devlin, was killed in the line of duty. Much has changed for the better in our nation since his death. Sadly some things have not changed. Racism hatred, inequality, and injustice remain. So do poverty, ignorance, violence, and crime.

However, we know that even in the face of sin and evil, virtuous men and women always arise to do good. God guides us to be His instruments of faith, hope, and charity in a world in great need of these virtues. Love and truth unite. Sin and evil divide. Pray that our nation might unite in love and truth. Happy Independence Day! God Bless America! Stay safe. Be Well. Do Good! God Bless. Our Lady of Mercy, pray for us!

What is Iconoclasm?

Iconoclasm pops up throughout history in many different forms. Well before our current iconoclasm involving the removal of statues and the multiplicity of pronouns, in the 8th and 9th centuries the Eastern part of the Catholic Church experienced its own iconoclasm. Iconoclasm, properly speaking, is a heresy that rejects as superstition the use of religious images and advocates their destruction. Generally speaking, the term may also refer to the destruction of images, music, literature, and culture deemed offensive or “sacrilegious.” In the 8th and 9th centuries, Iconoclasm began with the order of the Eastern Roman Emperor. Images, statues, and shrines were destroyed. Monasteries were destroyed, monks put to death, tortured, or banished. At the Second Council of Nicaea, the council fathers declared that images may be lawfully displayed and venerated. The respect shown to them is really given to the person they represent rather than the object itself.

Iconoclasts in various forms and degrees would appear in subsequent years (notably with the Protestant Reformation). The greatest proof against the Iconoclast heresy is the Incarnation itself. As at the beginning of Creation, God’s taking to Himself human nature, declares thecreated world “good.”

Every heresy begins with good intentions. Iconoclasm intends to combat idolatry. Unfortunately, the logic of iconoclasm begins with an implicit denial of the goodness of some part of creation or the material world. Such logic may lead to the denial of many important parts of the faith such as the intercession of the saints, the importance of prayer, the necessity of the sacraments, and the reality of the Incarnation. Iconoclasm is a dangerous heresy because, as history shows, it quickly becomes destructive. In 1821 the German poet, Heinrich Heine wrote: “Where they burn books, they will, in the end, burn people too.” George Orwell’s 1984 dystopia paints a more dire picture: “Every record has been destroyed or falsified, every book rewritten, every picture has been repainted, every statue and street building has been renamed, every date has been altered. And the process is continuing day by day and minute by minute. History has stopped. Nothing exists except an endless present in which the Party is always right.” Iconoclasm rears its head throughout history and with each appearance we remember the words in the book of Genesis: “God looked at everything he had made, and found it very good.”
Our Lady of Mercy Parish invites you to join our active Prayer Chain. The power of pray is tremendous and many successful results have been reported back. Anyone wishing to join the Prayer Chain as a caller, or simply as one who prays for others and their intentions, please call Mary Hart at 884-5629 or email directly at 2hart@cox.net. If you know someone in need of prayers due to illness, infirmity, surgery, hospitalization or any serious reason please call us!

The power of prayer at work!
HAPPY INDEPENDENCE DAY

Happy the nation whose God is the Lord, the people chosen as his very own.
