

The Labour Campaign for Electoral Reform [LCER] is a Labour-based organisation which has worked over years to show that our antiquated first past the post voting system distorts our democracy, encourages an adversarial political culture and divides us, north-south, urban-rural, rather than building consensus and cooperation.

Since the 2010 General Election we have worked across the Labour spectrum on democratic reform to show the effects of reducing the number of MPs from 650 to 600, basing the size of constituencies on registered voters rather than population; ensuring that, should there be any replacement House of Lords, that it reflects the diversity of our Society; showing that the West Lothian Question would be less important with voting systems which reflect the votes cast; building arguments which connect our constitution with outcome in bread 'n butter, real life outcomes.

We welcome requests for speakers, members & supporters (£10 yearly, £5 unwaged)
