How to Contribute to Exhibitionist

We welcome unsolicited contributions to Exhibitionist from all interested in museum exhibitions.

Please contact the new editor, Ellen Snyder-Grenier, at esnydergrenier@yahoo.com to discuss your ideas for articles or exhibition critiques. We accept only electronic submissions, as double spaced Word documents. We use the formatting and reference style of the American Psychological Association. The articles in this issue provide examples for citation and reference formats.

Due to space limitations we cannot accept all materials submitted. Each article is reviewed by the editor and by several members of the editorial board. We will notify you, usually within a matter of weeks, of acceptance or non-acceptance, and will then send further information regarding deadlines, style, and image requirements.

Exhibitionist is published by the National Association for Museum Exhibition (NAME), a Professional Network of the American Alliance of Museums. NAME enhances the cultural landscape by advancing the value and relevance of exhibitions through dialogue among individuals, museum leaders, and the public. NAME promotes excellence and best practices; identifies trends and recent innovations; provides access to resources; promotes professional development; and cultivates leadership. Opinions expressed in Exhibitionist are those of the authors, and may not represent the policies of NAME and/or the Alliance.

Contribute to Future Issues of Exhibitionist

Topic for Spring 2015 The nimble and responsive exhibition

Future topics under consideration include: New intersections between exhibitions and education; The role of collections in the digital age; Universal design and exhibitions; and Word power: writing in exhibitions.