Meet Our New Executive Director Asa Deane
Asa will join the Friends of the Forest team beginning in April, and we couldn’t be more excited to introduce him to our members and community.

Asa grew up in Calaveras County of Central California, a place famous for big trees and jumping frogs. Situated directly between Yosemite National Park and Lake Tahoe, this setting provided endless opportunity to explore the natural world and Asa spent his youth adventuring in the Sierra Nevada Mountains via foot, ski, and bicycle. Weekends were spent camping, and skiing, summers backpacking and floating down the Stanislaus River. These experiences sparked Asa’s passion for environmental conservation. Through his time spent outdoors, it became clear to him that in order to want to protect something, you have to feel connected to it; an insight that would drive his personal and professional life.

In high school, Asa spent a week as a cabin counselor for an outdoor science camp called Exploring New Horizons. Here he discovered the world of outdoor education and the profound impact that it can have on children. As they were guided through the forest by their professional naturalist, Asa was introduced to the idea of bringing people closer to nature as a job. His love for the outdoors, desire to work with children, and mission to help protect the natural world had all come together in one unified career path.

For college, Asa traded in the Giant Sequoias of his childhood home for their taller, slightly less massive cousins, the Coastal Redwoods. The University of California Santa Cruz is renowned for its natural environment and outdoor recreation potential and Asa wasted no time in exploring the Santa Cruz Mountains. He majored in Earth Science; inspired both by the massive granite rocks of his home and by the multitude of hours that geology students got to spend working in the field.

After graduating in 2008 he spent two months camping outside of Bishop, CA, climbing boulders and swimming in rivers in the California desert of the Eastern Sierra. Inspired by his time as a counselor in high school, Asa pursued environmental education as a career and began an internship with San Mateo Outdoor Education. After a year of learning to teach science and stewardship through connection with the natural world, Asa became a naturalist at the same science camp where he had been a counselor in high school, Exploring New Horizons. After three years, Asa made the transition from Naturalist to Program Director and continued the work of inspiring and empowering students from the administrative and team leader side of the organization. In his five years as Director, he helped provide outdoor experiences for over ten thousand students from across Central California.

Seeking the next step in their careers and excited for a change in location, Asa and his wife Jenna moved to Bellingham, Washington where Jenna had gone to college at Western Washington University years before. Asa became the Program Manager at Wild Whatcom, an outdoor education non-profit based out of Bellingham whose mission is not only education but mentorship of its participants in an outdoor setting. Wild Whatcom continued to foster his growth as a leader and helped him to learn about the Pacific Northwest’s natural world as well as the people that make the region such a special place. Now, having accepted the Executive Director position at Friends of the Forest, Asa is ready to jump in and get to work.

From Asa:
“I could not be more excited to work with Friends of the Forest, both the organization, as well as the people that utilize the incredible resource that is the ACFL. My first time hiking in this forest, along the Heart Lake trail, I was amazed that such a place existed within the city limits and how lucky the people of Anacortes were to have it. As I learned more about the story of the land, this solidified my feeling that this was the work that I was meant to be doing and the organization that I was meant to work with. I hope to help Friends of the Forest protect and utilize this beautiful forest for years to come through the combination of outreach, education, and stewardship - the very three things I feel are most important in successful land conservation.”
The parade of wildflowers begins with the announcement from the master of ceremonies: spring gold in time with field chickweed, skunk cabbage, woodland star flower, and camas, among many more. For novice wildflower enthusiasts, it can be an overwhelming struggle to flip through field guides, hoping to come across a photo of the flower name they seek. If you are just starting out, here are a few tips that can help build your base of knowledge and excitement about getting to know our precious natural heritage.

TIPS:
- Choose sunny facing slopes just after a rain for sun loving delicate beauties.
- Don’t forget to look up and in the shadows! Our shrubby plants like salmonberry and ocean spray and other shade loving plants like Fairy Slipper Orchids and Star Lily are blooming in the forest too.
- Become familiar with just one or two species at a time to build a solid foundation.
- Bring along a concise photographic field guide or a friend who knows about flowers!
- Check out https://www.wildflower.org/plants/ for an interactive guide that lets you search by bloom color and time, light requirement, and region among others.
- Join our wildflower hikes in May for a closer look at our fragile rocky bald meadow wildflowers.

We have a wonderful season of wildflowers that peaks from April to July, so there’s plenty of time to take in many hikes and note the changes throughout the season! We hope that your growing appreciation of the wildflowers will encourage you to preserve them for future generations. Resist that innate urge to pick them and please stay on the trails. We might not be cognizant of it, but wildflowers support entire ecosystems for pollinators and small animals on a micro scale. Some of the tiny pollinators are not very mobile and have very small home ranges that may only span one or two wildflowers! The best way to enjoy wildflowers is from the trails with a camera in hand to capture those most wonderful celebrations of spring!

Congratulations to Jonn Lunsford, Anacortes’ new Parks and Recreation Director!

“I am excited to serve as the new Parks and Recreation Director for the City of Anacortes. I have the good fortune of working with a talented and experienced staff that operate and maintain the parks, forest lands and public spaces throughout our community. Parks and Recreation, The Friends, and the Skagit Land Trust have a long history of cooperating to conserve the Forest Lands and most recently adding 60 acres of forest to the ACFL near Heart Lake and Mt. Erie. This partnership is a great platform to build off as we work to balance the conservation and recreation needs of Anacortes in the years ahead.

I grew up in Anacortes, only moving away to attend college and graduate school. My mom’s side of the family were commercial fishermen, and I worked on boats in Puget Sound and Alaska to help put myself through school. Growing up and working here I learned to appreciate the fragile beauty of our island home and its long history of conservation dating back generations. I look forward to working with The Friends to continue that tradition.” –Jonn Lunsford

The Friends of the Forest has received a very generous donation from the Britten Family Trust. The late James (Jim) and Gyvonne Britten [pictured] were California natives, but found a second home here in the Pacific Northwest. After the couple both retired from their careers as aeronautical and aerospace engineers, they developed a strong connection to the San Juan Island area and bought a home in Anacortes, Washington. Susan Hoston, their niece, described her aunt and uncle by saying, “Their generous and giving nature extended beyond the family to many others.” Aside from Jim’s love of trains and Gyvonne’s passion for art, they were both avid philanthropists who cared deeply about conserving land. The Brittens were also supporters of the San Juan Preservation Trust. We greatly appreciate their donation and commitment to our mission of conservation, preservation, and stewardship of the forest land.

The Friends of the Forest Board Meetings are at 7pm the second Wednesday of each month. We meet in the Depot Building, located at 611 R Avenue, Anacortes. Meetings are open to the public. Please come and get involved.
SPOT A CRIME IN ACTION: DIAL 911

By: Ranger Dave

We have the great fortune to have wonderful trail users and forest visitors enjoy our beautiful Anacortes Community Forest Lands. Many folks take great pride in this local treasure and consider themselves stewards of the ACFL, helping to clean up trash along the trail, report downed trees and other maintenance issues to ACFL Staff, and also help to report crimes that sometimes occur out on the trails and at the lakes. Some “crimes” may appear minor like motorcycle riders using the trails during the winter closure, or someone picking bags of Salal or fiddleheads. Other crimes may seem more justified to let someone know, like underage drinking or tree cutting. Whatever the offense may be, it is important to let someone know while the activity is occurring if possible, so authorities and staff can respond promptly. It is recommended to dial 911 or the Skagit Dispatch non-emergency number 428-3211 as soon as you can. This way, we may be able to catch the person(s) and stop the crime.

Some crimes warrant a citation or arrest, while others may be given a “no trespass” order, which prevents them from entering the ACFL for a determined amount of time. Others may simply be given an education on our rules and policies. Each situation is decided individually based on the circumstances, and is up to the officer or staff who responded. The important thing to remember is if you let authorities know an offensive is occurring during the crime, you increase the likelihood of the suspects getting caught. I appreciate getting calls and emails of what you observe, and please keep sending them to me, but sometimes it’s after work hours or on my days off so I may not be able to respond right away.

If you dial 911, you increase getting a quicker response. And remember to get as much information as possible, like trail numbers, license plates, clothing, color and model of vehicle, and a description of the person(s). We recently were able to catch someone committing a crime due to a good physical description of the person and vehicle that was near by the crime location. WHEN IN DOUBT, DIAL 911.
