

The Grind Podcast

Episode 6 – Honesty in Interviews

Launch Date: 11/16/2017

Episode Description: Job interviews can be gnarly. They give employers an opportunity to determine whether you are the right fit for the company and you a chance to share about your experiences and skillsets. In this episode, The Grind will explore how to balance being honest, while still framing yourself in a positive light in job interviews.

Subscribe and Connect with Us:

Episode Length: 25 minutes

Activity Length: 35 minutes

On The Grind: How would you answer interview questions that would test your honesty?

- Go this website and look up questions for your target industry:
- Pick out 2-3 questions (or write your own variations) that would test your honesty?
- Bullet out honest responses and ask yourself:
 - Does your answer still frame you in a positive light?
 - Are you being true to yourself and what your skillsets are?

Reflect: What's your take on the question for this episode: Is it better to be honest or try to sell yourself in job interviews?

Connect: Ask questions and post feedback about this episode here: The Grind Podcast

Resources: Check out these resources to go along with the episode:

- Common interview questions: How to Answer the 31 Most Common Interview Questions
- This article: How Honest Should You Be in Job Interviews?

About the Student:

Youcef Bennour

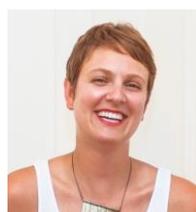

Youcef is a computer science student at the University of Washington – Tacoma campus and trying to break into the tech industry. He is a Washington State Opportunity Scholar and president of the Muslim Student Association.

About the Experts:

Vincent Feliciano

Vincent Feliciano is the Director of Labor & Employment Relations at Tribune Media. He has deep knowledge of employment law and employee relations. He has over 10 years of experience and is an expert on labor relations and policies.

Lindsay Casale

Lindsay Casale is a current graduate student at Bank Street College of Education. She has experience in nonprofits and fundraising. She has close to a decade of experience in event planning and development.