should better coordinate to enforce those sanctions and make them more effective, while pressing the Security Council to match them globally, Human Rights Watch said.

"It is disproportionate to any anticipated military advantage."

Witnesses told local media that they woke to the sound of the first blast around 11:30 p.m. followed by at least four more blasts. Images of the aftermath show a razed area about 500 meters wide and at least Myanmar military, which has a long record of committing war crimes in Kachin State and elsewhere. When a ceasefire with the KIA broke down in 2011, Mung Lai Hkyet, which was mainly inhabited by ethnic

Human Rights Watch interviewed five witnesses and reviewed 20 images and three videos of the aftermath of the attack, which suggest Myanmar forces initially conducted an airstrike on the village, then fired

Adilur is in accordance with EU standards. He also complained that the West uses the issue of human rights as a tool whenever they get an opportunity. On October 11, a seminar related to Bangladesh was held handed down a jail sentence according to the penal code of the country. International legal team/expert are always welcome to observe and participate in any trial with prior permission from the government.

The Bangladeshi expatriates noted in their petition to the EU Parliament president that Adilur and his colleague have been convicted under Bangladeshi law which gave them full scope to defend themselves.

Economy at that university.

"We are working on a list of 11 individuals, including Osman Faruk, who are allegedly involved in crimes against humanity in the region of Bangladesh Agricultural University, Mymensingh in 1971," the

During a press conference held on 4 May, 2016, the agency revealed that they were examining a list of 11 individuals, including Osman Faruk, who were suspected of crimes against humanity in the region of "The International Crimes Tribunal of Bangladesh has received the investigation report, and the legal representatives of the state have duly examined it," Chief Prosecutor of the tribunal Syed Haider Ali

But according to the Royal Military Police, in a statement quoted by Hermer before the inquiry, two potential civilian witnesses had declined to provide evidence and the investigation into the child killing was

This week, the public inquiry, presided over by Lord Justice Haddon-Cave, heard a separate allegation that nine Afghan males were shot and killed while sleeping on another SAS night raid on 7 February 2011

October 11, 2023

Ansar Allah (Houthi) group arbitrarily detained and interrogated Abdul-Rashid Al-Faqih at Sana'a International Airport, seized his passport and prevented him from travelling.

his return from an international conference in Jordan, organised by the International Federation of Journalists and the Yemeni Journalists Syndicate, and attended by several international organisations, the Sana'a International Airport, which is located in the area de facto controlled by the Ansar Allah (Houthi) group at the time of publication of this statement, has been partially open since April 2022. Since then,