

Warren Bell

He is a past president of Physicians for Global Survival, and past founding president of Canadian Association of Physicians for the Environment. He is a past president of the Association of Complementary and Integrative Physicians of B.C.. He lives in a small town in south-central B.C. running an active practice which integrates conventional and alternative or complementary remedies. He was for 5 years president of the medical staff of the Shuswap Lake General Hospital.

Warren Bell was born and raised in Vancouver, B.C., he has been a family physician for 40 years, having graduated from McGill University in 1974, and completed a residency there in 1976. For over three decades he has been concerned about and involved in issues of social development and the environment, as well as the peace and anti-nuclear movement, global health and development (with an emphasis on the role of multinationals — especially drug companies — and patents), and the integration of healing modalities of all kinds. He has written and spoken in many settings on these and related issues, and participated in a number of projects both locally and nationally. For ten years he wrote a weekly newspaper column entitled “Global Health”.
