

Practice Systemic Constellations with European practitioner group, COBRAS.

This is a great occasion to acquaint yourself with systemic constellations, a different and powerful method of exploring the inner life of organisations, by COBRAS, an international network of senior experts. We look at the theory and work practically with the issues that participants are bringing to the forum.

On October 19th-20th, our European network of organisational constellators COBRAS, is meeting in Madrid. During our meeting, we will invite external participants who are interested in this deep way of working with organisation issues related to organisational development or profession.

You can join us in our open workshop as a client, with a case of your own to explore. Or if you are interested in the method and willing to join in exploring others' issues. You may come as participant and then if chosen, decide to experience being a representant for the client's constellation.

During the workshop we will provide a short intro to the concept of constellations for those new to it, and we will work 2-3 client cases in which everyone in the group can be asked to join in.

Participants are asked to contribute 40€ (coffee, tea and snacks in a networking break included) .Clients working an issue are invited to contribute on top of above, according to the value they take from the experience.

COBRAS consists of systemic constellation facilitators from Copenhagen, Brussels, Bratislava, Barcelona, Amsterdam and Stockholm, who met while training in this method for Jan Jacob Stam from the Bert Hellinger Instituut in the Netherlands. We hold regular meetings in our home towns which external clients are invited to attend.

Our purpose is to contribute to a more conscious society and economy through an innovative holistic approach of organisational systemic dynamics.
