A program defined as an ATD is a program or directive that increases supervision of a youth that would otherwise be securely detained, in an effort to ensure the youth attends court and refrains from committing a new law violation. The alternative shall least restrict the youth’s freedom of movement, provided the alternative is compatible with the best interest of the youth and the community. ATD programs are direct interventions; they generally meet with a youth multiple times over a specific period of time. Generally, the program relies on an educational or relationship based component to invoke behavioral change within the client.
