

NDSWM Inspired by Hillwood Middle School

Washington, DC, February 17, 2017 – In Fort Worth, Texas, some students took on the challenge of gathering some monies for a worthy cause.

"We would like to honor our military by contributing to the National Desert Storm War Memorial that will be built in Washington DC," said a US History Teacher at Hillwood Middle School. "This memorial will join the Vietnam War Memorial, Korean War Memorial, World War II Memorial, etc. How amazing would it be to help build something that will last for generations to come!"

A $2500 goal was met for donations to the development of a National Memorial for Desert Storm/Shield Veterans.

"This is OUTSTANDING and very humbling at the same time," said Scott Stump, CEO of the National Desert Storm War Memorial.

The Principal at this school would like to challenge other schools to meet or beat this awesome endeavor we all share. The learning and feeling of pride and accomplishment is well worth the time and effort.

Again, the volunteers at the NDSWM are even more so inspired by the actions of these young citizens and aspire to not only honor those that have fallen but also respect what these young brothers and sisters have accomplished and see to the completion of this effort.

#

Special Note: Efforts are being made by Hillwood Middle School for further donations in time for Memorial Day.

Pictured - The kids made posters displaying how they would honor the sacrifice of our fallen warriors.