DESCRIPTION
7a. Architectural style: Homestead
7b. Briefly describe the present physical description of the site or structure and describe any major alterations from its original condition:

This 1½ story house has a one story wing in the rear and a later shed addition to the left side. The gables are open with boxed cornices with returns. There are multi-paned double hung windows in the gable ends, and the front windows appear to have been altered to a different proportion with multi-paned fixed sash. There is a small gabled portico over the front door which appears to be a later addition.

SIGNIFICANCE

19. Briefly state historical and/or architectural importance (include dates, events, and persons associated with the site.)

This building, in its original condition, was an example of the better class of homestead cottages. While retaining its basic simplicity, it goes a little further with the use of bed molding and returns on the cornice. This structure is the only remaining homestead of the two built on Foss Street prior to 1920. The home was originally built by John W. Clack between 1867 and 1875. Clack had come to Healdsburg circa 1860, and before his death in 1915, he served as city marshall, deputy sherriff, deputy assessor, and school director, and was the owner of the Sotoyome Hotel.

Clack sold the property to William C. Mason in 1877/78. Mason, born in Laurel Co., Kentucky in 1831, came to Healdsburg from the El Dorado Mines in 1857. In 1878, Mason established a grocery with H.W. Smith, and soon after, became blind and retired to this homestead until his death in 1895.
