William G. Leung is currently the Board Chair of Chinatown Manpower Project and a retired Banker from TD Bank in the Chinatown marketplace. He has been in the financial industry for 48 years. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in Chemistry from Lakeland University in Wisconsin and his MBA in accounting from Baruch College in New York. He also received the Emerging Leadership certificate from the University of Denver. In the financial world he had experience in auditing international and domestic subsidiaries, trust and retail operations. He also received his Series 7, 63, 24 and NY life insurance licenses.

Bill, as he is known to people, is a native New Yorker and was raised in Chinatown. Growing up in Chinatown during the 1960s, there were not many organizations geared toward helping the community. When the opportunity arrived for Bill to manage a major US Bank in Chinatown in 1986, he got involved with several nonprofit organizations. He began tenure with Chinatown Manpower in 1991 as an Advisory Board member. Bill became Board Chair in 2004, and helped the organization survive many obstacles over the years and moved forward.

Upon his retirement, Bill received a City Council Citation for his exemplary service to the community.
