Project Summary

In New Jersey, nonprofit organizations may be exempt from tax on real and personal property under certain circumstances.\(^1\) The statute that sets forth the property exemptions, N.J.S. 54:4-3.6, consists of two block paragraphs.\(^2\) The first paragraph sets forth the organization that are exempt from taxation. The second defines the term “hospital purposes,” which is used twice in the first paragraph.\(^3\)

In November of 2022, a member of the public brought the statute to the attention of the Commission Staff,\(^4\) stating that the first paragraph of the statute is cumbersome, difficult to read, and therefore difficult to comprehend. Staff examined the history of the statute, its structure, and syntax to determine whether applying contemporary statutory drafting standards could make the statute easier to read and understand.

Background / Analysis

• Enactment and Amendments

In 1918, the New Jersey Legislature amended the Act for the assessment and collection of taxes (“Act”). In Chapter 236 of the Laws of 1918, the Legislature set forth fourteen categories of real and personal property (collectively “property”) that it determined should be exempt from taxation.

5 L.1918, c. 236 p. 847 (An Act for the assessment and collection of taxes (Revision of 1918)).
6 Id. at p. 848-52 ((1) United States securities; (2) public property; (3) property used for military purposes; (4) property used by nonprofit organizations; (5) corporation stock; (6) burial grounds; (7) fire companies; (8) railroads and canals;
As originally enacted, the fourth and longest subsection of the Act contained a provision that exempted certain property, owned by specified nonprofit organizations, from taxation. To obtain this exemption, the Legislature required that a taxpayer meet a number of conditions precedent.

First, tax exemption was extended only to buildings that were used for:

Next, the land on which the buildings were erected were not permitted to “exceed five acres in extent.” The Legislature also extended the tax exemption to the personal property found in the buildings of these association “if used in and devoted to the purposes” provide in the statute. In addition, the entities originally entitled to this tax exemption were prohibited from conducting their business for a profit. Finally, the exemption statute applied “only where the association, corporation or institution claiming the exemption own[ed] the property in question and [was] incorporated… under the laws of this State…”

The Legislature began to amend the Act shortly after its enactment. From 1919 to 1931, Section 203 was amended ten times, ultimately including seventeen exemptions. Following the revision of New Jersey’s statutes in 1937, the fourth subsection of the Act for the assessment and collection of taxes - tax exemptions for nonprofit organizations – was designated N.J.S. 54:4-3.6. The overarching purpose of N.J.S. 54:4-3.6 is the “encouragement of private sector work that will benefit mankind while lessening the burdens on the State.”

(9) poll taxes for firemen, soldiers, and sailors; (10) mortgages; (11) property used for soldiers with disabilities; (12) household goods up to a certain value; (13) bank stock; and, (14) turnpike roads used by the public without payment of a toll.

From 1941 until 2011, N.J.S. 54:4-3.6 was modified an additional fourteen times. These amendments extended the tax exemption to additional nonprofit organizations, modified the limits of the exemption granted for certain organizations, updated statutory references, defined the term “hospital purposes,” and removed pejorative language from the statute.

- Structure and syntax

In its current form, the nonprofit property exemptions and associated restrictions are set forth in the first of two paragraphs in N.J.S. 54:4-3.6. The statutory provision governing the tax exempt status of property owned by nonprofit organizations has been voluminous since its enactment in 1918. In the 100 years since its enactment, twenty-four amendments added to its length.

The first block paragraph of N.J.S. 54:4-3.6 spans two typewritten pages. It contains 957 words — in two sentences.\textsuperscript{22} The first sentence contains 861 words. The property to which the statute applies, and the requirements for application, are separated by sixteen semi-colons in that sentence.\textsuperscript{23}

Repetitive words in the statute add to its overall length; “all buildings,” for example, appears nine times to introduce the type of use that is required to obtain a tax exemption.\textsuperscript{24} Intermingled among the list of exempt property types, in no discernable order, are the requirements and limitations imposed by the Legislature for the tax exemption to be granted.\textsuperscript{25}

The second sentence of this lengthy paragraph mandates that the entity “claiming the exemption owns the property in question and is incorporated or organized under the laws of this State and [is] authorized to carry out the purposes… of which the exemption is claimed…”\textsuperscript{26}

Finally, the second paragraph of N.J.S. 54:4-3.6 defines the term “hospital purposes,” which appears twice in the first paragraph.\textsuperscript{27}

\textbf{Pending Bills}

To this time, four bills involving N.J.S. 54:4-3.6 have been introduced in New Jersey’s 2022-2023 legislative session, none of which seek to amend the statute’s syntax and structure or clarify potentially confusing provisions.\textsuperscript{28}

\textbf{Conclusion}

Staff requests authorization to conduct additional research and outreach to determine whether it would be beneficial to address the syntax and structure of N.J.S. 54:4-3.6 to make it easier to read and understand.
