MISSION STATEMENT

Black Skin Directory connects women of colour to expert skincare professionals via a free online portal.

In a 2017 survey of women of colour in the UK, 92% experienced difficulties in finding skincare professionals with relevant experience in darker skin tones.

Launched in February 2018, Black Skin Directory will facilitate easier access to aesthetic professionals experienced in treating darker skin tones and also highlight suitable aesthetic treatments and products for women of colour.

“Black Skin Directory at last gives the client some guidance and confidence in knowing that they will be seeing someone with both expertise and knowledge - I would strongly recommend it and wish it every success.”

Dr Sandeep Cliff

Consultant Dermatologist/Surgeon & Key Opinion Leader

Background to Black Skin Directory

As an Aesthetician working predominantly with women of colour, founder of Black Skin Directory, Dija Ayodele is used to hearing frustrated clients complaints about finding skin care professionals not only experienced in the common concerns of black skin, but also confident in their knowledge of treating black skin.

After hearing one too many clients report that they had been turned away for treatment because a clinic 'doesn't do black skin', Dija decided to do look into it further to see if she could help.

After doing a bit of digging, including research at the Afro Hair and Beauty Show in London and knowing many great dermatologists and skincare professionals experienced in treating darker skin tones, Dija decided to set up the first in its kind directory to provide a 'Yellow Pages' that women of colour can use and trust to locate skin care professionals who are experienced in treating darker skin tones.

Conversely the directory also serves as a useful tool that skincare professionals can use to market themselves and put themselves directly in front of the woman of colour market.

British women spend over £110 a month on their appearance¹, with women of colour spending an additional £140 due to lack of choice and awareness of options². Not only is this unfair, but also shows and confirms that despite an uneven playing field, women of colour have massive spending power.

In spring 2017, Dija conducted a survey, which revealed that women of colour desire access to the same professional skincare treatments as Caucasian women. However, it is important that skin care professionals confidently demonstrate knowledge and practical experience in treating skin of colour.

This is reflective of the study by Ehlinger-Martin, A et al. (2016)³, investigating women's attitude to ageing and cosmetic procedures - a good relationship, confidence in the professional and their ability to provide reassurance were rated most highly as factors that influence the decision to proceed with a cosmetic procedure.

This disconnect of being unable to find a trusted and confident skin care professional, coupled with the strong spending power of women of colour, shows that there is an unrealised opportunity to bring both parties together.

A significant number of women in the survey even went as far as to say that it was important for both professional and patient to be of the same skin colour as they felt that would increase the chances of the professional understanding their particular skin complaint.

Overall, the study strongly concluded that women of colour struggle to access skincare professionals (of any background) experienced with black skin.

Key findings are below:

1. HOW DO BLACK WOMEN FIND A PROFESSIONAL SKIN CARE SERVICE?

The results show that most people turn to the Internet including social media channels first to find a professional for their particular concern.

2. IS IT IMPORTANT FOR THE SKIN CARE PROFESSIONAL TO BE THE SAME SKIN COLOUR AS YOU?

As the results show, responses were varied. 68% of respondents attached some significance. If the middle point of 5 is not bothered/indifference, then anything from 6 to 10 shows increasing concern that both patient and professional should be of the same skin colour.

Out of 127 responses, 86 attached significance to skin colour.

One respondent commented, "It's very important that they specialise in black skin. This is only because I now understand that our skin behaves differently and reacts differently to products."

3. WHAT IS YOUR EXPERIENCE IN FINDING A SKIN CARE PROFESSIONAL IN THE UK?

Focusing on the respondents who have attempted to find a skincare professional (75), 92% have found it 'challenging, very difficult or they have never been able to find a professional.'

This is a very high percentage of women and confirms anecdotal evidence that black women feel it is a huge challenge to find a skincare professional practically experienced with black skin.

Comments from respondents:

'I tried. It's so hard I gave up.'

'I wasn't confident in them. I felt like they just wanted my money instead of being sincerely professional.'

Therefore, given:

- Dija's extensive knowledge of experienced skin care professionals who can successfully treat darker skin tones;
- The fact that the internet is the primary information source when seeking a skincare professional

The concept of a dedicated online meeting place i.e. BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY would be an ideal solution to ensuring that women of colour, can access the services of experienced skincare professionals easily and with a degree of trust.

Likewise, skincare professionals can tap into the BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY network to promote their services, products and treatments to the women of colour demographic.

Some comments directly from the potential users of BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY:

'A vetted website advising of professionals with expertise on all skin types would instil confidence in me.'

'BSD is a brilliant idea. I live in Denmark and it's a struggle finding products and treatments that are suited for my dark skin. That's why pages like this will be amazing for girls like me.'

'So appreciative of this soon to be site.'

'This is fab news. I have several friends who are women of colour, know where to point them in direction of now if looking.'

'I love what you are doing with this directory launch! We need this type of information in the US as well.'

Founder of Black Skin Directory – Dija Ayodele

With over ten years beauty industry experience ranging from beauty journalist, blogger, product formulator, consultant, brand owner to Aesthetician – Dija is passionate about the beauty and aesthetic industry.

An area of great interest and experience is skin care for women of colour. Dija is committed to ensuring accessibility and availability of treatments that meets the needs of all skin tones.

In addition, it is important to Dija that women of colour are provided with the most current information and education about treatments and products suitable for their skin tones.

What can Black Skin Directory do for YOU?

Simply, we will elevate and promote your practice and/or clinic to women of colour.

Given that only a lowly 10% of women actually go ahead with a cosmetic procedure, though 50% make enquiries about treatments (Ehlinger-Martin et al., 2016), surely it is important for professionals to market themselves to as wide a pool of potential patients as possible.

If you are a skin care professional with the knowledge and practical experience in treating black skin, it makes sense for you to shout about it. There is a demographic of women waiting to find out more about you.

BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY can form part of your overall marketing strategy to showcase your clinic and practice to a valuable group that is often overlooked. Even before our launch in February 2018, we noted that BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY has the potential to attract a global audience. Though initially UK focused, interest has been noted as far afield as Nigeria, Kenya, Denmark and USA.

What we offer:

- BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY will promote your clinic via a dedicated search website, but also on our social media platforms – Twitter, Facebook and Instagram.
- BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY will provide you with a website badge that acts as a validation of your ability and commitment to treating women of colour.
- BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY can provide targeted access to an ever-growing mailing list. You will be able to talk directly to our subscribers about your new treatments, products, services and events.
- BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY can provide further promotional building opportunities through in depth clinic reviews from the Black Skin Directory Council, enhanced personal profiles on the website and sharing your knowledge via our subscribers newsletters.

- BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY awards a quarterly 'Clinic/Practitioner of the Quarter' title. This information is published via our newsletter and also on the BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY website.

We are a steadily growing platform. To date we have seen over 400 subscribers organically registered on our website and 1000 social media followers. We have formed relationships with leading brands – UltraSun, MZ Skin, Medik8, NeoStrata, Dr Dennis Gross, Dr Marko Zelens, Caroline Hirons and the Harley Street Emporium.

BLACK SKIN DIRECTORY boasts a dedicated PR expert, with over ten years agency and in house public relations experience. Her role is to amplify our brand and yours during the launch phase and beyond, to approximately 1.5 million women (ABC Readership figures, 2016).

To date we have been featured in Harpers Bazaar, Stylist Magazine, Aesthetics Journal, Metro Newspaper, Aesthetic Medicine, SPELL Magazine, Black Beauty & Hair, BrownBeautyTalk, Professional Beauty, Skin Health Magazine and Black Hair Magazine.

In March 2018, we were invited as conference speakers to Aesthetic Medicine Live, delivering a talk on 'Aesthetics and the Skin of Colour Patient.'
