Through media arts education, Wide Angle Youth Media cultivates and amplifies the voices of Baltimore youth to engage audiences across generational, cultural, and social divides. Our programs inspire creativity and instill confidence in young people, empowering them with skills to navigate school, career, and life.

Every year, we look forward to sharing our achievements with you, our community of dedicated supporters and enthusiastic collaborators. You share in each of our successes as we create platforms for Baltimore youth to tell their stories and develop as our next generation of talented leaders. We are inspired by the imaginative, inventive youth we see each day; our work is ignited by a desire to overcome the social justice challenges rooted in race and class that our country, and our city, continue to struggle with.

As Executive Director, I’m proud of the work that we accomplished in FY19. Our team listened closely to the needs of our students and community, and responded thoughtfully with innovative ideas to improve our program offerings. Thanks to our thriving network of donors, this was a year of strong financial growth, which catalyzed new ideas and initiatives. Your investment fueled a successful capital campaign to expand our space, added new full-time staff, and provided a record number of youth with creative media arts education. We updated our Workforce Pathway and created additional college and workforce resources for high school and apprenticeship programs.

Your contribution provided exuberant middle schoolers with technology access to explore their ideas in new ways through collaborative videos; it created opportunities for talented, driven high school students to confront challenging topics with bravery and honesty, and advocate on behalf of others through design and film; and, it sustained our apprenticeship tracks, where savvy media makers highlighted clients who are uplifting our communities. By learning core skills, growing confidence, and balancing responsibilities - youth across our program pathway gain insights, tools and experiences to help them pursue their passions and guide them on their path towards self-actualization.

Baltimore is a city of inspiring stories, of determined individuals and dedicated organizations, focused on building an increasingly vibrant and healthy community. The depth of our students’ lived experiences stands in stark contrast to national media coverage - commentary that often focuses on negative statistics instead of the resilience and complexity of Baltimore. Our young people insist on having opportunities to share our city’s positive narratives and varied perspectives. We are obligated to establish spaces for this generation’s stories to be told and celebrated; we need to amplify them more loudly than the sound bites and social feeds that frequently inundate us.

Looking forward, we will continue to implement long-term strategies that help to move youth into meaningful employment, create a more diverse media landscape and move towards a more equitable society. Wide Angle has continued to flourish because of your partnership and generosity. Thank you for believing in our work, and the visionary power of our youth.

Community Impact

“It is my personal hope that the curriculum will be used to guide students toward collaboration, liberation, and self love. With this curriculum, students can engage in the conversations I only wish had been part of my experience growing up in a country that has yet to have a period of true racial reconciliation and healing. Through this curriculum, the humanities push students and citizens to think about who has a seat at the table, who has been deprived of having a seat at the table, and how we can move forward. It is our hope that Wide Angle Youth Media’s Black Lives Matter curriculum can begin to push Baltimore and the country in that direction.”

Dena Robinson
DEI Facilitator & Curriculum Lead

INTENTIONAL DISTRIBUTION

In FY19, Wide Angle produced and distributed its first curriculum to accompany the body of youth-produced media created in FY18. Why Black Lives Matter - Discussing Race Through Film, Photography and Design (wideanglemedia.org/wblmcurriculum) is the culmination of a year’s worth of transformative media making for our students, and we recognized that their work needed to be distributed in an intentional, strategic way. Our DEI Facilitator, students and other key staff conducted a series of educator trainings, presentations and screenings to share quality, youth-driven content. The curriculum includes Wide Angle youth-produced media, work from famous Black artists and lessons influenced by noteworthy social justice educational institutions.

The equity-based Design Thinking pedagogy follows an adapted Cycle of Action, and also invites educators and their students to dive deeply into fundamental aspects of our society. The curriculum and related materials had an audience of over 12,180 through in-person and online views, and anticipated use in classrooms. This intensive, comprehensive undertaking was made possible by support from Maryland Humanities.
DESIGNING FOR CHANGE
This spring, the Design Team visited Globe Collection and Press at Maryland Institute College of Art, to create posters in partnership with the ACLU of Maryland for the March for Our Schools rally in Annapolis. Students attended the March, where they handed out posters to attendees and advocated with over 8,500 residents to increase school funding state-wide.

CAPTURING THE MOMENT
In the winter-spring 2019, Wide Angle dove into photojournalism through a new partnership with UMD’s Phillip Merrill School of Journalism to document the impact of climate change on low-income residents (bit.ly/BaltClimate). Students interviewed community members, helped assemble temperature monitors, and used a thermal camera. The partnership continued into FY20 as students explored the impact of summer in the same neighborhoods.

GIVING BACK
FY19 marked the launch of a revamped MediaWorks summer program and the Build Your Brand initiative. Participants received paid media arts and workforce training while they created media to uplift area nonprofits through the Build Your Brand Initiative. Youth selected Black Girls Cook, Strength to Love 2 Farm, and Blacksauce Kitchen. Client RFP’s are released each winter, with the deadline to apply in the spring (wideanglemedia.org/summer-programs).
Expanding Our Footprint

In spring 2019, we had a one-time opportunity to add 721 square feet to our main offices. We needed more workstations for students, more space for our apprenticeship programs and teachers, and a place for youth to work on personal projects. Thanks to the generous support of more than 160 donors, we exceeded our individual giving goal and raised $35,290 to kickstart the expansion and have raised $133,705 to date through corporate and foundational support.

Construction for our second Media Lab was completed in mid-June. This new space allowed us to hold all three cohorts of the summer MediaWorks program at our main offices, accommodated record enrollment for fall 2019 high school programs, and allowed us to create advanced Video and Design studio tracks for seasoned high school students. We also added a new office space for media instructors and doubled the workspace for Wide Angle Productions and expanded apprenticeships. The capital campaign is in its final phase, with a focus on capacity investments for Wide Angle Productions. Fundraising efforts will wrap by the end of FY20.

New Opportunities

In spring 2019, Wide Angle began to explore a partnership with Arts2Work, a national workforce development initiative organized by the Alliance for Media Arts and Culture. Sakinah Bowman joined our team as a part-time apprentice in May, in preparation for the formal FY20 launch of a full-time position recognized by the Department of Labor. She is the first Multimedia Production Apprentice in the state of Maryland, and the position will serve as a revolutionary blueprint for the future of creative work to ensure equity, inclusion and economic sustainability for creative workers, businesses and organizations.

“The best way to change the world is to change ourselves. For me, Wide Angle supports youth by providing tools for them to build upon their inherent strengths, actualize their best selves, and change their trajectories. That impact will ripple through their families, their communities and the world.”

William Nesbitt, Board President

“In the media, youth are almost always portrayed as criminals or wild animals. We focus on proving to the media and many adults that youth in Baltimore are capable of doing great things by sharing their talents and ideas on social media for the world to see. Doing this shows youth that their voice matters and shows adults that not all of us are looking for trouble.”

Chamia Winston, Workforce Team
Intentional Growth

In spring 2015, Freddie Gray’s death and the Baltimore Uprising prompted Wide Angle to reflect on how we could do ‘the work’ more meaningfully. We began a period of intentional restructuring, expanded program offerings and needed capacity investments. Many of our FY19 achievements took shape as a response to the events of FY15. Here’s a snapshot of what’s changed, thanks to your support.

Annual Report FY2019
As our organization makes efforts to move towards a more equitable society, we have shifted how we credit our Individual and Corporate Donors and Volunteers. All supporters are listed alphabetically below, and traditional giving levels have been removed from our Donor List. We feel that this is an important step that reflects our values, because every donation (of time, money or in-kind support, at any amount) is important to Wide Angle. In addition to the donors listed by name, we recognize and acknowledge those who make contributions through workplace giving campaigns, AmazonSmile, or other special campaigns. We may not know your names, but we are humbled by your generosity.
