THE FIFTY PEOPLE WHO REALLY PERFORM FOR CHICAGO

20 JULIA RHOADS

Choreographer

For fifteen years Julia Rhoads and her company Lucky Plush have been making some of the wittiest, most imaginative, playful and whip-smart performances on Chicago stages, period. In last year's "The Queue," an airport becomes the setting for a slapstick musical romp. This spring, the company gets time on the Harris Theater stage—their biggest yet—for "Trip the Light Fantastic: The Making of SuperStrip," which pulls from pulp novels and comic strips to critique a world in which constant self-branding can get in the way of our most noble pursuits.
