Rural Economy, Infrastructure and Education

From the Campaign Trail

Policy Platforms

Starting next week I will be rolling out fifteen policy plans, broken down into 3 categories, which target rural needs. These plans will repair and advance our state! I will detail one policy each week.

The first group of 5 policies improve the rural labor force. With these changes our rural workforce will be very competitive in the state. Rural communities will become leaders in workforce development and support.

The second group supports our farmers. I am proposing that we clear obstructions and add support that will ensure our farmers have the state backing in their risk-taking jobs.

The third group of 5 policies will ensure that our rural economy is not only maintained but encouraged.

The Shutdown

This is ridiculous. There is a bipartisan bill that would resolve the shutdown. This bill needs to be put to the floor for a vote and sent to the White House. Republicans control the Senate, House and White House and need to get this done. People are impacted by this!

McCormick Farmall Tractors

Yesterday at the House Party for Angie Craig - I gave her two gifts: First, my son's drawing from his first political townhall which was with Angie. Second, a collectable tractor.

I gave the McCormick Farmall tractor to Angie because it represents the long history of strong females making a difference in this country. It represents America's history of rural perseverance and how our state has always required strong women. The McCormick family is entangled with feminism in America.

Anita McCormick upheld many progressive values including supporting the United Nations and Women's Suffragist Movement. Ruth McCormick, a Suffragist, was a US Congresswoman from Illinois from 1929 to 1931. And Katherine McCormick, an active Suffragist, was one of the first women to graduate from MIT. Katherine used her share of the McCormick fortune to fund the development of the first birth control pill with Margaret Sanger.

On the weekend of the Women's March anniversary, Laura and I played a small role celebrating DFL values by hosting Angie Craig at our home. Angie is a living role model of how our society invests in the people of this country. She is a strong woman who built herself and who is now going to help all of us grow.
