GREATER BALTIMORE CULTURAL ALLIANCE AWARDS 2016 RUBYS GRANTS IN LITERARY AND VISUAL ARTS

Baltimore, October 11, 2016 – The Greater Baltimore Cultural Alliance (GBCA) is thrilled to announce the nine individual artists and one artist team selected for 2016 Rubys Artist Project Grants in literary and visual arts. This grantee cohort represents innovative artistic practices across the fields of poetry, fiction writing, photography, sound, sculpture, painting, and a publishing initiative.

The 2016 Rubys grantees in Literary Arts and Visual Arts are:

Thea Brown, Baltimore: to support Loner Forensics, a collection of writings that investigate the transitory silence that descends and recedes in the aftermath of public violence through the central metaphor of a shadow city.

Andria Nacina Cole, Baltimore: to support Memphis and Haddassah and Barbara and Keisha and Pip (Or, How Tony Learned to Stay Young), a collection of short stories that examines and honors the inner lives of Black men and their experiences with love, children, work, fear, police brutality, power, Black women, racism, homosexuality, and death.

Hoesy Corona, Baltimore: to support the development and creation of new wearable sculptures for Alie[N]ation, an immersive multimedia installation and performance that investigates and dismantles hyperbolized alien tropes, xenophobic language, and the archetype of the scapegoat.

Michael Downs, Baltimore: to support Sefton Stories (Miniatures), a series of short nonfiction essays that explore lives, events, and relationships within the author's Baltimore neighborhood during the Great Recession.

Carla Du Pree, Columbia: to support Where the Spirit Meets the Bone, a novel that speaks to loss, regret, and blessings as told through the voices of Eudora, the daughter, and M'dear, the mother, both part of a young, African-American military family traveling by car through the uncivil South during the 60s and early 70s.

Kimi Hanauer, Baltimore: to support Press Press, an interdisciplinary publishing initiative that will act as a site of social exchange at its new storefront location downtown on 427 N Eutaw Street that will house publishing resources, a library, and programming space.

Andrew Paul Keiper and Kei Ito, Baltimore: to support Afterimage Requiem, a large-scale photographic and sound installation that contemplates the development of the atomic bomb, the bombing of Hiroshima in 1945, and the ongoing legacy of this history.

Andrew Klein, Baltimore: to support Breezewood, a collection of poems that take as its subject the history, highways, geography, and mythology of a small town in Southern Pennsylvania.

Susan Muaddi Darraj, Phoenix: to support Brotherly Love, a novel about two immigrant Arab American families adapting to life in South Philadelphia during the 1970s.

René Treviño, Baltimore: to support Codex/Constellations, a series of paintings on animal hide that combine imagery from ancient Mexican codices with queer symbols and narratives to produce new, imagined constellations.

"Baltimore is home to a remarkably diverse and energetic creative community that has been severely under-resourced for far too long. The Deutsch Foundation is pleased to support the Rubys and delighted with the exceptional projects selected for funding in this round," says Robert W. Deutsch Foundation president Jane Brown.

"The Rubys reflect the degree to which the creative sector is an engine for the success of the Greater Baltimore region. This round of grantees includes a broad range of exciting artistic projects that thoughtfully explore topics such as identity, history, and social impact," says Jeannie Howe, executive director of the Greater Baltimore Cultural Alliance. "GBCA is grateful to its talented and thoughtful jurors and to the Robert W. Deutsch Foundation for their vision and support of this program."

The 2016 Rubys jury panels for literary arts and visual arts were comprised of the following esteemed professionals:

- Marwa Helal, writer, poet, journalist
- Steven Leyva, poet, editor, Little Patuxent Review
- Lisa C. Moore, publisher, RedBone Press
- Stephen Motika, poet, publisher, Nightboat Books, artistic director, Poets House
- Nicole J. Caruth, curator, director of pedagogy and public practice, The Union for Contemporary Art
- Phil Davis, director, Brentwood Arts Exchange
- Clement Hanami, artist, art director, Japanese American National Museum
- Kristine Thompson, artist, assistant professor, Louisiana State University
- Carol Zou, artist-in-residence/project manager, Trans.lation: Vikery Meadow

The Rubys Artist Project Grants were conceived and initiated with start-up funding from the Robert W. Deutsch Foundation and are a program of the Greater Baltimore Cultural Alliance.

The Rubys Artist Project Grant program was established in 2013 to support the region's gems - the local creative community of performing, visual, media and literary artists. Created with the vision and initial funding from the Robert W. Deutsch Foundation, the Rubys provide meaningful project support directly to artists. The Rubys usher in a new era of arts grantmaking in Baltimore by offering citizen-philanthropists, as well as foundations, the opportunity to support individual artists. The Rubys were inspired in part by Ruby Lerner, the visionary founder of Creative Capital in New York City.

The Robert W. Deutsch Foundation invests in innovative people, programs and ideas that promote arts and culture, economic and community development, and social justice, with a primary focus on the City of Baltimore. The foundation has a history of supporting innovations in science and technology in Maryland's public colleges and universities, and views innovations in these fields as important drivers of social change. www.rwdfoundation.org/

The Greater Baltimore Cultural Alliance (GBCA) nurtures and promotes a vibrant, diverse, and sustainable arts and cultural community essential to the region's quality of life. GBCA aims to promote the region's creative sector and significantly increase artists' and organizations' capacity to do great work.
