RULES OF HERALDRY

To prove a right to Coat-of-Arms in England or in any of the Colonies outside the United Kingdom of Great Britain, it is necessary to show without break male descent from some person to whom Arms

(a) have been granted by patent;
(b) have been confirmed at one or other of the Visitations;
(c) have been officially recorded or registered at the College of Arms.

The Rules of Heraldry forbid to any lady, save a Queen Regent, the use of shield, crest, motto, helmet or mantling in her own right. She is, however, permitted before marriage, to display the Arms of her family upon a lozenge. During marriage the real position, heraldically, is that the identity of the wife is merged in that of the husband, who bears impaled or in pretence the Arms of his wife's family for her.

A widow reverts to the lozenge, placing thereupon the Arms of her deceased husband, conjoined with those of her own family as her husband bore them, either impaled or with hers in pretence, as circumstances dictate.

INTRODUCTION

My grandfather, GROSS SCRUGGS of Kentucky, was a remarkable man in many ways; he was determined, commanding, impatient of criticism or suggestion, yet gentle and affectionate with those whom he loved.

As I remember him, he was very proud and aristocratic and delighted in relating to me incidents and traditions connected with his family.

It was he who sowed the first seed, that later ripened into a desire to collect and preserve such data as could be obtained concerning the SCRUGGES in America.

I have spent much time and labor in a conscientious effort to gather from the many parts of our United States and the many more histories dealing with its people, times and boundary lines, such facts as I hope may prove interesting and acceptable to those now scattered, who bear this family name.

The work has been a labor of love, notwithstanding the many disappointments and discouraging setbacks, and this little volume of the descendants of RICHARD SCRUGGS, Gentleman, of England and the Virginia Province, is offered now not as a finished family history, but merely an historic basis, upon which the numerous kindred may build their records and achievements.

And now across this vast area of our United States, I send a cordial and affectionate greeting to the many known and unknown kindred, thanking each in turn, who have helped me in my efforts, and to their courteous consideration, I pass with tender veneration these "Old Ancestors" who, from constant association, have become to me as living men.

Ethel Scruggs Dunklin.

HISTORY

In the year 1609 the Virginia Company of London occupied a territorial grant covering two hundred miles north and two hundred miles south of Old Point Comfort and west to the Pacific.

The settlement, after passing through a series of vicissitudes, ultimately became prosperous, owing to the influx of immigrants from the Mother Country—men generally of the patrician stamp, who obtained Crown Grants of large estates, and thus became progenitors of families representing what has been termed, in modern times, "True Virginia Stock."

In 1634, the territory held by the Virginia Colony was divided into nine shires or counties—James City, Charles City, Elizabeth City, Warwick, Accomac, Nansemond, Isle of Wight, Henrico and York. In 1654 a county was formed from York called New Kent. Goochland and Cumberland Counties were included in Henrico until 1782-84, when they became independent counties.

The first English Settlement in America was made in Carolina, on Roanoke Island, in 1585, by Sir Walter Raleigh, but was abandoned the following year. In 1663 George II. granted Carolina, which had previously been attached to Virginia, to Lord Clarendon and others, and a large immigration from Virginia settled in the northern part of the Province. In 1729 the King purchased the Colony of Carolina and it was divided into two Provinces with separate governments.
Georgia was first included in the charter of the Carolinas, but in 1732 George II. granted a separate charter to General James Oglethorpe and others, and it was settled and colonized by the British in 1733. This charter covered the entire territory westward to the Mississippi River, and was called "Georgia" in compliment to the King. For a long time the early colonists were harassed by their Indian neighbors and former possessors, the Creeks, but finally succeeded in subduing them. In 1752 the charter was surrendered, proprietary government abolished, as it proved unfavorable, and Georgia became a Royal Colony, securing privileges similar to those of the other Colonies.

Tennessee was originally included within the limits of North Carolina, from which Colony the inhabitants came and first settled at Fort London.

These immigrations occurred principally from 1756 to 1761, when an Indian War broke out and armed forces were sent from the sister Colonies of Virginia and Carolina to aid the new settlers, and the Indians were defeated. In 1789 North Carolina proposed to cede the territory to the United States and by its act of May 25, 1790, Congress constituted it "The Territory of the United States South of the Ohio" (see Universal Atlas, by George F. Cram; American Dictionary & Cyclopaedia, Vol. XVI).
THE SPELLING OF THE NAME

In Colonial days when America was in its infancy, the spelling of proper names seems to have been for the most part phonetic.

The name SCRUGGS occurs spelled SCRUDG, SCRUDGE, SCROGGS, SCRUG, SCRUGS, SCRUGG as well as SCRUGGS.

In Fairbairnes Crests of Great Britain and Ireland he gives authority for two ways of spelling the name, that of SCROGGS and SCRUGGS, either being correct, both coming from the same root and bearing the same family Arms; the O having the sound of U as in the word sun and son.

In America SCRUGGS has been the accepted preference, although branches of the family in Carolina, Georgia, Pennsylvania and Maryland use the O.
TOWNS NAMED "SCRUGGS"

BEDFORD COUNTY,

VIRGINIA.

COLE COUNTY,

MISSOURI.

BEDFORD COUNTY was formed in 1753 out of Lunenburg and was named for the fourth Duke of Bedford. It comprised what is known as Bedford, Campbell and a part of Franklin Counties.

Campbell County was cut from Bedford County on the southeast in 1781, and subsequently, in 1784, the County of Franklin was cut on the south side.

The town of "SCRUGGS" was originally in Bedford County, and was named in honor of that branch of the Scruggs family that settled there. After the division of Bedford and Franklin Counties, however, "SCRUGGS" became situated in the northern part of Franklin County, two miles from the present Bedford County line. The town of "SCRUGGS" in Cole County, Missouri, is situated near Jefferson City, the State Capitol.
THOMAS SCRUGGS OF SALEM, MASS.

Thomas Scruggs came to America with Endicott in the "Abigail," sailing from Weymouth, England, June 20th, 1628, and arrived at Salem, Mass., September 6, 1628, where he settled and died in 1654. He often represented the town of Salem as Deputy in the General Court; was one of the Judges of the local court, and was always recognized among the rulers of the town. In January, 1636, he received a grant of three hundred acres of land on the southwest limits of its territory (near Marblehead), in the immediate neighborhood of the seashore, in full view of the spacious bay, its promontories, islands and navigation. The month following this grant Mr. Scruggs relinquished the land in order to further a project which the leading people of Salem had at heart, a desire to establish a College on this tract. The effort failed. In an address at the Essex Institute celebration (about 1898) Pres. Robert Rantoul said: "Harvard College came near being placed on Scruggs land in Salem, when it would have been named Scruggs College."

From the little recorded of Thomas Scruggs it is evident he was a valuable and intelligent citizen, and the event that brought his career as a public man to a close proves that his mind was enlightened liberal and independent; that he was in advance of the times in which he lived. When the bitter and violent persecution of the celebrated Anne Hutchinson on account of her Antinomian sentiments took place, Mr. Scruggs disapproved and denounced it; he gave his whole influence earnestly and openly against such attempts—to suppress freedom of inquiry and the rights of conscience, in consequence he was with five other leading men, proscribed, disarmed and deprived of his public functions. He died on his estate 1654, leaving a widow, Margery and one child, Rachel. The inventory of his property, June 24, 1654, shows him to have been possessed of large estate for his times.

To

Mrs. Ethel Scruggs Dunklin,

New York City.

My Dear Cousin:

I have had the pleasure to receive your esteemed letter of the 7th instant. Edwin Conway, of Virginia, my grandmother’s father, was Chairman of ‘the Committee of Safety’ of Lancaster County, in that State, at the time the Revolutionary War was breaking out. He appears to have been a man of wealth and high social position, and among the first to espouse the cause of independence. He was a personal friend of George Washington, who, it seems, was often a guest at his house. I do not know certainly whether he ever held a commission as general in the Continental Army; but as he was always spoken of by his neighbors as ‘General Conway,’ I infer that he did. Still, the title may have been merely complimentary.

It was charged, I believe, at one time, that he and Washington became estranged, and that he was in the ‘Conspiracy’ (in the Continental Congress) to supplant Washington as Commander-in-Chief; but I have never been able to find any evidence in support of such a charge. I remember hearing my grandmother (Rebecca Lindsay Conway) speaking of the close friendship between her father and Washington. She was then a girl of some six or eight years.

As history tells us there was, at one time, a conspiracy to supplant Washington, and a ‘Gen. Conway’ seems to have had some connection with it, but I've never been able to determine whether it was our 'Gen. Conway' or some other. Certainly, so far as I can discover, there is no documentary evidence that my grandmother's father was in the plot, altho' he may have been.

I shall look forward with much interest to the completion and publication of your work; meantime, if I can serve you, command me.

With sincere esteem,

Your kinsman,

WILLIAM L. SCRUGGS.

P. S.: There is an old pamphlet, published by William and Mary College (Williamsburg, Va.), which throws considerable light on the Scruggs-Conway genealogy and history. It is long since out of print, and I know of but one copy extant. It is in the library and archives of the Daughters of the American Revolution, at Washington, D. C. You might write to the 'Historical General' of the National D. A. R's, who would probably be willing to loan it to you.

WILLIAM POWELL, D. C.
EARLY COLONIAL LAND
GRANTS IN VIRGINIA
LAND PATENTS

From an early date the immigration of a person to Virginia, gave a title to fifty acres of land. The immigration was proved by oath before a county court, which issued a certificate of the fact. On the presentation of this certificate to the Secretary of the Colony an order for a survey was granted, which was followed by the granting of a Patent. All Patents were signed by the Governor, as representative of the Crown, and in this way were the "Grants from the Crown."

The fifty acres rights were known as "Headrights" and of course in the case of slaves and indentured servants, their grants belonged to their Masters, but were always transferable, and often passed through several hands before land was located in virtue of them.

Though not always the case it may be accepted as a general rule that the first appearance of a person as a "Patentee" or "Headright" gives the approximate date of his arrival in Virginia. The Patents state the locality of the land, the name, and often the social condition, parentage and other relationship of the "Patentee."—Richmond (Va.) Critic.

Mrs. Isabella Dyall is mentioned in the will of Thomas Ryan, Esq., of Bertie, North Carolina, January 27, 1753. After the death of her husband, Isabella Hastings Dyall went from North to South Carolina with most of her children and settled in Laurens District. She had a brother John Hastings, who became one of the wealthy men of Pennsylvania.

The bricks of which the Dial home in South Carolina was built, were brought from England and are in use at the present day by descendants. The room occupied by Isabella Hastings, the wife of Henry Arthur Dial, was kept intact for many years after her death and has been visited by members of the family from time to time, on account of the many objects of interest, especially a huge punch bowl engraved with the Dyall and Hastings coat of arms.

DUNKLYN—DUNKLIN

In the reign of King John the name was spelled D-U-N-C-L-E-N-T and was later changed to the present spelling. The following brief sketch shows the old form and the later change.

THE MANOR OF DUNCLENT.

DUNCLENT, or Dunclent Park, is situated partly in the Parish of Stone, and partly in the Parish of Kidderminster. In the Conqueror’s time it was the land of St. Guthlac, and held by Nigellus (see Domesday, Tax. IX). There were in demesne one carucate, two bordares and two herdsmen, and there might have been five carucates more. It was worth 25s. but was only worth 10s. at the time of the survey. Odo had formerly held it of St. Guthlas. It afterwards became the property of the Beauchamps, and was held of them by the D-U-N-C-L-E-N-T-S, a family who took their name from this place so early as 12 John (see Red Book of the Exchequer).*

EDMUND de DUNCLENT (see Record of the Tower 9 Edward II) presented to the Parsonage of Churchill, March 16, 1631, and 7 Henry VI, the heir of Amicia Dunclent held the lands in Dunclent which formerly belonged to Stephen de Bosco, and which the said Amicia had held.

*There were no surnames in England until the time of the Conqueror, who established the custom when he had Doomsday Book compiled, and some families took their name from the location of their dwelling, or from their occupations.
DUNCLENT (see Records of the Exchequer) afterwards came to the Barons of Abergavenny. Mr. John Moore, ancestor of the Foliots of Pirton, sometime held it. It then passed to Mr. Brode, and is now the property of Lord Foley. In Duncleent is a parcel of land called “Monksurlong,” which formerly belonged to the Abbot of Bordesley, and at the suppression of that house 36 Henry VIII, was given by the King to John Maynard, who conveyed it to Mr. Edward Brode.

Aubrey, in his survey of Surrey, says: “I cannot help taking particular notice of an estate at D-U-N-K-L-Y-N in WORCESTERSHIRE, purchased by Mr. Foley, at about 300 pounds per ann. which was sandy ground covered with heathand improved to about 600 pounds per ann. by letting the waters over it.” (see Nash’s History of Worcestershire, Vol. II, pp. 386, 387.)

THE DUNKLIN FAMILY OF SOUTH CAROLINA

I.—JOSEPH DUNKLIN sailed from London to Charleston, South Carolina. On the same ship was Jean Wathin* of Wales. Soon after leaving port they became acquainted, and were married shortly after the arrival of the boat at Charleston. They settled at Four Hole Swamp, St. Mathew’s Parish, near Bonneau, Berkley District, where they are both buried. Jean Wathin was considered a very beautiful woman of her day, and it was doubtless that same beauty that first attracted the gallant Joseph Dunklin. He was appointed on January 16, 1777, Inquior and Collector of St. Matthew’s Parish, including Orangeburg Township, for the purpose of raising and collecting taxes. Joseph Dunklin died soon after the close of the Revolutionary War, and his wife two years later. The old Dunklin “burying-ground” is near Four Hole Swamp, above Charleston. Joseph Dunklin had issue by his wife Jean:

2. John.
3. Ann (called “Nancy”), married twice; first, William Shipp, who died February 5, 1788, his will is on file in Greenville Court House,

WILL OF JOSEPH DUNKLIN, ESQ.

In the name of God, Amen; I Joseph Dunklin, of St. Matthew's Parish, South Carolina, Berkley County, Charles Town District, Planter; being through the abundant mercy and goodness of God, tho' weak in body yet of sound and perfect understanding and memory, do constitute this my last will and testament, and desire it may be received by all as such;

First; I most humbly bequeath my Soul to God my maker, beseeching His most gracious acceptance of it through the all sufficient merits and mediation of my most compassionate Redeemer, Jesus Christ, who gave Himself to be an atonement for my sins, and is able to save to the uttermost, all that come unto God by Him, seeing He now liveth to make intercession for them, and who I trust will not reject me, a returning and penitent sinner, when I come to Him for mercy; in this hope and confidence I render up my Soul with comfort, humbly beseeching the most Blessed and Glorious Trinity, our God, most Holy, most Merciful and Gracious to prepare me for the time of my dissolution, and then take me to Himself, into that Peace and Rest and Incomparable Fecility, which He has prepared for all them that love and fear His Holy Name Amen; Blessed be God.

I give my body to the earth from whence it was taken, in full assurance of its resurrection from thence, at the last day. As for my burial I desire it may be decent without pomp or state, at the descretion of my dear wife and my executors (my dear Wife being one of my Executors hereafter named) who I doubt not will manage it with all requisite prudence.

As to my worldly estate, I will and positively order that all my just debts be paid.
SCRUGGS GENEALOGY

First; I give and order it to be so, that all my lands be equally divided between my well beloved sons, and as to my dear wife; she is to have full possession of the said lands, and not to be interrupted by any person during her life.

As to the rest of my movable estate, it is to be equally divided amongst my family, that is, my dear Wife and Children (after my debts are paid out of the said movable estate) as they come of age; It is my desire that they shall have their part out of the said estate, and it is my desire that the said estate be equally divided, after the recording hereof or as soon as it possibly can after the Blessed Lord shall receive my breath Who gave it.

And I do constitute and appoint my dear Wife, Jean Dunklin, and Joseph Dunklin, Executors of this my last will and testament, and Trustees for my Children, in witness whereof I have hereunto set my Hand and Seal, the seventh day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand and seven hundred and seventy six.

I.-7-5-4—WILLIAM WATHIN DUNKLIN, son of William Alanson Dunklin by his wife, Mary Eliza Rogers, was born January 9, 1843, died in McLennan County, Texas, January 25, 1888. He enlisted when seventeen years old, in the famous Hood's Texas Brigade, where he rose to the rank of sergeant in Company E, Fourth Texas Regiment, fighting to the close of the war, and surrendering with General Robert E. Lee at Appomattox. He was attended throughout the war by his faithful slave and body servant, Primus, who claimed some credit for his master's safe return. Many stories are told by his fellow companions, of his grit and steady pluck. Judge John West, of Waco, who was in the same Company, says of him in a letter:

"He was as jolly and jocund as a boy at a picnic. Even when death seemed to stare us in the face, he never faltered nor flinched. I was with him day and night in many hard marches, and two great battles, Gettysburg and Chickamauga, and no finer soldier ever carried a musket. I saw him on the march from Chattanooga to Knoxville with his feet wrapped in rags (when the brigade could be trailed by the bloody tracks in the snow) as there were only twelve pairs of shoes in the whole brigade, but he never complained, and when we met some Yankee prisoners going to the rear, he smiled and said, 'Hello, Yanks, how do you like the sunny South?' We have a reunion of Hood's Texas Brigade each year, and we speak of the gallant companions gone before, and the name of Sergeant Dunklin is always mentioned as a synonym of faithful devotion to duty, when the hour of trial came."

William Wathin Dunklin was educated and took three medical degrees, one from the Medical College of Galveston, Texas, one from the College of New Orleans, Louisiana, and the third from Bellevue Hospital, New York City. He was a physician of note, a member of the firm of W. A. Dunklin and Company of Galveston, Texas, and owned land extensively throughout the State. In the latter years of his life he engaged in planting, in addition to his profession, and with his brother, Francis Marion Dunklin, bought from his father the old home place, "Spring Hill," near the town of Waco. He married twice; firstly, in Lowndes Co., Alabama, September 4, 1864, his cousin Mary Ann Caffey, the daughter of Hugh P. Caffey and his wife Jane Caroline Dunklin, by whom he had issue:
1. Francis Thomas, born July 8, 1866; married Nannie Underwood, by whom he had issue one child, a daughter, Mable. He died May, 1911, Fort Worth, Texas.

scientific lines. He was left an orphan at 11 years and has, unaided, made his way. Numerous cities are using street light supports of his designing.

I.-7-5-4-(4)—WILLIAM WATHIN DUNKLIN, son of William Wathin Dunklin by his second wife, Hallie M. Atkins, was born at “Spring Hill,” the family plantation near Waco, Texas. His earlier days were spent in Waco, where he was employed in the newspaper business, being identified with the Evening Telephone, a newspaper owned by his mother.
