Currently they are operating on one third of the positions as vacancies on patrol, they have 19 officers on patrol and that’s from the captain down. There are seven frozen vacancies in the patrol division, he stated this is happening in other counties as well. Council has been gracious to give the open slots and he has restructured the salaries to be competitive with other counties, but they are still struggling to hire people. That was one of the reasons he reclassified one of the positions to the Director of Professional Standards, they will make sure the policies and procedures are current. They will also hire personnel for all the divisions with in the Sheriff’s Department.

   County Attorney Winters stated the letter before them addressed to Marci Andino, Executive Director for State Elections initially the state elections sent all forty-six counties a memorandum of agreement, in which she called an adhesion contract where one member of the party gets more benefits from the contract than the other. Many of the County Attorneys did not agree and refused to sign off on the MOU. The Association of Counties talked with Mrs. Andino and negotiated to agree to allow Counties to put some of the information onto the Counties letterhead so it would not be contractual but an understanding of what the County obligations are. The obligation is the new election equipment in which they will have the ability to have statewide voting machines under state law which is an unfunded mandate. They will train and provide maintenance and support services through November of 2020 without any cost to the County. Attorney Winters stated they are not sharing what happens after November 2020, they will not share the contract they have signed with the vendor, FOIA’s have been sent but have not received any response.
In order to get the voting machines ordered and be running in time for an election, this letter was crafted to suffice and Mrs. Andino indicated she would accept the letter. She asked Council to look at the end of the letter where it stated, “The Chester County Council reserves the right to withhold any appropriations in its budget to meet these requirements, and any agreement to these responsibilities and any additional requirements that may follow July 2020 and November 2020 are subject to final approval by County Council.” She stated Council would be going along with the agreement until July 2020 and November 2020, so when the true numbers are out County Council can withhold appropriations in the budget. There is a bill in the State House that the association of counties is lobbying for it to be passed that may provide funding afterwards. The letter would need the authorization for the County Supervisor’s signature along with Chairman of Chester County Election Commission.
