Guidance for Travelers

If a traveler meets any of the following criteria, they should self-quarantine in their home for 14 days upon return. Travelers should check their temperature twice daily, and monitor for any additional symptoms of COVID-19. If a traveler does have symptoms of COVID-19 they should contact their healthcare provider for further guidance. Again, if a traveler meets any of the following criteria, they should self-quarantine in their home for 14 days.

- Any Domestic Air Travel
- Any Travel via Cruise Ship
- Any Travel within the United States to a state that is reporting Community Spread of COVID-19
  - This includes stops within a state, even if that is not the final destination
  - The CDC “States Reporting Cases of COVID-19 to CDC” map will be used for this determination
- Any International Travel

Businesses and Employers may be more restrictive in their policy. This policy is subject to change.
