What We Know About Program Planning and Partnership
The Power of Partnerships

- Promotes equity by coordinating service areas, targeting groups of students most in need of particular kinds of resources and interventions and reducing barriers to program access.

- Maximizes and grows available resources, whereby facilities and other shared resources are used efficiently.

- Established system is able to withstand leadership changes overtime.

- Builds capacity and coordination of professional development and program quality - key drivers of program success.
Benefits of School–Community Partnerships

Benefit Schools:

● complement the academic curriculum with a wider range of services and activities, particularly enrichment and arts activities that may not available during the school day

● support transitions across the school years, particularly the critical middle to high school transition, which research indicates is a key predictor of high school graduation (Neild, Balfanz, & Herzog, 2007)

● reinforce concepts taught in school without replicating the school day, often exposing classroom teachers working in the summer program to new pedagogies

● improve school culture and community image through exhibitions and performances that help “shine the light” on students whose talents may not be apparent in the classroom;

● gain access to mentors, afterschool staff, and other resources to support in school learning and improve the teaching and learning in the classroom itself.
Benefits of School–Community Partnerships

Benefit Students and Families:

- Learning Partnerships can support student outcomes
  - Positive relationships with schools can foster high quality, engaging and challenging activities, along with promoting staff engagement
- provide continuity of services across the day and year, easing school transitions and promoting improved attendance in summer programs
- facilitate access to a range of learning opportunities and developmental supports, providing opportunities for students and teachers alike to experiment with new approaches to teaching and learning
- facilitate information sharing about specific students to best support individual learning
- provide family members with alternative entry points into the school day to support their student’s learning
Benefits of School–Community Partnerships

Strengthen and Support Community Partners:

- help gain access to and recruit groups of students most in need of support services
- improve program quality and staff engagement, particularly when there is crossover between school and community organization staff
- foster better alignment of programming to support a shared vision for learning, one which aligns curriculum to support state and local standards
- maximize resource use such as facilities, staff, data, and curriculum

Partnerships can serve to strengthen, support, and even transform individual partners, resulting in improved program quality, more efficient use of resources, and better alignment of goals and curricula. (Harvard Family Research Project, 2010)
Features of Effective School-Community Partnerships

- Shared vision for learning and developmental outcomes for students
- Engaged Leadership
- Continuous Quality Improvement
- Data Management
- Sustainable Resources
- Marketing & Communications

Expanding Minds and Opportunities: Leveraging the Power of Afterschool and Summer Learning for Student Success
In Summary

★ Build relationships and coordinate resource investments across organizations, agencies, and initiatives that already have relationships with children beyond the school day and year (for example, libraries, housing authorities, etc.)

★ Plan how to involve families from the outset. System coordination of family engagement will result in better strategies for marketing, enrollment, retention and will reduce overall barriers to participation.

★ Think broadly about including the right stakeholders. Certain stakeholders may already have relationships, a history of working across initiatives, or have developed systems for collecting data from grantees in a way that positions them well to encourage collaboration across community initiatives. Strategic direction may come from a funding collaborative, mayoral office, or other intermediary or leading organization.
