The Pocahontas heartache of Italy:

I think about you everyday you simply will not go away it goes in waves of ebb and flow but you and I we both know...

They try to keep me in my place when all I need is to see your face

De La Fressange...

Why do I have to be your toy amusement... a puppy on a leash

Why wont you let me be a boy and bring us quiet peace

I'm on the brink of ruin they want to put me in a cell

Give it to me I beg you please a drink to put my soul at ease and save me from eternal hell I promise this time...
I will behave well

This obsession over a thing I cannot have drives my brain completely mad

I see you in Amalfi with leather sandals and a skirt as you drag me beneath the coral reef submerged... there's pain Mina
I hurt

But not as evisceratingly brutally excruciatingly as last year when they nearly shot me on arrest

Thankfully I must confess to have passed a Lions deceitful test

Which was actually a trap set by your step father however with him I do not bother...

There are better things to chase as everybody know than greedy little goblins at the end of a shiny rainbow

Much better...Indeed it's so Where would we be if I hadn't caught the sweetest little rose whose thorns were sharp like canine fangs it matters not because you're the one I chose

I challenge you my deepest love to find another who can provide as I do

And if you say that you have then it's the grandest lie I ever knew

I don't want you to be scared and I don't want you to run I want you to be safe with me and lend the world poetic fun

I know that we have met before when I chased you through romantic lore:

Romeo and Guinevere, Tristan and Helena Eurydice, Josephine
Penelope and Scarlett

Rochester and Eloise
Cathy and Marie Curie

But to me you'll always be The Pocahontas heartache of Italy

Children of the sun

She will look back and remember the silver shoes she bought and all the time that passed between the first sensation of liberty and fame unbridled thirst to feel a love she never had

In future times when she have this thought when I write to her at age sixteen I am you and you are me baby we're the same my heart is sad when I'm without you I wish that I could be your first...

You will always be surpassed and live a thousand years a queen of time with eyes as pearls of a vast and shiny deep blue sea

When all the knights are at your feet and you read this song fascinated and blonde at a peak of twenty three a thought will whisper in your ear why didn't he ever want to meet me?

But times have passed I'm since long gone and you are grown now we're travelers of distant worlds I guess it's ambiguous to you biting your thumb with your teeth

It's truth of consanguinity this agonizing need in splendid wealth to be with characters of honest genuinity

The clothes you wear white and perfect but who is there to give you what you really need?

Admiration and compliments from the dark and brooding stallions of America while you're surrounded by flying balls and steel clubs and look into the evergreens shielded against light

I am here with you in the sun if you look closer can you feel me amidst a sea of fighting suitors? on their knees with raybans to hook my princess blind again we are children eternal over the rainbow under the sun

The Stonecraft Marble

I'm sorry for my unworthiness I shall leave this court, your royal highness

But before I go there is a thing

For all those eyes who are listening

A little bee has stung me twice I must admit it was exceedingly nice

The Paris girl is one I miss whose satin lip deserved a kiss

She ravaged me in brightlit day and bit me deep all the way

To drink from your own little wasp it is forbidden but my princess is young so as long as its hidden I agree to our pact

I will instruct you how to drain me with tact

The Vampires mark where the white river flows from an Aryan lark whom everyone knows...

Blossomed the flower of petrified winter which now is soft like a boy who learned to tip on his toes

The juice of the nectar I'll hang on my tip

Where an assure eyed pupil may kneel for a sip

Long ago on fields untamed flickered bright a little flame

In burning purple plumed tree sat Hephaeston sad and lame Sat the King who so was named who in boyhood young and free as light which flickered just the same had fallen in a game

Of poor Hephaestons misery
sat the King who hurt his knee looked upon and lo could see

The light which burned so bright in flame whom all had tried and failed to tame

On wood of burning plumed tree was carved the Lords divine decree

Long ago on fields untamed Vulcan sparked eternal fame

Chained by darkness man was free and things that were would never be

Never be the same...

The Maiden of the Mist
by Sir Walter Scott

Narrative of an Ascent to the Summit of Mont Blanc John Auldjo

Now was the time of measuring the mystic plot, over the most savage precipices and through the darkest pine, in the bottom of the glen a transient view winning way with caution and fortitude

Background

Two exiled Lancastrians are on a secret mission to the court of Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, hoping to gain his help in regaining the English crown from the Yorkist Edward IV. The two Englishmen get into difficulties in the Swiss mountains. They meet Countess Anne and her family, who are involved in the politics of the newly independent Swiss Confederation and plan to confront Charles with complaints about his conduct towards the Swiss nation. The two groups decide to travel together. Anne may have inherited magical skills from her grandmother, enabling her to perform feats which defy explanation. The travellers also encounter a shadowy organization known as the Vehmgericht or Secret Tribunal.

Narrative ascent to the summit of mont blanc

In 1830, he made the decision to remain in Europe by giving power of attorney over his Canadian properties to his lawyer, Thomas Kirkpatrick. From then, Auldjo lived in Naples as one of the inner circle of Sir William Gell. This inner circle included Sir William Drummond, Keppel Richard Craven, Lady Blessington, Sir Walter Scott and Edward Bulwer-Lytton, who was Auldjo's particularly close friend. Lord Byron, another frequent guest at Naples, was also well known to him.

He was Walter Scott's cicerone between January and April 1832.

The final sunlight of another day remember those who ran away

I weep when Lyon kiss the night but know that things will be alright

you broke my soul and chained to bed I know a rose whose thorns will shed

When she wanders out of sight may all her days be heaven bright

I think of things that we could do the things we didn't me and you

but in my mind we ride the Rhone where I lean to kiss a black haired raven

The Jewel of Sorbonne

The Morning star

How will Europe fight a muslim colonization when fertilization, is not the Aryan prioritization As a chairman over Asgard I propose a grand reward To shower buzzing bees with honey ass slender wings may pollinate and suck a dripping nectars flower wouldn't this be great?

I don't believe in armed mechanics or military savagery the sword and shield of judgement hour is lyric art and poetry

Unholy Trinity

This is the night, when a vampire dies...

Of all the girls I ever knew, there's no one near to challenge you a girl whose hair is raven dark has chained with thorns this blackened heart

I'll always know your childish eyes when we ran as twins in wuthering heights but now my hands are grey and wrinkled while immortal ages flies

I pray in heaven everyday to turn life counter clockwise And all the wounds I gave to you nothing more than ghoulish lies...

You sealed our souls with lock and key in blazing autumn skies

But little dove, my arcane love there is a thing, we could not see: The door you locked was you and me

This is the night, when a vampire dies...

Anima mea Dei, Vita mea Regi, Honos mihi

Catherine de la Roche bloodline

Daughter of Guy de la Roche who lived from 1205-1263, father of six children including one Alice de la Roche better known as Alice of Athens, mother of Louisigan, King Charles VIII of France and Mary, Queen of Scots. Catherine was the wife of Carlo di Lagnessa, Seneschal of Sicily. The marriage did not produce children and she remarried Jean Allier as the records show a woman of the same name appearing in 1319, with ties to Lusignan, Kings of Jerusalem, allies of de La Fressange.
