The past year has revealed the countless racial inequities people of color face ranging from simple microaggressions to police brutality. As an organization committed to diversity, unity, and inclusivity, The Community Chest, in partnership with the Coalition for Racial Unity and Equity (CRUE), has embarked on a project to educate readers of all ages on racial justice by setting up book displays in libraries across Eastern Bergen County.

The display of books associated with racial injustice is on display at the Englewood Public Library and in Cresskill and Closter Public Libraries. Consider books to read for your book club. Spread the word on this display and encourage your own town to participate.
