

13 WAYS TO LEAD FROM WHERE YOU ARE

BY RONDA CONGER

1. You show up early.
2. You do your job really fucking well.
3. You do more than asked.
4. You help all those around you.
You could care less what department they are in.
5. You love yourself, your job, and your company.
6. You are incredibly grateful you have a job, because you get a chance to contribute to something.
7. You don't pollute the day with your endless list of personal crap.
8. You inspire others to be like you.
9. You read, watch, learn, and grow everyday.
10. You work hard.
11. You understand that you will get paid your worth.
You know that you will earn what you deserve - sooner or later.
12. You actually bring your brain to work and plan on using it all damn day.
13. Vacations and personal days are for people who hate their jobs. Sure, you take them, but the only thing you need a break from is the chance to step away and look at your current way of doing things - a chance to recharge, refresh, and come back better. You come back ready to conquer new ideas and give more.

YOU MUST DO AND THEN BECOME BEFORE YOU CAN HAVE.
