DISTRESSED TOUCHES

Simple pieces with the tiniest bit of wear—like neat patches on straight jeans and spots of fraying on an otherwise pristine jacket—net you that edgy, worn-in vibe but still come off as polished.

UPDATED FLARES

They effortlessly play up your figure, courtesy of a waist-cinching belt, a curve-balancing shape, and a dark wash. With a blazer, they'll thrive on casual Friday.

FANCIED-UP JACKETS

Loads of sparkle or delicate embroidery turns a staple into a showstopper. Whether you pin brooches or single earrings to a jean jacket you already own (like we did at far left) or get one that comes with embellishments, it's an outfit game changer.

SLEEK CARGOS

Please don't send "These are not jeans!" letters. We know, but they're a cute, flattering alternative that makes it seem like you put some serious thought into your day-off look.

A GRAY WASH

While of course this ashy neutral goes with everything, it's particularly pretty with warm blush, a color combo you are about to see everywhere.

RICH BURGUNDY

As colored jeans go, these are more elegant and much easier to wear than the bright reds of seasons past. Plus, has reaching for wine on a night out ever been bad?

JEANS, $98, mavi.com. EARRINGS, $6, loveculture.com. Rebel Wilson x Angels JACKET, $298, dillards.com. Sizes 1X to 3X. TOP, $16, gojane.com. BAG, $42, danielle-nicole.com. HEELS, $140, whbm.com.

My days of squeezing into supertight jeans are over," says Sabina Karlsson.

Though the 29-year-old Swede liked the range of eclectic looks she wore for this story, she hasn't always been so adventurous: "I stuck to black skinny jeans because I thought they made me look smaller." In the past few years, the model (who is founding her own ice cream brand, Dotter) realized that there is more than one way to flatter your curves, like with the flared jeans from a couple of pages ago: "They were perfectly fitted around my thighs and hips, but had plenty of comfortable stretch. I love that, because I want to actually enjoy my day!"

A CRISP A-LINE

This wrap skirt makes a strong (and sophisticated) case for wearing white denim all year round—and to dressy events too.
