Baldwin Wallace Scouting Award (all active members of the BSA are eligible, regardless of rank)

The Baldwin Wallace Scouting Award is a community-based award offered to incoming admitted first-year students. The award is valued at $12,000 per year and is renewable. All active members of the Boy Scouts of America are eligible, regardless of their Scout rank.

Students may receive either a community-based award or a merit scholarship (as well as any award provided in place of a merit scholarship such as the Yellow Jacket Success Grant for those who do not qualify for a merit scholarship). Students will receive whichever award is of greatest value. Students may not receive more than one community-based award or merit scholarship – only one community-based award or merit scholarship (or equivalent) will be provided.

Students do not need to submit an additional application for the award but simply list their involvement with the BSA on their application to BW and provide a letter of recommendation from a BSA official detailing their involvement with the BSA to be considered for the BW Scouting Award. If, based on a review of their application, the BW Scouting Award is valued at more than a merit scholarship (or equivalent) the student can qualify for, they would then receive the BW Scouting Award.
