“Street Art Alley” had its beginnings at the Community Arts Gathering hosted by the International Sonoran Desert Alliance (ISDA) in March 2015. Artists were invited to create designs about this area – the heart of the Sonoran Desert – to cover the walls lining the alley alongside the historic Ajo Plaza. Amidst the painting, artists and onlookers participated in live music and community building and became part of a larger multinational gathering of community artists. Alley walls will continue to transform as more murals are added. Check it out!
