Preface

Those who are familiar with the style guide for the Society for Historical Archaeology will notice a great many similarities and in places identical terminology. This is not accidental or by chance but rather represents a great deal of cross fertilization between the two journals. It involves an attempt to find a format that is logical, uniform, easily followed, and easily remembered by writers and still within the guide lines of general anthropology. The amount of detail is a further step in defining this needed uniformity.

Over the years, several people have contributed to the editors’ development of this style. Raymond H. Thompson still represents the pinnacle in the development of American Antiquity style and strongly influenced Roderick Sprague. The Laboratory of Anthropology, University of Idaho followed a parallel line of development in style until JONA went its own way. Ruthann Knudsen helped extensively with that early style. More recently we have borrowed from Ronald L. Michael and Sarah Peabody Turnbaugh of Historical Archaeology while also trying to influence, in minor ways, the style of that journal. We thank Ronald for his generous permission to use, unmodified, much of the Historical Archaeology published guide.

I. Editorial Policy

The Journal of Northwest Anthropology (JONA) is published semi-annually by Northwest Anthropology LLC. The original papers published in the journal are theoretical and interpretive studies and bibliographic works, although highly descriptive studies are considered if they are theoretically significant. The primary criterion guiding selection of papers is how much new research they can be expected to stimulate or facilitate.

Manuscripts may be returned to authors for reformatting prior to peer review when they do not follow the journal’s style provisions. The editors also reserve the right to reject (with or without review by referees) or return for revision any submission that addresses an inappropriate subject for the scope of the journal or that is of poor quality or of excessive length.

JONA strongly discourages the use of personal (i.e., first and second person) pronouns. The editors do, however, encourage authors to write in active-voice sentences and will permit the occasional, limited use of personal pronouns when they are deemed necessary for added emphasis.

The journal conforms to the 1973 American Anthropological Association statement on gender terms, which discourages the use of gender language (e.g., his, her, man, etc.) in non-sex-specific contexts. More neutral terms (they, one, humans, researchers, etc.) are to be used.

II. Publication Guidelines

A. Editors’ Responsibilities

The editors will immediately acknowledge receipt of manuscripts. This acknowledgment does not imply acceptance of the manuscript for publication. The editors will have all manuscripts reviewed by a minimum of two peer referees. Reviewers’ comments are requested with editorial guarantees of anonymity, though individual referees may, and often do, waive anonymity. All manuscript reviews by referees are open (the author’s name is not deleted from the manuscript).

The editors are responsible for all final decisions pertaining to manuscripts. Authors are notified as soon as readers’ evaluations have been received and a decision is made to accept or reject a manuscript. Acceptance may depend on the condition that revisions be made. If review remarks are such that substantial changes are necessary before a manuscript is acceptable for publication, the revised manuscript will be re-reviewed, preferably by the original readers, before it is finally accepted for publication by the editors. Rejection of a manuscript may be final or may be qualified with the possibility of consideration after revision and resubmission, with a new review process. Authors are strongly encouraged to make the suggested changes and resubmit the article rather than abandoning the project.

Manuscripts will be judged on the accuracy of their content and appropriateness for the objectives of JONA.

B. Authors’ Responsibilities

Authors, and not JONA, are responsible for manuscript content, including accuracy of quotations and correct citation of all material. Authors are also responsible for obtaining and submitting to the editors, written permission to publish original material (such as original photographs and drawings) protected by U.S. or international copyright laws, as well as personal communications. Such written permission must include (1) a statement describing the item being used, (2) signature and title of the person giving permission, (3) the title of the article in which it will be used, and (4) the specific publication in which the article is to be published. Authors are responsible for any and all fees required in securing permissions to publish these materials. Authors are responsible for following the proper format when preparing and submitting manuscripts.

Upon submitting a manuscript, the senior author will be requested to assign copyright privileges to JONA. Unwillingness to assign such rights will result in the automatic rejection of the manuscript. The author’s name, as published in the journal, will be made to conform to the signature on the copyright assignment form.

If you have questions concerning style or content, please contact the editorial office by email at jona@northwestanthropology.com. If you do not have email or need an immediate answer, please call 509-554-0441.

C. Submissions

Manuscripts should be sent to the editorial office at the address provided on the inner front cover of the most recent issue of the journal. Manuscripts must be submitted solely to JONA and not simultaneously to other journals.

Submit both the original manuscript (as both a PDF and a Microsoft Word document) and figures (.jpeg or .png), via email. Manuscripts should be submitted with figures and tables inserted at the end of the document, not incorporated in the text. Authors are responsible for proofreading their files for unexpected omissions or problems prior to submission to JONA. Authors will retain both an electronic and a hard copy identical to their submission. All artwork remains the property of JONA and Northwest Anthropology LLC.

Following acceptance of a manuscript, authors will be required to respond to pre-publication editorial queries or requests via email.
D. Page Proofs

Senior authors (or their designee) will receive page proofs of their articles to proofread and will be responsible for all corrections. No text may be rewritten at this stage of publication, but typographical errors should be corrected and essential new facts may be added. All changes to the copy after submission and to page proof by authors are suggestions only, which may be disregarded by the editors. Corrected page proofs must be returned within one week of receipt by the author(s) unless otherwise determined by the editors, or corrections will be too late for consideration. If you are going to be in the field or out of the country, it is your responsibility to provide a means for you or your agent to be reached. The revised proofs are not sent to authors.

E. Reprints

The author (or authors collectively) of each article will receive a total of four (4) complimentary reprints of their article. Authors are encouraged to make exact copy reprints for their own use. Permission to reprint articles from NARN or JONA for other uses will be directed to the editors. Permission to reprint entire articles or excerpts may be given by the editors. Permission to print abstracts or condensations other than those original to the article will not be granted. Articles or excerpts thereof must be reprinted as published, except that typographical errors may be corrected. No changes favoring alternate spellings are permitted (such as “color” to “colour” or “archaeology” to “archeology”).
III. Style Guide

A. General

This style guide supersedes earlier editions. The style guide on the JONA website has the most recent changes and corrections. In the event of conflicts between this style guide and other journals or the references mentioned below, the directions provided here are to be followed. The journal American Antiquity will NOT be used as a model for references. The Chicago Manual of Style, chapters 15 and 16, and other published sources pertaining to references are significantly different from those used by anthropologists. It is strongly recommended that as either a new or even as an experienced author that you read this guide from beginning to end and then make a copy to keep near your computer for easy reference.

B. Style Sources

For matters of style not included here, authors should consult the following sources: Merriam-Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary, Elements of Style: With Index (William Strunk, Jr., and E. B. White), and the Chicago Manual of Style (University of Chicago Press).

Questions or comments pertaining to this Style Guide should be referred to the JONA Editors at the address found on the inside front cover of the latest issue of JONA or at the email address jona@northwestanthropology.com.

C. Manuscript Preparation

The entire manuscript submitted for publication in JONA must be double-spaced on one side of 8½ x 11 in. (outside of North America, size 2A) paper with a 1 in. margin on all sides and not justified. The font size must be 12 point. Format, citations, and references will follow the style of the examples provided.

D. Electronic Editing

Your manuscript will be electronically composed thus you are preparing a document in a specific format. You are NOT trying to produce something on paper that looks like the final published form! Follow the instructions below and keep all formatting to a minimum. Do not use any format (Style) except Normal. Do not use automatic numbering sequences (Bullets and Numbers). Do NOT use superscript ordinal numbers (18th not 18th). Use reverse (Smart) quotes (“ ” not " ") if you have them, but be consistent. If you can and know when to use them, use the m-dash (—), n-dash (–), and hyphen (−). Otherwise use one hyphen for n-dashes and two hyphens (no spaces) for the m-dash. The n-dash is used almost exclusively within ranges of numbers (pp. 126–128, years 1855–1893) but not to breakup numbers such as phone numbers or zip codes. Make use of appropriate diacritical marks (ç ú Ø) and italics.
IV. Manuscript Sections

A. Summary of Sections

Cover Page [author, address, phone numbers, email address]
Title
Author and institution or city
Abstract
Text (introduction, main text, discussion, and/or conclusions)
Acknowledgments (optional)
References
Original tables
Original figures (sent separately as .jpeg or .png)

B. Cover Page

A cover page will include all authors’ names and addresses. In addition all authors must provide a work and home phone number, an email address. The timely and accurate publication of your manuscript may depend on the editors having access to these addresses and numbers. If you are going to be out of the country, on sabbatical, in the field, etc., an alternative address and numbers must be provided. Failure to do so may result in publication of the manuscript being delayed as much as two issues or ultimately rejected. Most business can be conducted by email.

C. Title

The title of your article is flush left, in upper and lower case letters with all major words capitalized. Keep the title short but meaningful.

D. Name

Your name(s), exactly as you want it to appear and exactly the same as it appears on the copyright form, is flush left. If your name has unusual capitalization or spacing (Mac, De, Van, etc.), be sure that these items are clearly indicated.

E. Abstract

The word “Abstract” should follow your name, be flush left, and entirely in capital letters. The abstract text follows as a new, unindented paragraph. The abstract will not exceed 150 words. It should summarize the contents, significance, and conclusions of the article and not be written to serve as an introduction to the article. Write in the present tense, and avoid hackneyed phrases such as “this article will” or “this study will attempt to.”
F. Main Text Headings

1. Primary headings—Primary-level headings will be typed flush left with initial capital letters on all major words (excluding prepositions, articles, and short conjunctions).
2. Secondary headings—Secondary-level heads should be typed like primary headings and italicized.
3. Tertiary headings—Tertiary-level heads will be typed like primary headings and underlined (this is the only place in your manuscript where underlining will be used). Avoid the use of just one single tertiary heading under a secondary level heading.
4. Quaternary headings—Quaternary-level heads are strongly discouraged but if required will be flush left in all capital letters. Do not use just one quaternary level heading under a tertiary level heading.

G. Acknowledgments

The heading “Acknowledgments” is flush left in all capital letters. The use of the Acknowledgments section is optional. Personal pronouns are appropriate in the Acknowledgments.

H. References Cited

The heading “References Cited” is flush left in all capital letters. Double-space all entries, and follow the instructions given in the Sample References. The first line of a reference will include only the name of the author or authors. Do not use the American Antiquity style of only initials, use the person’s preferred full name. Multiple references by the same author or authors will not repeat the names. The second line (first line of additional references under the same name) will begin following a ½ in. tab (not five spaces or an indent) right of the left margin with the date of publication. Another ½ in. tab will follow the date. Following the tab, the remainder of the entry (title, place of publication, etc.) will be typed as normal text (wrapped from margin to margin) with no further tabs or indents. See sections VI and VII for details of referencing.

Footnotes and end notes are strongly discouraged, with the exception of notes within tables. All note material should be integrated into the text prior to submission.

Appendices are not used with articles. Such detailed data should be converted to tables, figures, quotations, or incorporated into the text.

I. Tables

1. Size—Submit no oversized tables or artwork. Tables will be composed from typed text and should be submitted on standard 8½ x 11 in. paper. Consider the physical size of the journal when preparing tables and keep the format as simple as possible. Avoid more than 10 columns. Tables with numerous columns often have to be placed sideways on the journal page, reduced in size, or placed on several pages. It is strongly urged that tables be submitted in text rather than in proprietary table software.

2. Number and Title—Number all tables sequentially in the order cited in the text in arabic numerals. On the first line, flush left, type “Table” in all capital letters plus the number. The second line, also flush left and in capital letters will give a short title, of no more than 60 characters. No periods follow the first two lines.

Sample:

ARTIFACT CATEGORIES AND COUNTS

3. Rules—Use no vertical rules in tables. Provide one horizontal rule under the table’s columnar headings and above the data. Give each column and row a brief heading, with initial capital letters on all major words.

4. Footnotes—Place notes below the table in the following order:
   a) Note. General note pertaining to the whole table.
   b) * Superscript letters indicate notes specific to one heading, section, or entry.
   c) * or  Note indicating statistical significance level.

5. Citation—Cite every table in the text. Examples: Glass comprised 34% (Table 1); As provided in Table 1.

6. Type—Unlike the text, the body of the table will be typed single-space. All tables will be grouped following the References Cited and before the Figure Captions. Only typed material that can be composed is to be named a table; if material is to be photographically reproduced, then it is a figure.

J. List of Figures

Send figures separately from the original manuscript in .jpeg or .png format titled “Figure [number].” Captions will be sequentially numbered, double-spaced, flush left, and listed at the end of the original manuscript.

Sample:
LIST OF FIGURE CAPTIONS
FIG. 1. Detail of 1837 map of Fort Vancouver. (Courtesy of the Oregon Historical Society, Portland.)
FIG. 2. Faience ointment jar forms (after Brain 1979:35).
FIG. 3. Beads and pendant from the cemetery: a, gilded bead; b, pendant; c, faceted amber bead; d–f, plain drawn beads.
FIG. 4. Left and bottom, thermometer backplates; upper right, balance scale weights.
FIG. 5. Clay pipes from Spokane House. (Photo by Ned Johnston; courtesy of Eastern Washington State Historical Society, Spokane.)
K. Original Figures

1. General—All figures will be submitted separately from the original manuscript as .jpeg or .png images.

2. Ownership—All artwork becomes the property of JONA and Northwest Anthropology LLC following acceptance of the manuscript for publication. Original artwork accompanying a manuscript accepted for publication will not be returned upon publication.

3. Permission—Original artwork from other copyright works or from specific collections cannot be published without initially placing on file with the editorial office copies of all requisite reproduction permissions. These signed permissions will be submitted with the final manuscript.

4. Size—All line art (drawings) submitted will be no larger than 6½ x 9 in. Gray-scale or continuous-tone artwork (photographs) will also be no larger than 6½ x 9 in. Small lettering and complex detail in figures will not reproduce clearly and will be avoided.

5. Drawing and lettering—Maps and artwork will have no neat lines, borders, or boxes around or within them. Captions placed on maps and artwork are redundant and will not be used. All lettering must be professionally done with press-on letters, or by computer. Typed or freehand lettering will not be used. Lettering will be sans serif and large enough and of a medium thickness to reproduce well even when reduced in size upon publication. If CAD is used for drawing, it must be of a high quality producing continuous, well defined, and unbroken lines.

6. Scales and north arrow—If a drawn scale (cm/in., m/ft., km/mi.) is required, place it in the figure, not in the caption. Do not use text scales (1 in. = 100 ft.) as these become inaccurate with reproduction. The north arrow should also be placed directly in the figure. In good cartographic style the north arrow points to north (the N is at the point of the arrow not on it or below it) and is as simple as possible without flourishes such as a compass rose or Neptune sitting astride it.

7. Citation—Cite every figure in the text; do not abbreviate Figure as Fig. When citing a figure included in the manuscript plus a reference to another source, cite the figure used in the current article first, followed by the reference: (Figure 2) (Harrington 1962:22).

V. Format Details

A. Numbers

1. Cardinal numbers—Arabic numerals are to be used for all numbers 10 and above; spell out zero through nine; for example: three sites; 12 sites.

Exceptions:
   a) Always spell out a number that begins a sentence.
   b) Spell out numbers in general expressions in narrative text (several hundred years; about one-half mile). Also spell out general expressions of fractions (About one-half of the workers.)
   c) Always use arabic numerals for:

2) Mathematical copy—(in text) $6 million, (in tables) $6,000,000; n = 9; significant at the .10 level; 10–70x microscope; 100°C

3) All numbers in a series and all numbers within one sentence will agree in form—The sample includes 4 pipestems, 32 redware sherds, 7 stoneware sherds, 9 bottle-glass sherds, and 83 nails.

4) Legal land descriptions (section, range, township)—Sec 12, R9W, T4S.

5) Measurements—All specific measurements should be typed in arabic numerals and abbreviated: 4 cm; 2 in.; 5 ft.; 8½ x 11 in.; 5 x 5 ft.; 0.5 mi.; 2 hours; 8 AM; 0.25 in.; 50 mi.; 90° angle; 32°F; 650°C; 10.5°, or 10° 90’ N. The metric unit liter, however, is not abbreviated due to its potential to be confused with the arabic numeral 1. Abbreviations for metric terms (cm, m) are not followed by a period, but non-metric abbreviations are followed by a period (ft., in.). Alphabetic abbreviations are not repeated with combined measures (5 x 5 ft.) but symbols are (15%–20%). In JONA as in other scientific journals, the percentage sign is always used with arabic numerals in both text and tables (96.5%). Precede decimal numbers less than 1 with a zero (0.4 m, 0.9 mi.) except when by tradition it is otherwise such as in statistical probability (p <.05) or firearms and ordnance (.22 cal. shell). Precise fractional measurements will use arabic numerals (½ mi.) but are spelled out when used in a general sense (about one-half mile).

2. Ordinal numbers—Spell out ordinal numbers, first through ninth; use arabic numerals for 10th and above: in the ninth month, the 13th test pit.
   Exceptions:
   a) Use arabic numerals in tables.
   c) Use spelled numerals for all centuries and hyphenate adjectival usage within narrative text (artifacts dating to the seventeenth century, mid-eighteenth-century artifacts). However, references will agree with book or article titles as originally published.

3. Site numbers—Site numbers, as well as site names, should be included when known. When trinomial-system site numbers are available, type U.S. numbers consistently according to the state’s conventions or, if inconsistent, site numbers will be reformatted with capital letters for the county designation and with hyphens (36-LY-160). Type Canadian Borden numbers with one hyphen (DiQw-4).

B. Mathematical and Statistical Copy

1. Square measurements—To avoid confusing the reader, an excavation unit 5 ft. on each side will be written as 5 x 5 ft. or 5 ft² but avoid 5 ft. square. The terms 5² ft. or five square feet do not mean the same thing as the former terms and will be avoided.
2. Formulas and equations—When including an equation in the text, set it off from the text by placing it on a line of its own with space above and below. Italicize all mathematical variables (e.g., letters or other symbols) that should be typeset in italics.

3. Statistics—All statistical equations should be set on a separate line as follows:
\[ Y = 1931.75 - 8.25X. \] When degrees of freedom or probability are relevant to statistical analysis, they should be typed following the equation; for example: Results are statistically significant based on the chi-square test of association: \( \chi^2 = 52.82, df 4, p < .05. \)

4. Chemical names—The names of chemical compounds should be lowercase when written. Chemical symbols should be capitalized, followed with a subscript figure indicating number of atoms in a molecule. See The Chicago Manual of Style (1993:7.121, 14.54) for further discussion. Superscript the mass number in front: \(^{14}\text{C}.\)

C. Dates
1. General—
   a) BC follows dates, AD precedes dates. There is no year 0. Convert CE and BCE to AD and BC.
   b) It is preferred to use scientific or military style for all dates: He was born on 19 July 1889. Quotations will retain their style.
   c) Use arabic numerals for dates, except when beginning a sentence or better, recast the sentence.
   d) Do not use commas in dates (1492), but do use commas with arabic numerals (1,492).
   e) Do not use apostrophes in decades (1860s and 1870s, not 1860’s and ’70’s).
   f) Fully cite inclusive years (1774–1778, not 1774–78).
   g) Never use “from” without “to” when referring to a range of dates (from 1850 to 1860 not from 1850–1860).
   h) Abbreviate circa as ca., not c. (ca. 1650).

2. Radiometric ages—Radiocarbon age determinations are not dates, they represent a statistical probability of being within a specific range of dates. Only calendric and tree-ring dates are absolute.

When radiocarbon ages are reported for the first time they are to follow the standardized format of the journals Radiocarbon and American Antiquity (57[4]:755–756). If the radiocarbon age being cited has been previously published elsewhere, citation of that reference (including page numbers) is adequate. Provide the radiocarbon age, date, sigma error, laboratory number, sample number, the material of the sample dated, whether the date has been corrected, and the bibliographic reference (if previously published) in the first citation of a radiocarbon age; use the age alone in subsequent citations. To present a series of radiocarbon ages and associated technical data in tabular form, consult the example given in American Antiquity (57[1]:67, Table 2).

More specifically, the uncalibrated radiocarbon age given in the first specific citation must be based on the 5,568-year half-life of \(^{14}\text{C}\) (divide ages based on the 5,730-year half-life by 1.03). The radiocarbon age is to be presented as years BP but can also be expressed as calendric years BC/AD. The 1-sigma standard error provided by the laboratory should follow. Include the sample-identification and laboratory numbers, and what material was analyzed (sample of charred wood, walnut hulls, etc.). Finally, indicate whether the age has been corrected for isotopic fractionation (if the lab has provided sigma \(^{13}\text{C}\) value, then the date has been corrected).
Example:
The age of UCR-2141 [shell] was determined to be 120 ± 50 $^{14}$C years BP ([L-303] Cressman and Cole 1977:355-363); or 120 ± 50 BP (L-303; UCR72141, shell).

3. Tree-ring dates—Tree-ring dates should be given as calendric dates (AD 1350; 280 BC, 200 BC–AD 100). Note the spelling of “tree-ring” as established by the profession.

D. Quotations

1. General—Brackets, not parentheses, are to be used in either form of quotation for setting off author added material. Parentheses are reserved for parenthetical material incorporated in the original quote and for citations. Brackets enclosing the phrase [emphasis added] signify recent author added emphasis; brackets enclosing [emphasis in original] indicate the emphasis was part of the original text. Sic should be incorporated in quoted material according to the style given in example 2c, below. Do not over use sic, as for example, when an error is obviously a minor typographical error or well known spelling typical of the time period.

2. In-text quotations—Quotations of fewer than four typed lines should be set off with quotation marks, followed by the citation in parentheses, and then punctuated:
   a) As the author stated, “archaeologists must develop a rigorous model that specifies how information about the past is transmitted to the present via material remains [emphasis added]” (Sullivan 1978:184).
   b) As Sullivan (1978:184) stated, “archaeologists must develop a rigorous model that specifies how information about the past is transmitted to the present via material remains [emphasis added].”
   c) “The [wrestling] match was between a very famous man [emphasis in original] at that time, Joe Tumr [sic] & some man; nobody could beat him” (Joseph E. Scheele 1989, pers. comm.).

3. Block quotations—Quotations of five or more typed lines or two or more sentences should be flush left, double-spaced, and set off from the body of the text by an extra blank line before and after.

4. Ellipses—ellipses (singular ellipsis) are periods (or suspension points) used to indicate omitted material in a quotation. They are placed on the line as periods are, not suspended. Asterisks should not be used in place of periods. Generally they are not used at the beginning of quoted material but rather a quotation should proceed from your text. Three periods are normally used in the middle of a sentence to indicate omitted material. Example: “The system…supported these beliefs.” Four periods are used with the first one serving as a period when one sentence is ended with a deletion and a new one starts. Example: “This work does so…. His view was similar.” Four periods are also used when the final portion of a quoted sentence is deleted. Example: “It is easy to understand his view…. If an in-text reference is at the end of the final sentence, then the period follows that reference. Example: “It is easy to understand his view…” (Ellis 1989:37). Appropriate punctuation such as(…,) or (…:) may proceed or follow ellipses if it makes the meaning clearer.

5. Inscriptions—Inscriptions and mottoes should be set off from the surrounding text and neither italicized nor set in quotation marks. Use a colon to initiate an inscription and provide
E. Spelling and Definition of Terms

1. Spelling preferences—U.S. spelling will be used rather than Canadian/British English or federal government spelling, i.e., honor not honour but gauge not gage. When alternate spellings exist for a word, the version listed first in Merriam Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary, 10th edition, is to be used. For words not appearing in this source, consult Webster’s Third New International Dictionary, Unabridged. Examples: acknowledgments not acknowledgements, modeled not modelled, datable not dateable, usable not useable, gray not grey, disk not disc, cannot not can not, hollowware not holloware, email not e-mail or E-mail. Contractions and the ampersand (&) will not be used in the text except in direct quotations.

2. Archaeology vs. Archeology—The etymologically accurate and international spelling “archaeology” is the preferred spelling listed in the Merriam Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary and is used almost without exception in JONA. The spelling of “archaeology” as “archeology” is acceptable only in a direct quotation or in acknowledgments, references, or biographies when capitalized as part of a title or an organizational name.

3. Problematical words and phrases—Some troublesome words and phrases are listed, by the preferred spelling or form:
   - data (plural) = information; datum (singular) = bench mark
   - an historic; an historical; an historian
   - x-ray (verb, adjective); X ray (noun)
   - percentage rather than percent is the usual form, but always % with arabic numerals
   - flatware; hollowware; tableware; tea and table wares
   - terminus post quem (beginning); terminus ante quem (end)
   - maker’s mark (one maker, one mark); maker’s marks (one maker, more than one mark); makers’ marks (more than one maker, more than one mark)
   - Native American (the federal government prefers Native American but some tribes prefer American Indian, and First Nations is used in Canada. Be sure which one to use.)
   - Do not use the archaic pluralized form of tribal names (the Nez Perce not the Nez Perces)
   - Use Anastasio (1972 [JONA 16(2):109–229] or 1985 reprint) for the spelling of Plateau tribal names (Palus, Spokan, Wenatchi, etc.)
   - Métis; creole
   - African American; African-American ceramics, Euroamerican
   - black American; white American
   - database; lifestyle; lifeways; mindset; sociocultural; socioeconomic; sociopolitical; worldview
F. Accents and Diacritical Marks

All accents and diacritical marks for English and foreign-language words, proper names, place names, and titles of publications must be included and clearly marked when used in the text or cited in the References. Examples: Ivor Noël Hume, Aleš Hrdlička, Teotihuacán, Erlenbah-Zürich, Revista de arqueología y etnología (title), raison d’être, français, entrepôt.

Northwest American Indian language diacritics can normally be accommodated in JONA, however those with special linguistic needs should alert the editors beforehand of their requirements. Currently, most Salish and all Sahaptian languages present no problems.

G. Italics

1. Foreign phrases—Do not italicize commonly used foreign phrases and words included in the main listing of Merriam Webster’s Collegiate Dictionary, 10th edition, including: e.g., i.e., et al., per se, in situ, en masse, sans, a priori. Do italicize all other terms, including: terminus post quem; words in native languages; and entries in Merriam Webster’s “Foreign Words and Phrases” chapter.

2. Names of ships—Italicize names of ships: whaler Alta California, British frigate HMS Orpheus, Union vessel USS Monitor.

3. Biological Taxonomy—Italicize the taxonomic genus, species, and variety of scientific names: humans (Homo sapiens sapiens), white oak (Quercus alba) but oak (Quercus sp.). Other taxa are not italicized.

4. Titles—Book and monograph titles are always italicized. Article titles are not italicized or placed in quotation marks—except when used in the text, where they will be indicated by quotation marks.

5. Mathematical variables—Letters signifying mathematical variables are italicized X (chi), p (probability), df (degrees of freedom).

H. Capitalization

1. Specific names and terms—in English, capitalize all proper names, taxonomic names for genera and higher ranks, and names of specific archaeological sites and specific geographical areas. Use lowercase for general geographic, directional, and generic division terms. For further guidelines on capitalization of non-anthropological terms, see the Chicago Manual of Style, Chapter 7. Examples: Federal-period architecture, Spanish colonial period, Raritan formation, American Northwest, northwestern United States, southeastern plantations, Washington State, the state of Washington, Rabbit Island site, Cascade point, Zea mays, Level I (but level or levels when used generally), Snake River, Snake and Columbia rivers (Chicago Manual not withstanding), Lakes Superior and Michigan, Spanish majolica, Okanogan Highlands.

2. Foreign names—for American authors with compound surnames such as Van Laer, Van is generally capitalized whether or not another name precedes it (e.g., Van Laer, Arnold Van Laer).
For names of Dutch authors, van and der are uncapitalized when preceded by another name, but Van is capitalized when the surname is used alone (e.g., Adriaen van der Donck; Van der Donck; or in references, Van der Donck, Adriaen; Hans van Regteren Altena; Van Regteren Altena).

I. Hyphenation

2. Century—Hyphenate century when used as a compound adjective: nineteenth-century ceramics, but, ceramics of the nineteenth century.

3. Fractions—hyphenate written fractions: five-sixteenths, two-thirds.

4. Compound words—Hyphenate compound words that are not permanent combinations: transfer-printed pearlware.

5. Associated words—Hyphenate to make associations clear: round-bodied clay vessels, air-borne winged seeds.

6. Descriptive terms—Hyphenate descriptive terms that include a preposition or article: black-on-black pottery, black-and-white photograph, however hyphens may be omitted when they noticeably reduce the clarity such as 8 x 10 in. photograph in preference to 8-x-10-in.-photographs.

J. Enumeration

1. Lists run-on within a single paragraph will be indicated by (1) numbers, (2) parentheses, and only the punctuation following each item such as in this sentence.

2. Lists set-off as paragraphs will be numbers followed by a period with a final period for each numbered item such as in this example.

K. Abbreviations

1. Permissible abbreviations—Although abbreviations are seldom used in the narrative text of articles, some—such as abbreviations for measurements, and abbreviations for states and acronyms for titles of agencies appearing in in-text citations—are acceptable.

2. Format—Abbreviations for names of districts or countries (e.g., U.S.) contain no space between letters. Abbreviations for states are permitted only in tables, references, figure captions, and address block where they will follow the capitalized, two-character style of the U.S. Postal Service (Alabama = AL, Alaska = AK, Arizona = AZ, etc.). Acronyms and abbreviations traditionally written in all capital letters such as JONA, SHA, AAAS, or Texas A&M, contain neither space nor punctuation between letters. The one traditional exception is U.S.

3. Unacceptable abbreviations—Contractions will not be used except in direct quotations. Terms such as ibid., op. cit., loc. cit., etc. are never used for narrative text citations or references. Abbreviations such as e.g., i.e., or the word “see” are not used within the parentheses of in-text references. The abbreviations f. and ff. will not be used as a substitution for accurate page references. Passim will not be used. The abbreviation for number when used with a specific arabic numeral is No., never the symbol # (Trench No. 7). The ampersand will not be used except where traditional (Texas A&M) or in direct quotes.

VI. Reference Citations in Text

A. General

Authors’ surnames are spelled out in full except et al. is used for junior authors’ names for publications with three or more authors. Agency names serving as the author are spelled out in full in the initial citation and may be abbreviated in subsequent sections if used frequently (usually determined as over three). Do not use a comma between the author’s name and the year. Do not space between the colon following the year of publication and the page numbers if used. Text citations will not separate the name of the author from the parentheses containing the year or year and pages. For example: Rust (1976:12) said that “the survey was complete.” Not: Rust said that “the survey was complete” (1976:12). For unacceptable abbreviations in text citations, see the paragraph above.

B. Examples

1. Simple citation, no page numbers—(Smith 1969) or Smith (1969) or Smith’s (1969) discussion.

2. Two authors—(Fortes and Evans-Pritchard 1950) or Fortes and Evans-Pritchard (1950).

3. Three or more authors—(Osborne et al. 1972) or Osborne et al. (1972). But list all names in the References Cited.

4. Three or more authors with the same senior author, more than one reference—List them chronologically in the text (Leonhardy, Johnston, et al. 1984; Leonhardy, Cochran, et al. 1987); cite them in strict alphabetical order in the References. In the infrequent instances where the first several names of two or more multi-authored works are the same and the publications appeared in the same year, cite them alphabetically both in the text and in the References, as in the following example: (Arnold, Fleshman, Garrison et al. 1991; Arnold, Fleshman, Hill et al. 1991).

5. Several different authors cited in one place—Use chronological, then alphabetical order: (McKee 1886; Colton 1959; Deetz and Dethlefsen 1965; Deetz 1967, 1973; Brown 1973; Hall 1973).

7. Two or more references by the same author or authors in the same year—Organize chronologically, then alphabetically in the References, and cite as (Barber 1907c; Butler 1993a, 1993b, 1993c) or Barber (1907c) and Butler (1993a, 1993b, 1993c).
8. Two or more references by the same author or authors, both as author and as editor, in the same year—(Ross 1985a, 1985b) or Ross (1985a, 1985b) in the text, but list them separately in the References with the author citation (1985a) preceding the editor citation (1985b).

9. Citation with pages, tables, or figures specified—Leave no space between colon and pagination and cite full page references: (Royal British Columbia Archives 1784:ff.[folios] 449–450; Hall 1969:184–197; Schuyler 1974:17, 21; Stevens 1977:chap.4; Kelly 1978:21, 64, Figures 5, 12; May 1984:Table 2; Adams and Reardon 1989:82, Table 4, Figure 9a, b; McKearin and McKearin 1948:Plate 22; Hanson and Lange 1978:306). When several categories are present, cite in the order of: [volume], pages, chapters, tables, and figures.

11. In-press reference—Avoid using the term “in press” or “n.d.” Provide the firm, scheduled date of publication when available or use a bracketed date when no date is scheduled but general consensus exists for the estimated publication date.

If looking for these in the U. S. Code or the Code of Federal Regulations, the first number of the reference is to the title of the law or regulation, and the last number refers to the section of the law. They should be cited in the text in terms of both references. Federal Register references are first to volume, then to page. Note that spaces are not left within the abbreviations by legal convention (e.g., U.S.C.), and the abbreviations are neither underlined nor italicized. Rather than an informal name, the correct title should be used in referring to specific legislation.

13. Electronic sources, found on the Internet—Because of the lack of ability to archive original electronic sources, it is incumbent upon scholar’s referencing these sources to maintain a copy of the information as cited in their personal papers, preferably in a public access archive. Text citations for electronic sites/pages are the same as other citations with the author and date: (Steel 1997) or Steel (1997).

14. Electronic personal communication—Because of the lack of ability to archive original electronic communications, it is incumbent upon the scholar receiving these messages to maintain a copy of these communications in their personal papers. Use the author’s full name, date of communication, and “elec. comm.”: (Lester A. Ross 1997, elec. comm.) or Lester A. Ross (1997, elec. comm.). You must secure permission and provide the editors with written or electronic permission to cite these communications.
15. Personal communication including email—Use the author’s full name, date of communication, and “pers. comm.”: (Alfred E. Dade 1987, pers. comm.) or Alfred E. Dade (1987, pers. comm.). You must secure and provide the editors with written permission to cite these communications. Personal communications are not listed in the references section.

16. No author given—Cite the agency issuing the report, the series title, or the publisher, not anonymous: (Spokesman-Review 1895; National Park Service 1984).

17. Citation of a play—(Shakespeare, Hamlet 2.2.259–261 [act.scene.lines]).

19. Citation of newspaper—Give the full date and pages (Seattle Times 4 May 1988:sec. 4, E11; Walla Walla Union Bulletin 4 April 1875:2). Include the issue number and volume number if used and known (Spokesman-Review, 34(133):4; 4 May).

20. Citation of document in published archives—First citation is (Oregon State Archives [OSA] 1883:[21]153), subsequent citations exceeding three are (OSA 1883:[21]153).

21. Citation of document in archives, not published—Cite by title of document with abbreviations for long titles: (Essex Institute Sample Books 1794:[1]Book 14).

22. Citation of a publication or quotation cited in another source—Cite the original source whenever possible and include it in the References. In the occasional case when the original is so obscure that it cannot be easily located or retrieved, then the following may be used: (Chapin in Gordon 1963:213). Do not use this as a cover for poor research.

23. Citation of publication located elsewhere in the current volume—(Belcher, this volume). Such citations are not listed in the References Cited section.

VII. References Cited

A. General

1. Names—Cite the full first names of authors and editors as given in a publication or byline (Robert L. Stevenson, not R. L. Stevenson). It is the duty of the author to find the full first names and will not use the American Antiquity style of only initials. When authors’ initials appear on a title page, in a byline, or the personal preference is such (L. S. Cressman not Luther S. Cressman) use initials. When two initials are used there will be a space between the first and second (K. C. Chang not K.C. Chang). Repeat the family name of a married couple (Kovel, Ralph M., and Terry H. Kovel not Kovel, Ralph M., and Terry H.) When names have changed and are not obvious, combine all of them under the author’s preferred name with a cross references to that name (Kjorness, Annalies Corbin 1965 See Corbin, Annalies). Do not cross-reference obvious variations or where the non-preferred variations can be listed in brackets (Wylie, Jerry [Henry G.]). Correct obvious and well-known printers errors (James A. Teit not James H. Teit). Do not add periods after initials where none properly exist (J Harlan Bretz). Normally there is a comma between a name and junior or senior but not with roman numerals (John Paul Jones, Jr.; Allan P. Slickpoo, Sr.; J. Barto Arnold III). For religious orders use a comma after the name and no spaces within the abbreviation (Robert I. Burns, S.J.). Electronic communications will include an email address following the name (Steel, Harvey <diacarl@aol.com>) always including the required left and right angle brackets (less than and greater than symbols). For multiple authors include at least one email address.

2. Dates—For multiple editions use the date of the edition in hand, but attempt to use the appropriate edition, generally this will be the earliest or latest. For a classic or historical work the earliest date is the most appropriate. For theoretical works and compilations the latest edition is preferred. If a reprint edition is used, list the original copy date with the reprinted date listed following the title. Avoid using n.d. for “no date.” Every work has a date of some kind. For a work with no specific date of publication, the approximate date or date range will be placed in brackets ([1979], [1930s]).

3. Titles—For books, list the title as found on the title page, not on the bastard title page or spine. If an alternate title such as on the spine is well known then it is appropriate to list it in parentheses following the official title. For historical titles from the nineteenth century or earlier keep the original capitalization and spelling. Titles of books and journals are typed in italics. In a multiple volume work and where the volumes are distinct or with different publication dates, it is permissible to list only those volumes used. The edition of a book will follow the title as 2nd edition. In this specific case use only arabic ordinal numbers. Publisher’s series titles (Civilization of the American Indian series, University of Oklahoma, Norman; Studies in Historical Archeology series, Academic Press, New York) should not be confused with occasional series titles and are not listed. If a title is not italicized it is not published thus the term “unpublished” is redundant and will not be used.

Capitalize all words in titles except for articles, coordinate conjunctions, and prepositions not following punctuation. Always capitalize the first word following a colon in a title. For titles in any language but English, capitalize only the words that would be capitalized in normal prose. In French, Spanish, and Italian titles, capitalize the first word and those proper nouns capitalized in the original title. In German titles, capitalize the first word and all nouns—both common and proper—but not proper adjectives. In Greek and Latin titles, capitalize the first word, proper nouns, and proper adjectives. It is a courtesy to readers to provide an English translation of all foreign titles and is required for any titles not in Roman type (Cyrillic, Arabic, Chinese, Japanese, etc.). The title will be followed by the translated title in parentheses.

4. Series Title—A series title will always be italicized. If a sub-series is within another higher series, italicize the highest level only (examples in 12 and 13 below); however, if they are parallel series, italicize both (21 below). Be careful to italicize only those portions of the title that should be but likewise do not omit italics from any part of the official title (32 below). When a title is especially general, it is acceptable to place an institutional or society identifier before the italic title (16, 32 below).

5. Publisher—For books and occasional series published in North America always follow the city of publication with the state or province, except when the publisher is already identified with a state such as a specific state university press. Use postal abbreviations to indicate the state of publication (ID, or CA, not Idaho, California, Id., or Ca.). Do not list the city of publication for periodicals except when they are obscure or long out-of-print. Newspapers will have the city of publication indicated. If you are not sure if a series is an occasional series or periodical, include the city of publication; it is easier to edit it out than look it up later. Outside of North America list the country following the city of publication. Do not include “Publisher, “Books,” “Printing,” “Inc.,” or “Ltd.” for books and monographs; however, Company or Co. and Press are parts of the name and will be included. List only the primary city of publication (Berkeley: University of California Press, not Berkeley and Los Angeles: University of California Press).

6. Organization—Authors are listed in alphabetical order. A single author entry precedes a single editor entry, then a multi-author entry beginning with the same name. Names of agencies serving several times as authors may be abbreviated in in-text citations if doing so does not add to reader confusion (a general rule is if it appears more than three times in the text) with the abbreviation listed in the References. All works attributed to one author should be listed together and arranged chronologically by publication date, from earliest to most recent; then arranged alphabetically by title for more than one publication within one year. Two or more works by the same author(s) and published in the same year should be distinguished by lower case letters after the date, e.g., 1976a, 1976b. If n.d. must be used, it follows the last dated source for that author.

7. Alphabetization—Alphabetize names of authors in strict alphabetical order as they are spelled, and treat two-part names as though they are one word. Latin-American surnames (except for Brazil) are alphabetized by patronymic surnames—or the first of the two surnames (e.g., Morales Padron, Francisco). Names beginning with Mac and Mc should be alphabetized as they are spelled; St. is alphabetized as if it were spelled out, but it is spelled according to the preference of that person.

Alphabetical example: Adams, Brown, Browne, d’Abrosca, Davis, De Bow, deGaulle, de Hostos, DeMille, Dubois, Evans, Evans-Prichard, Mabie, Macalister, Macaulay, MacMullen, Malloy, McAdoo, McAllister, McCauley, McMullen, Peters, St. Dennis, Saint-Gaudens, St. Laurent, Sang, Steward, Van der Donck, van Gogh, Van Rensselaer, Van’t Veer, Vaughan Williams, Willey, Williams.

When the surname occurs first as in Chinese and some other languages, do not reverse the order (Lee Bo not Lee, Bo). Company names when used as the author, such as with catalogues, will be alphabetized by the first letter of the company name excluding articles. Example: The Autocar Company; Montgomery Ward & Co.; S. D. Kimbark Co.; Sears, Roebuck and Co.; T. Eaton Company).

B. Sample References

1. Book, single author—

Brown, William C.

2. Book, reprint of an earlier edition—

4. Book, multiple authors—List all authors’ first and last names and write only the senior author’s name in reverse order.

5. Book, no author given, but name supplied—

6. Book, pseudonym used, but name known—

7. Book, privately printed—

Heinton, Louise J. 1972 Prince George’s Heritage. Privately printed, Baltimore, MD.

9. Book, no given publisher and/or no place of publication—

Griswold, Don L., and Jean Griswold

10. Translated book or other publication—

Ortega y Gasset, Jose

11 Book, authored with a general editor—

Davis, William Heath

12 Book, edited—

Jackson, Donald, editor

Bancroft, Hubert Howe

13 Two or more references by same author or authors, both as author and as editor, in same year—(Leonhardy 1983a, 1983b) or Leonhardy (1983a, 1983b) in the text, but list them separately in the references section with the edited source second thus:

Leonhardy, Frank C.

Leonhardy, Frank C., editor

14. Book, volume(s) in a multi-volume publication—

Curtis, Edward S.
Deagan, Kathleen A. 1987  Artifacts of the Spanish Colonies of Florida and the Caribbean, 1550–1800, Vol. 1, Ceramics, Glassware, and Beads. Washington: Smithsonian Institution Press. [In this case Vol. 1 is part of the title thus is italicized. Volume is spelled out if it is spelled out as part of the title.]

15. Article or chapter in an edited book or monograph—

16. Monograph or irregular series volume—In the first example the name of the society is not part of the title but is added before to clarify the generic title.

17. Article in an edited volume in a series—

18. Article in proceedings or transactions—

19. Article in a journal or newsletter—Do not provide a place of publication for a journal unless it is obscure or long out of print as in the first example. Also provide reprint information for old or obscure journals as in the last example.
American Antiquarian

Norton, Helen H.

Osborne, Douglas

20. Book review or comment—

Borden, Charles E.

21. Article in government document—The Government Printing Office (GPO) nor the Queens Printer are never listed as the publisher in spite of what you see in the humanities. It is only the printer, the publisher is the bureau, division, or other unit responsible for the work (Smithsonian Institution, National Park Service, Department of Agriculture, Department of the Interior, Parks Canada, etc.). The last two examples are also examples of parallel series both titles of which are italicized. Note the placement of the comma before Bulletin to agree with the published title in the last example. Always include the Serial Set Number for congressional publications from that series.

Mason, Otis T.

Stevens, Isaac I.

Osborne, Douglas

22. Published technical report or professional paper—

Kaye, Clifford A.
23. Federal Register and National Register
Advisory Council on Historic Preservation

Council on Environmental Quality

National Park Service

Parker, Patricia, and Thomas King

23. Newspaper, authored article—Include both the date and the volume, issue, and page numbers if known (many papers do not have volume and issue numbers).

Baker, Herbert C.

Cowles, Cheney

24. Article in newspaper, magazine, or journal with no author—

Semi-Weekly East Oregonian

Bonners Ferry Herald
1987 Upfront, the Mystery of the “Chinese Ovens.” Bonners Ferry Herald, 14 June, 97(3):1. Bonners Ferry, ID.

25. Newspaper advertisements—Provide pagination and specific advertiser if available.—

Colfax Gazette
1925 Advertisements for Lang’s Furniture Store. Colfax Gazette, 28 October, 2 November. Colfax, WA.

Riordan, Timothy B.

27. Unpublished dissertation or thesis—Note no italics. (Generally the only non-UMI dissertations in anthropology are from Harvard.)

Corbin, Annalies

28. Unpublished paper presented at a meeting—

Butler, B. Robert

29. Unpublished manuscripts and internal reports—In the last example “1960” is part of the typed title and thus is not redundant. Do not use the redundant “on file at.”

Osborne, Douglas
1948 An Appraisal of the Archaeological Resources of the Ice Harbor, Lower Monumental, Little Goose and Lower Granite Reservoirs, Snake River, Washington. Columbia Basin Project, River Basin Surveys, Smithsonian Institution, Eugene. [This series from the late 1940s and 1950s were mimeographed manuscripts issued in green covers from Eugene, OR, NOT Washington, DC. (JONA 18(2):256–259 has a full listing)]

Ross, Lester A.

Schumacher, Paul J. F.

30. Manuscript, in press—

Bryan, Ed
2008 The Description and Use of Wire Rope for Historical Archaeologists. Historical Archaeology, in press.
31. Unpublished gray literature and contract report—Cite by author(s) or editor(s), date, and title (do not italicize and do not use the redundant “unpublished”), followed by “Report to” agency or company that contracted for the work (with the city) “from” unit and institution or company (with the city) that prepared the report.

Brauner, David R.
1989 The French-Canadian Archaeological Project Willamette Valley, Oregon: Site Inventory. Report to Oregon State Historic Preservation Office, Salem, from Department of Anthropology, Oregon State University, Corvallis.

Minor, Rick, and Stephen Dow Beckham

32. Published gray literature and contract reports—Reports in a named series will have the series title italicized. Carefully check the proper italicization of titles as seen in the example references.

Kenaston, Monte R.

Blukis Onat, Astrida R.

Draper, John A.

33. Primary document—Primary documents and archival manuscripts should be described in a logical sequence. For example from the specific document, to the file, to the collection, to the repository, to the institution, to the city, and to the state or country. In the first example an office holder rather than a named individual is the author. This system is essentially the one suggested by the National Archives but is usable beyond that organization.

Adjutant General, Department of the Columbia
1886 Letter to Commanding Officer, Fort Coeur d’Alene from the Assistant Adjutant General, Department of the Columbia. Ms., Letters and Telegrams Received, Fort Sherman, Idaho, Part V, Entry 8, Box 8, 1886-764, Record Group 393, National Archives, Washington.

Engel, P. M.
Black, Samuel

34. Primary document, unknown date—Use bracketed date, never n.d. when a date is not given on title page but consensus exists for probable date of publication (note uncapitalized descriptive title).

Hector, James

35. Primary documents on microfilm, microform, microfiche, videocassette—

Carlin, William
1887 Letter to Assistant Adjutant General, 15 August. Manuscript, Letters Received, Adjutant General’s Office 1889–1887, Microfilm 689, Roll 533, Frames 349–351, War Department, Main Series, 1881–1889, Record Group 93, National Archives, Washington.

George, Donald
1983 Interview by Lavina Felsman, 15 March. Ms. and audio tape, Coeur d’Alene Tribal Memory Project: Oral History In Coeur d’Alene Language, Tape 2. Coeur d’Alene Education Department, Desmet, ID.

Gibby, Lon, director and writer
1979 Echoes of Yesterday. Donald Ball, producer, 16 mm film and video. Spokane: Creative Audio and Video.

36. Tribal Primary Documents—
Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians

Klamath Tribes and Winema National Forest

Nez Perce Tribal Executive Committee
1970 Resolution No. NP 70-185. Nez Perce Tribal Archives, Lapwai, ID.

37. Legal Documents—Citations referencing legal documents is unique for the field of law, which is not used in most other fields including anthropology. In legal descriptions be careful to distinguish between hyphens (-) and n-dashes (–). Hyphens separate numbers such as in court case numbers (CV 90-286 PA) while n-dashes separate a continuous series such as dates or page numbers (1996–1997; pp. 125–127).

39. Maps, published—

United States Geological Survey (USGS)
40. Electronic sources: general comments—Electronic sources found on the Internet include electronic sites (World-Wide Web, FTP, and Gopher sites and pages) and electronic communications (discussion lists, Usenet Group, and email). Because of the lack of ability to archive original electronic sources, it is incumbent upon scholar’s referencing these sources to maintain a copy of the information as cited in their personal papers, preferably in a public access archive. Electronic sources are referenced using the following basic format:

Author’s last name, first name and initial and <author’s Internet address>
Year Title of site/page, or subject of message <Internet address>, institution, city (if known), and date of site/page creation or update. Email messages are treated the same as personal communications.

41. Discussion Lists—listserv, majordomo, listproc, etc.

ADDITIONAL EXAMPLES OF REGIONAL AND SMITHSONIAN SERIES

Note carefully the variable forms of italicization and changing titles. [yy = last two digits of the year of production.]

Idaho

University of Idaho Anthropological Reports, No. n. Moscow. [No. 84–98 (1985–1997) continued from above, apparently dead]

Occasional Papers of the Idaho State Museum of Natural History, No. n. Pocatello. [1987+]

Tebiwa. A journal with the normal Vol.(No.):pp. [13(2):1–12] except from 1977 to 1981 when it was an irregular series with the use of No. [1 to 23] and place of publication as Pocatello.

Boise State University Archaeological Reports, No. n. Boise.

Washington

Washington State University, Laboratory of Anthropology, Report of Investigations, No. n. Pullman. [1957–1983 (1–80)] Note that the full title was italicized from the beginning in spite of occasional use otherwise. At no time was the use of “Laboratory of Archeology [sic] and Geochronology” ever authorized and should not be used. Some numbers assigned and even given titles by Roald Fryxell but he never wrote them. Apparently dead.

Washington Archaeological Research Center, Project Report, No. n. Pullman. [1973–1980 (1–105).] [The WARC organization was housed at WSU but was state-wide and WSU is never part of the title.]

Central Washington State College [University] Department of Anthropology and Museum of Man Occasional Papers, No. n. Ellensburg. The title for this series is highly variable and not standardized.

Eastern Washington University Reports in Archaeology and History, No. 100-n. Cheney. [The 100 prior to the number is apparently meaningless but is always used.]

Smithsonian Institution

The Smithsonian Institution has unusual formats by convention. Do not use the redundant Smithsonian Institution when listing Bureau of American Ethnology (BAE) publications. The BAE is dead and now controlled by the Department of Anthropology, Smithsonian Institution, Washington. All of the BAE and River Basin Survey (RBS) records are housed in the Anthropological Archives, Smithsonian Institution, Washington.

River Basin Surveys Publications in Salvage Archaeology, No. n. Lincoln.

Smithsonian Institution, River Basin Surveys, Columbia Basin Project, Eugene. [No numbers, no italic, not published in Washington, DC or Lincoln, and emphatically NOT divided into reconnaissance, surveys, etc. as per the confused Lincoln office publication. They were produced in Eugene on the University of Oregon campus but not part of UO.] [For a complete listing of these obscure, mimeographed, green covered reports see JONA (NARN) 18(2):256–259.]

VIII. Final Summary of Things to Check Before Sending Your Manuscript

FOR YOUR MANUSCRIPT TO BE CONSIDERED YOU MUST:

Eliminate all unnecessary formatting.
Eliminate all footnotes and endnotes.
Include final figures and tables.
Include your email address.
DO NOT:

Do not use headers (running heads) or footers.
Do not right justify; flush left only.
Do not center anything.
Do not use forced returns (except at the end of a paragraph).
Do not use hyphens to split words (turn off the automatic hyphen function).
Do not use any hard page ends.
Do not use automatic numbering of a series.
Do not use hanging indents at any time including the references section.
Do not space between paragraphs except before and after “indented” quotes.
Do not indent quotations and the abstract.
Do not use small caps under any circumstances.
Do not use underlining (with one minor exception below), use italic type if appropriate.
Do not use the redundant “see,” “e.g.,” and other Latin terms in references or “see” with figures.

PLEASE DO:

Do use Times Roman (if possible) and absolutely everything in only 12 point.
Do use italic and superscripts and subscripts when appropriate.
Do double space all text, quotes, abstract, references section, and captions (but not tables).
Do indent paragraphs 0.5 in. (an indent is NOT the same as a tab or five spaces).
Do use only “Normal” style (no “Headings,” etc.)
Do indicate short quotations within the text by double quotation marks (").
Do indicate long quotes by setting off with an extra blank line before and after.
Do indent the first line of block quotations only if it is the beginning of a quoted paragraph.
Do use a comma before “and” or “or” in a series of three or more objects, ideas, or phrases.
Do place all commas and periods inside of the final quotation marks.
Do use written ordinal century designations, eighteenth not 18th or 18th.
Do use the full preferred name of authors and editors, not just initials (archaeologists note).
Do spell and punctuate et al. correctly.
Do be sure that your signed name on the copyright form is the same as your name on the article.
Do make sure that all of the ORIGINAL figures are with the manuscript when submitted.
Do be sure that all permissions for figures and personal communications are enclosed.
Do include your home phone and email address with your manuscript.
Do run spell check one last time.
Do keep an exact hard copy of what you send the editor.

FINALLY ! PLEASE DO be absolutely sure that all in-text references are in the References Cited section and that all items in the References Cited section are used in the text. This is the major problem and the most costly of time and funds in the whole copy-editing process.
