Gender-Inclusive Housing Policy Proposal
Submitted to the University Student Life Committee by the Gender-Inclusive Housing Working Group, Fall 2016

Introduction
Given LGBTQIA students’ ongoing feedback to both Housing and the LGBT Center, the charge for the Gender-Inclusive Housing Working Group was to research others institutions’ housing policies for serving transgender and gender non-conforming students and provide a recommendation of which policy to pursue.

At Princeton currently (as of July 2016), about 10% of undergraduate housing has the option to be accessed by mixed gender groups. The standard for this housing is any room configuration that has one more room than it does occupants, or an “n+1 standard.” However, these 10% of rooms are not reserved for mixed gender groups only, so same gender-groups are allowed to access them. Currently, the other 90% of undergraduate housing bed spots are reserved for same-gender groups only.

Additionally, the current rooms which meet the n+1 standard have typically been the most popular rooms resulting in their early selection during Room Draw. This makes securing gender-inclusive housing often challenging for any students who may seek it, and makes it especially stressful for some transgender and gender non-conforming students who may not just desire but have an important need for gender-inclusive housing.

Proposal for adoption in spring 2017
The group researched 16 schools’ policies (see Appendix), and discussed in depth the pros and cons of various options. The policy that the Working Group recommends adopting is:

Students participating in undergraduate room draw (sophomores, juniors and seniors) may select roommate groups of their choosing. Students can choose to live in same-gender or mixed-gender housing configurations. No student will be assigned to a mixed-gender housing group unless they have elected to do so.

Any incoming first year students needing gender-inclusive housing should contact the Housing Office to share what housing needs they have, and Housing will work with Residential College staff to accommodate first year students as well. Graduate students may access gender-inclusive housing by specifying their desire or need on their housing form; almost all graduate housing can be mixed-gender.

Some transgender and gender non-conforming students may have an urgent or safety need for a private bathroom or single-occupancy bathroom near their room. In this case, students must meet

1 We use the term “gender-inclusive housing” to mean Princeton University student housing in which students of any gender mixture can live together, (i.e. non-binary people and cisgender men, cisgender women and cisgender men, trans women and cisgender men etc.).
Housing deadlines for the pre-draw accommodation process. These students will be accommodated, but they may not get their first choice of room or number of roommates.

Application Process for Shared Bath Singles/Private Bathroom Pre-Draw
Adopted Summer 2016, to be shared with students

Application Process

• Online application will go live end of January.
• Deadline for completion is in early February.
• Students who select this accommodation in housing form will be followed up with for a 15-minute meeting with the dean who oversees the accommodations housing process (currently the Assistant Dean of Undergraduate Students) and the Director of LGBT Center or the Manager of Undergraduate Housing, to occur in early February.
  o Conversation will be brief, and insuring that student is in need of this pre-draw process versus being adequately served as part of the general gender-inclusive housing draw.
  o Students are advised that if they qualify, they will be accommodated, but they may not get their first choice of room or number of roommates.
  o Students are advised that people with disabilities and medical accommodations may also be seeking these rooms.
  o Students are advised that often these rooms are either singles or doubles, so they should think about who they might want to room with if they are assigned a double.
• The three administrators noted above (dean who oversees the accommodations housing process, Manager of Undergraduate Housing and Director of LGBT Center) meet to check in on applications and make pre-draw placements for students who applied and qualify.
• Final decisions will be made by the dean and Manager of Undergraduate Housing, with input from the Director of LGBT Center.
• Students will be informed of decision by end of February, and assignments are final.

Criteria for Obtaining Shared Bath Singles/Private Bathroom Pre-Draw
Adopted Summer 2016, to be followed by Housing staff

• Main consideration is student need and safety. If a student, especially a transgender or gender non-conforming student, feels unsafe or that a multi-stall restroom does not meet their needs, we will accommodate them with either a room that has a private bathroom (single occupancy or shared bath single) or a room that is near to a single-occupancy bathroom.
• Review process should not focus in any way on “verifying” a student’s trans or gender non-conforming identity. We will trust that students are who they say they are, and an assessment of their identity will not be part of the decision-making process.
• No medical documentation is required, but if students would like to include any, they are welcome to provide this documentation to the dean who oversees the accommodations/special-needs housing process. The dean would determine the need for consultation with other University offices.
• These students will be accommodated, but they may not get their first choice of room or number of roommates.
• Final decisions will be made by the dean responsible for overseeing the accommodations housing process and Manager of Undergraduate Housing, with input from the Director of LGBT Center. Contracts will be issued by the Housing office after all interviews with students are complete, and the assignments will be final.
