LETTER FROM THE ARTISTIC DIRECTOR

Zora came onto my radar in 2018 through a process that has introduced Page 73 to most of the playwrights we’ve worked with: our annual application to the Page 73 playwright development programs.

Zora’s application included ten pages from STEW, an excerpt so vivid I can remember where I was sitting when I read it. The full draft revealed a subtly theatrical structure. Zora creates the cozy sense of eavesdropping on family from the next room, all the while holding you captive to the threat of overhearing something you wish you hadn’t.

Our application process had once again introduced us to a great talent, and so we welcomed Zora into our 2019 Interstate 73 writers group and brought her to two weeklong summer writing retreats. Following a successful workshop of STEW at our Summer Residency in August, we asked Zora for the honor of producing the play’s world premiere.

Since then, Zora has found a partner in director Colette Robert, whose facility with new plays allies her strongly with Page 73 and our playwrights. Colette assembled an ace team of designers and the incredible cast of Portia, Kristin Dodson, Toni Lachelle Pollitt, and Nikkole Salter. Zora’s vision of the Tucker women cooking together in Mama’s kitchen now lives richly onstage thanks to their artistry.

Thank you for joining us at Zora Howard’s Off-Broadway debut. I trust, like me, you’ll eagerly await everything that lies ahead for this remarkably talented woman.

Michael Walkup
Artistic Director

P.S. The free application for the 2021 Playwriting Fellowship and 2021 Interstate 73 writers group is now open through April 5th at page73.org/apply.
ABOUT PAGE 73

Page 73 is an incubator for new plays. We introduce the most talented playwrights to the American theatre with our own productions, like STEW, A Strange Loop, and Catch as Catch Can, and through fellowships and workshops that ready plays for debuts at peer theaters. Check out the inside front cover of this program for a list of productions by Page 73 playwrights on stage in New York this spring.

PAGE 73 is devoted to giving rising playwrights their first New York productions — its alumni include Samuel D. Hunter, Quiara Alegría Hudes, Heidi Schreck, Clare Barron, and Max Posner — and with [Mia] Chung it has struck gold again. Catch as Catch Can is what off Broadway theater can be at its best.”
