THE SEATTLE TRANSGENDER FILM FESTIVAL

MAY
9 - 12
2013

AT NORTHWEST FILM FORUM
I am super excited to welcome you to the EIGHTH ANNUAL TRANSLATIONS: THE SEATTLE TRANSGENDER FILM FESTIVAL!

Film is such a powerful medium. As gender-variant people, recognizing ourselves on-screen and being able to relate to the characters is unbelievably affirming. Translations offers a space to celebrate, honor, mourn, learn, grow, relate, cry, empathize, accept, laugh... It is a space that we can excitedly return to each year to keep tabs on this EVER-SHIFTING AND BEAUTIFULLY EVOLVING COMMUNITY. It offers visibility, community building, and education, and it’s an opportunity to strengthen alliances among people of all genders.

We are thrilled with this year’s lineup of amazing films from 11 countries with two highlighted tracks that run throughout: TRANSGENDER SEXUALITY and FAMILY. In the first, we examine the intersection of gender variance, transition, relationships, and sexuality with a number of provocative films and a free panel, TALKING DIRTY: DISCUSSING TRANSGENDER SEXUALITY AND MOVIES. The second track centers around GROWING TOGETHER, a collection of short films that explore the tricky process of navigating families and cultures and being true to ourselves. Please check the “Highlights” page for a handy guide to all the films in these tracks!

Again, WELCOME TO TRANSLATIONS! I sincerely hope your festival experience is full of these special moments of self-recognition and connection, not to mention a lot of fun!

See you at the movies!

Sam Berliner / Festival Director
GENDER FAILURE  7:15 PM

Two of Canada’s most treasured and celebrated trans artists, Ivan Coyote and Rae Spoon, present their acclaimed multimedia show “Gender Failure,” featuring animation and video elements from Seattle artist Clyde Petersen. Through visuals, words, sounds, and original music, “Gender Failure” explores and exposes the prolific pair’s failed attempts at fitting into the gender binary—and ultimately how the gender binary doesn’t add up. Equal parts hilarious and heartbreaking, Coyote brings her razor-sharp timing and powerful narrative, while Spoon adds an ethereal voice and poetic turns of phrase to the dynamic duo’s now seven-year-old artistic partnership.

COPRESENTED BY GENDER ODYSSEY.
IT GETS BETTER  7:00 PM

(Tanwarin Sukhapisit; 2012; Thailand; 99 min; In Thai with English subtitles) Transgender filmmaker Tanwarin Sukhapisit creates an authentic and moving film with three intertwined story lines that grow increasingly tighter as the drama progresses. The alluring Saitan, a middle-aged transwoman on a road trip; the timid Din, found dancing in women’s clothes by his father; and the dashing Tonmai, who’s returned to Thailand from the States, are all connected through the Fountain Bar, a “ladyboy” cabaret that Tonmai has inherited from a father he never knew. Gorgeous scenery, spectacular performances, and entertaining club routines complement the message behind the stark realities of relationships, family, and seeking acceptance: it does get better.

CONTAINS BRIEF VIOLENCE. COPRESENTED BY SEATTLE COUNSELING SERVICE.
SHE MALE SNAILS 9:30 PM

(Ester Martin Bergsmark; Sweden, Denmark; 2012; 72 min.; in Swedish, with English subtitles.) A visually intoxicating mix of experimental documentary and poetic narrative, SHE MALE SNAILS explores the interaction between a person’s aspirations and the expectations of others. What began as a portrait of transgender author Eli Leven becomes a more stylized exploration, as Leven and director Bergsmark share memories of being caught between two genders, the desire for sexual identity, and the power of being able to express oneself through art. Having won awards and acclaim for its provocative visual style, this deeply personal film is a groundbreaking work of reality and fantasy.

CONTAINS BRIEF BDSM SCENE.

PLAYING WITH: GOLD MOON, SHARP ARROW (Malic Amalya and Max Garnet; 2012; US; 12 min.) This avant-garde 16mm film shot in the Seattle area starring local activists, artists, musicians, and scholars takes a queered look at the 1963 Milgram obedience experiment, investigating power dynamics in the queer community and issues of assimilation, coercion, and trauma.

PLUS: IN JERUSALEM (Kerem Blumberg; 2011; Israel; 5 min.) A nonverbal mating dance between two gender nonconformists leads to an adventure.
TOO COLD OUT THERE WITHOUT YOU

(Amy Gattie; 2012; US; 80 min.)
Follow Rev. Christopher Fike as he navigates his transition and examines how his roles as a priest and parent have evolved. This documentary captures the existential crises of those close to Chris: a family and church trying to balance unconditional love with tumultuous reactions to profound change. Chris’s personal journey strengthens his capacity to support his two children recently diagnosed with bipolar disorder and Asperger’s syndrome, and it encourages us all to envision new ways of thinking about belonging. This uplifting film celebrates community, connectedness, and love cultivated through resiliency and compassion.

TURNING

(Charles Atlas; 2011; US; 76 min.) “A sensual and moving exploration of femininity and the basic desire of belonging,” TURNING is an examination of the critically acclaimed European touring collaboration of musician Antony Hegarty (of the renowned band Antony and the Johnsons) and videographer Charles Atlas, featuring 13 remarkable women, most of whom are transgender or queer. While Antony performs enchanting melodies, each woman is profiled as a video portraiture unfurls behind her. Intimate and inspiring behind-the-scenes interviews create a fascinating cinematic experience that reveals themes of identity, transcendence, and (as Antony reminds the entourage) “dignity and beauty.”

PLAYING WITH: CRY BOY CRY (Chris Vargas; 2012; US; 5 min.) FTM artist Chris Vargas utilizes a video collage of San Francisco artists, activists, and karaoke juxtaposed with the original video of Bronski Beat’s 1984 anthem “Smalltown Boy” to reveal the lyrics’ still-resonant message.
GENDER REVOLUTIONARIES: SHORT FILMS 4:30 PM

From repurposed Annie tunes, to acts of kindness in unlikely places, to a real life Australian queen of the desert, these gender-queer shorts pack a revolutionary punch!

COPRESENTED BY INGERSOLL GENDER CENTER.

LITTLE ORPHAN GENDER REVOLUTIONARY ANNIE (Ezra Nepon, Kate Sorensen, and Niknaz Tavakolian; 2012; US; 14 min.) Annie transforms a beloved classic by queering familiar tunes, thereby challenging the gender binary, conformity, and trans* identity in this DIY four-act musical production.

TOILET (Kerem Blumberg; 2012; Israel; 6 min.) What’s a genderqueer to do when the usual restroom of choice is occupied?

DOS ALMAS (Danielle Villegas; 2013; US; 16 min.) In 1860, a mestiza woman finds herself alone in the remote wilderness. Posing as a man, she encounters a native woman who introduces her to another life.

GENDERFREAK (Rebecca Louisell; 2012; US; 19 min.) Rachel, the awkward, straight high school girl with a bunch of queer friends, just got off on the wrong foot with Sammy, the genderqueer transfer student. Will they become rivals, band mates, or something more?

QUEEN OF THE DESERT (Alex Kelly; 2012; Australia; 27 min.) Each year, Starlady brings her mobile hair salon from Alice Springs, Australia, to a remote village in the outback, providing makeovers to the youth of the village and successfully bridging communities with hair dye and an endless supply of patience.
WILDNESS 7:00 PM

(Wu Tsang; 2012; US; 74 min.; in Spanish and English, with English subtitles) What happens when the safe spaces in our community start to go mainstream? Since 1963, the Silver Platter, a historic bar near MacArthur Park, has been a thriving center of underground nightlife for the Latin LGBT immigrant communities in Los Angeles. After the media caught wind of the immense popularity of a weekly dance/performance art party called Wildness (whose organizers include director Wu Tsang), a new hipster audience, police surveillance, and deportations threatened this long-established sanctuary. In this creative documentary, the bar itself becomes a character, exploring the effects of fame on its patrons. COPRESENTED BY GENDER JUSTICE LEAGUE

PLAYING WITH: NATALIE (Kerem Blumberg; 2011; Israel; 10 min.) “If I were a boy, what kind of boy would I be?” Natalie Dobkin performs subversive and raunchy drag shows under the name “Alte-Igor.” CONTAINS SEXUAL IMAGES.
SEXING THE TRANSMAN

(Buck Angel; 2012; US; 71 min.) What is the intersection of transition and sexuality? What are the specific issues for transmen, and how are these complicated by hormones and/or surgeries? This steamy, cutting-edge documentary by self-proclaimed "politically incorrect" FTM porn star Buck Angel takes you into the romantic lives of a dozen FTM transmen and their partners, who explicitly reveal their bodies and frankly discuss their sexualities in relation to their transitions. Featuring interviews with Lucas Silveira, Ian Harvie, Margaret Cho, and others, this award-winning film provides an honest and much-needed springboard for dialogue on transman sexuality that can’t be found anywhere else. THIS PROGRAM CONTAINS SEXUALLY EXPLICIT MATERIAL.

COPRESENTED BY QUEER SOCIAL CLUB

PLAYING WITH: THE CONFESSION OF FATHER JOHN THOMAS (Elka Kerkhofs; 2011; Australia; 5 min.) A lighthearted animation about the "down under" from Down Under. Father John Thomas is a man of the cloth in a world where men are penises and women are vaginas...literally. His confession to God could change everything.

PLUS: FUCK / TALK (Courtney Trouble; 2013; US; 8 min.) Dyke and trans*-identified Hayley Fingersmith and trans*-identified Jacques LeFemme discuss gender and queerness, while showing us just how hot gender fucking can be. In true Queer Porn TV style, genderqueer artist Courtney Trouble produces graphic content specially made for Translations that you won’t want to miss!
GROWING TOGETHER: SHORT FILMS  12:30 PM

Bring friends and allies to this collection of shorts that explore the tricky process of navigating families and cultures, being true to ourselves, and asking the question: by growing together, can we find common ground?

CO-PRESENTED BY PFLAG BELLEVUE

PAPA’S BOY (Leevi Lemmetty; 2010; Finland, UK; 3 min.) An animated short about a mouse who wants to win his father’s approval, despite a hidden dream of being a ballet dancer.

OSCILLARE (Lauren Feiring; 2011; US; 9 min.) A grainy, first-person narrative about life in the high desert of Southern California’s Inland Empire. Alyson struggles with both parenthood and gender expression, while living two lives and attempting to find happiness and a safe place to be herself. CONTAINS BRIEF ADULT LANGUAGE.

A LITTLE BIT COUNTRY (Amy Coop; 2012; UK; 7 min.) This teenager’s parents are horrified to walk in on him while he is engrossed in his secret stash of... country music and cowboy clothes. CONTAINS BRIEF ADULT IMAGES.

PERFORMING GIRL (Crescent Diamond; 2013; US; 25 min.) In this creative documentary, the intersection of queer/trans identity and a traditional family provides fodder for a clever and hilarious show by Sri Lankan performance artist, activist, and comedian D’Lo.

AKIN (Chase Joynt; 2012; Canada; 9 min.) A letter from a son to his mother, written in pictures and glimpses into the past. A tale of hope that says, “even though I’ve changed, I’m still like you.”

BLUE (Keir Wilkins; 2012; Australia; 14 min.) Why are some people blue? They aren’t, of course. Except that they are, and that fact changes everything for Belle. Can she discover the secret of how it feels to be blue inside?

PERFECT IN MY IMPERFECTIONS (Julia Parnell; 2012; New Zealand; 22 min.) Amanaki, a Tongan choreographer, prepares a dance for her family and community, seeking acceptance of her identity as fakaleiti, a traditional cultural role akin to Western transgender identity.
In this year’s festival, we’ve included films that deal explicitly with sex on screen along with the relationships, negotiations, and issues that are unique to the transgender community. How do desires, bodies, and our sense of sexual self evolve with the addition of hormones and/or surgeries? In what ways is this different for those who do not or cannot access physical transition? We’ll address these questions, look at some of the ways sexuality in the transgender community has been represented in movies, and discuss the accuracies and fallacies in that medium. Moderated by Sam Berliner. Panelist Info on the website.

4:30 PM  ROMEOS
(Sabine Bernardi; 2011; Germany; 94 min; in German with English subtitles) This hit from SLGFF follows Lukas, a young transgender man, as he moves to Cologne to study and work in the big city. His best friend Ina introduces Lukas to her gay friends. At a wild party, he meets Fabio, who brims with self-confidence, overt masculinity, and smoldering sensuality. As their attraction to one another grows, Lukas grapples with the desire to share himself fully with Fabio and the fear that his reality could cost him the relationship and acceptance of his friends. Director Sabine Bernardi uses sincerity and humor to turn this unconventional romance into a tale of love, friendship, and courage.

Playing With: I <3 Boys  (Renae Barnard; 2012; US; 3 min.) What’s your brand of masculinity? A snapshot of a brand one <3 demands.

Plus: W and Z  (Emil Ray and Ronny Almag; 2012; Israel; 15 min.) Is there something deeper than the labels we appear to bear? Discuss.
7:15 PM  MELTING AWAY
(Doron Eran; 2011; Israel; 86 min.; in Hebrew, with English subtitles) When Assaf’s parents discover women’s clothing under the teen’s mattress, they kick him out of the house. Four years later, with Assaf’s father dying from cancer, his mother hires a private detective to find Assaf. The investigator instead finds Anna (Chen Yanni, nominated for an Israeli Oscar), a Tel Aviv cabaret singer, who seems uninterested in a reunion but later contrives a plan to secretly visit her family. Winner of the Audience Choice Award for Best Feature at the 2013 Seattle and Boston Jewish film festivals, this groundbreaking drama explores the depths of family ties and the meaning of forgiveness. CONTAINS SCENES OF VIOLENCE.
COPRESENTED BY THE SEATTLE JEWISH FILM FESTIVAL AND LAMBERT HOUSE.

PLAYING WITH: BEYOUTIFUL (Hsin Pei Liu; 2012; US; 4 min.) In this animated world, all the construction paper blobs present themselves in one of two highly gendered ways. What does a non-binary construction paper blob have to do to fit in?
