

Travis Crim

Bio

Engaging audiences around the country for over twenty years, Travis Crim animates the stage with energy, humor and a genuine love for Christ and people. An Alabama native based in Southern California, Travis splits time on the road as a speaker and comedian for various ministries while managing writing, acting, and producing interests in Los Angeles.

Travis' initial speaking opportunities came while playing football at The University of Alabama. He would go on to serve as the student director at a local church in Tuscaloosa before his time as an itinerant communicator and entertainer.

His experience includes stints with Compassion International, World Vision, Cru, FCA, JH Ranch and Outback America in addition to a variety of corporate organizations.

Travis also serves as CEO of Myfam Group, Inc., an application-based company focused on helping parents engage with their teens. "Connecting Families in a Disconnected Generation", myfam provides face-to-face, spiritually significant experiences designed to increase family interconnectivity.

He and his wife Delaine have three children: daughters Ginsyn and Taegan, and their son Syllas.
