100+WWC Door County
Marketing & PR
August 2019

I'm a native Wisconsinite who retired to Door County in the fall of 2018 after a global career in technical sales, marketing, and customer support. Between the natural resources, friendly people, and family close by, Door County was a great place to make our new home.

I was looking to make a difference in the community and meet new friends. When I heard first about 100+ Women Who Care, it was this combination that attracted me. With 100+WWC, the impact of my $100 becomes so much more! It's a great forum to learn about Door County nonprofit services and discuss local challenges while meeting extraordinary people.

The 100+WWC values community input, impact and all philanthropic efforts by members and nonprofits. I'm proud to be one of the women who care.
