Pinewood Derby Comes To Bradford

Nascar? Indianapolis 500? Those events paled in comparison to the racing action seen at the Cub Scout Pack 69 Pinewood Derby. The Derby is a competition where Cub and Webelo scouts design, build, and compete with their own racing cars.

The race, which was held before a packed crowd in the Bradford First Baptist Church on April 5, took place on a 32-foot wooden track with an electronic finish line. Four “heats” served to narrow down the competition. First place went to Robert Paine of Bradford. Second Place went to Kyle Wallace of Newbury. Third Place went to Brad Julian of Bradford. However, everyone was a winner and each participant received an award and a “drivers license for the derby.”

Many thanks to all who contributed. Our certificate award judges were Joyce Teele and Tommy Pitts, and our line judges were Kevin Rowe, Lynn Wallace, and Laurie Dunlap. A special thank you also goes to the Raymond Cub Scout Pack who generously loaned us the use of their wonderful track and accessories.

If anyone is interested in signing up for Cub Scouts (first grade and above), contact David Leathers at 456-2597.

Jason Lalla adds to medal collection

Bradford native Jason Lalla participated in the alpine events at the Salt Lake 2002 Paralympics, March 8–16. As a member of the US Disabled Ski Team, he won a Silver Medal in the Men’s Giant Slalom, and a Bronze Medal in the Men’s Downhill at Snowbasin. Following the Paralympics, Jason went on to Nationals at Big Sky, Montana March 26–29. In his class, Men’s Standups, he placed 2nd in Downhill (Silver), 3rd (Bronze) in Super G, 4th in Giant Slalom, and 2nd (Silver) in Slalom. He was awarded 1st place overall of three classes (mono-skiers, blind and standups). On April 22 the USDST traveled to the White House to meet with President Bush.

Lalla’s story is included in a new book just released, Alpine Achievement - A Chronicle of the United States Disabled Ski Team by Lori J. Batcheller. This is the first and only book to fully cover the sport of disabled alpine skiing. It is an enjoyable read and a wonderful resource, a historical perspective with stories of athletes’ adjustment to their disability and their experiences training for and skiing with the US Disabled Ski Team.

The fire next time?

April was the sort of month that made it hard not to talk about the weather. From temperatures in the 90s mid-month to an earthquake on the 20th, to two snow storms just when we thought the black flies would be out for sure. While it is beyond the scope of the Bridge’s mission to make predictions for May, we suggest that Bradford residents be prepared...for anything!
Selectmen's Update

The street sign selection "contest" we promised at the Town Meeting is over. We had a nice response and the vote is being tallied. We will announce the results in next month's Bridge.

The two new trucks for the Public Works Department have been ordered as has the cruiser for the Police Department. We were able to get a new, year 2000 cruiser for a savings of approximately $700 per year on the lease. That money will be turned back to the General Fund and will be part of Surplus next year.

Selectman Bruce Edwards is working closely with the Road Committee. He and the committee are in the process of searching for an engineering company that will develop plans for the drainage projects on High and Main Streets that taxpayers approved at Town Meeting. They are also setting up a priority schedule for paving projects.

Our newest Selectman, Peter Fenton, is "learning the ropes" so to speak. Pete has been very busy at the office asking questions, reading, and taking on jobs with enthusiasm.

A comment about the Property Inventory Forms, which are required to be filled out by all property owners: the Board of Selectmen wants to thank all the property owners who faithfully returned them to the Town Hall. It will save the town money in the long run and is part of the continuing assessment process. A few property owners are late in turning them in. Unfortunately, RSA 74:7-a requires that a penalty be assessed. The statute reads, "The penalty will consist of 1% of the property tax, not less than $10 nor more than $50." The forms were due April 15, and the selectmen have no authority to extend that deadline. The penalty will be applied to the second half of this year's tax bill.

Well, let us hope that the snow is over with, and let us all enjoy the flowers that are sure to come.

—Dick Vitale, Chairman, Board of Selectman

Fresh Air Fund Hosts Needed

The Fresh Air Fund is seeking host families in the Warner-New London-Hillsborough area from July 10 through 24 for disadvantaged children from New York City. Last year 23 children from six to twelve years old enjoyed the simple pleasures of country living: the sound of peepers, the smell of fresh cut grass, swimming in a lake, or just playing with the family dog. Host families can request a boy or girl and a specific age. There are no financial requirements—just a bed and an extra place at the table. “It has been a wonderful experience for our family, especially our children. It gives us a new perspective and helps us appreciate all we have here and take for granted,” said Joyce Foley, a longtime host. “It’s not hard hosting a child. What’s hard is saying good-bye when the two weeks are over.”

If you would like information on becoming a host, please call Joyce Foley at 456–3279.

Youth Baseball season opens

Over 150 enthusiastic children were rostered onto Bradford-Newbury-Sutton Youth Sports baseball and softball teams that will start play on May 1st. We have a total of 11 teams this year, adding a third t-ball team and a second girls' softball team, coached respectively by Scott Hill and Brian Gaskell. I would like to thank all the parents that cared enough about their child's interest in baseball/softball to help make field clean-up day a huge success. The fields have never looked so good! New infield was laid at the elementary school and at Brown-Shattuck. Although I cannot thank everyone individually, I would like to extend a huge THANK YOU to the following for the use of their heavy equipment; Jim Pickman, Jim Allen, and Rick Alibrandi of Bradford, and Chris Rowe of Sutton. Also for their ALL-DAY efforts; Dennis Hankins, Rob Messer, Steve Hansen, and Faye Torro. This program would not work without the volunteer hours/efforts of many adults!

I would like to acknowledge the generosity of Al Rogers of Bible Hill Road for donating new bases, a home plate, and a pitching rubber for the Babe Ruth field. Finally, I am grateful to Andy Turgeon, (former officer of the Bradford Police Department) for making quick arrests of the juveniles who vandalized the dugouts at Brown-Shattuck the day after they were repainted as part of field clean-up day. Let the games begin—come watch a ball game!

Baseball/Softball Director

Thistle & Shamrock Inn

BUTTERMILK BAKED EGGS

Our Inn guests love these! They take just a few minutes to prepare but the flavor is wonderful and is a nice change for a leisurely breakfast.

For each serving you will need:

- a 1 cup ramekin or custard cup
- ½ piece of buttered toast, cut in ½-inch squares
- 2 eggs, cracked in a bowl
- ½ cup buttermilk

Generously butter the ramekin. Place the toast in the bottom. Gently pour in the eggs and cover them with the buttermilk. Bake in a 400°F oven (I use my toaster oven) for 8–10 minutes. A little fresh cracked pepper or some finely chopped herbs over the top really bring out the flavors. Enjoy!

Then...

by Milly Kittredge

On May 10, 1979, with the beginning of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, this article on evacuation plans in case of nuclear war or a power plant accident by Michael Knight of the New York Times came as a surprise to Bradford residents.

“Tom and Woody Best’s 12-room country inn here is listed in the official government evacuation plan as the site to receive 498 refugees. Within hours after an order goes out to leave New England’s major population centers because of a threatened nuclear war or a major atomic power plant accident, another 90 persons are supposed to find their way to Champ Wright’s unheated junk shop here... And 120 people...will...show up at the beauty parlor that Dorothy Brown maintains in her home. Two million residents will be urged to flee cities for rural New Hampshire. Bradford is supposed to get 4, 550 of them.”

Mrs. Best said she didn’t know anything about it, but she guessed they could help if necessary. Champ, who was busy loading a beat-up truck with the kind of rusted metal objects that summer tourists often buy, had never heard of the plan, adding: “I’m not one to turn anyone out in the street. But the place is so full of junk already you can’t get 20 customers in there on a summer afternoon.”

How Mrs. Brown would respond is not known, since her reaction to unannounced visitors is to unleash her large and aggressive Airedale and bolt her door. The NH civil defense planner said, “the only reason we are doing this is because it is better than nothing. ...It will be a year...before we get around to telling these people [about it].”

And that’s only the West Main Street area (the Thistle and Shamrock, Pugliese/White’s on High Street, and Carr’s Store). There were another 27 listings, with no private homes on the list. Just a thought when the Route 103 maintenance project starts.

Covers Cooperators Needed:
Volunteers Working for Wildlife

Are you interested in helping protect New Hampshire’s wildlife? Are you an enthusiastic person, involved in your community? Do you manage your own land to help wildlife? Are you concerned about the loss of wildlife habitat in New Hampshire? If you answered “Yes” to any of these questions, we need you! The New Hampshire Coverts Project is looking for applicants for the 2002 Coverts Workshop and you may be just who we are looking for.

The eighth annual New Hampshire Coverts Project Workshop will be held September 4–7, 2002 at Sargent Camp in Hancock, NH. Trainees are needed to learn about wildlife habitat and land stewardship. Anyone interested is invited to complete an application.

The name of the project, “Covers” (pronounced “cover” with a “c”), is from the name for a thicket that provides shelter for wildlife. The term symbolizes the project’s goal of enhancing, restoring, and conserving habitat for the rich diversity of native wildlife in New Hampshire. Trained volunteer for the Coverts Project, called “Covers Cooperators,” help educate the public on how sound forest management practices can enhance wildlife habitat. Each fall for the past seven years, 25 selected Covers Cooperators have joined a team of natural resource professionals in a rustic setting in New Hampshire. Room and board is provided, along with a selection of reference materials, all free. For three and a half days participants learn about the latest concepts and issues in wildlife and forest ecology, habitat management, land conservation, community conservation planning, and effective outreach. In return, Coverts Cooperators agree to return to their communities and share what they’ve learned and motivate others to become stewards of the state’s forests and wildlife habitats.

The program has successfully trained 168 Coverts Cooperators who live throughout the state. Landowners, doctors, retired college professors, teachers, business people, and local policy makers represent some of the Coverts family. Coverts Cooperators are making a difference for New Hampshire’s wildlife and their habitats by managing habitat, promoting a land stewardship ethic, initiating community conservation planning, and protecting land. UNH Cooperative Extension coordinates the program in partnership with N.H. Fish and Game, N.H. Division of Forests and Lands, The Ruffed Grouse Society, and the U.S. Forest Service State and Private Forestry. To request an application (deadline is June 15, 2002), e-mail Malin Ely Clyde (UNH Cooperative Extension) at malin.clyde@unh.edu or call 862-2166.

Real Estate Hints: The New Hot Issue: MOLD
by Laura Hallahan

Five years ago you would be hard pressed to find a real estate transaction that was affected by mold. But mold is getting more and more attention, so much so that the Sunapee Region Board of Realtors is going to have a mold expert come talk to our members as have other boards around the state. You may also have heard that Ed McMahon, Johnny Carson's sidekick for so many years, is suing his insurance company because his mansion was full of mold and everyone in the house was getting sick.

The first thing to know is that mold exists everywhere, all of the time and usually does not bother anyone. It can, however, be a problem for people who are unusually sensitive to it and they may develop respiratory problems upon exposure. Black mold seems to be an even greater culprit, making some people very ill. Though mold can be found anywhere, it is particularly fond of dark, moist areas such as dirty heating ducts. A leaking roof can also lead to mold problems. Many schools across the country are reporting issues with mold. One New Jersey school had to shut down when mold was found in a dirt floor crawl space underneath the classrooms. A Houston school battled mold for well over a year, sealing leaky windows, repairing the heating system, replacing some carpet, and installing dehumidifiers. Dehumidifiers can cause their own problems, too, if they are not cleaned carefully and regularly; stagnant water is a breeding ground for mold.

Landlords need to be vigilant about the mold issue and repair problems before they get worse. Tenants should report any potential problems to the landlord as soon as possible. Realtors and home inspectors need to learn about this issue and understand how it can affect sellers and buyers. Homeowners must be encouraged to disclose any mold problem that they are aware of in order to avoid a sale falling through or even worse, a lawsuit. Buyers need to really look a house over and tell their home inspector to check for any mold problems as well.

If you think you have a mold problem, contact an indoor air quality expert or the Department of Environmental Services in Concord. Once confirmed, make sure you use a company that has experience in mold removal and that you keep a record and receipt of any work done to show that it was done correctly and to protect yourself when you go to sell your house.

“Escape from your world; watch a movie!”
April Selectmen’s Minutes excerpts

April 2. Police Chief James Kirby introduced Tom Geyer to the selectmen. Selectmen signed the appointment of Mr. Geyer to the position of part-time officer. Selectmen also commended Aaron Sparks in his completion of training at the police academy. Mr. Sparks is now a certified full-time officer.

Ms. Tramontossi of the Department of Revenue Administration (DRA) met with selectmen to discuss this year’s equalization figures. The town recently completed a complete revaluation and our rate was at 100%.

Conservation Commission met with the selectmen to discuss the culvert work being done on East Washington Road near the Bradford Bog. Ann Eldridge requested the selectmen have the Road Agent check the silt fence on both sides of the road which is in need of repair and assure that it is securely placed. Other conditions of the wetlands permit need to be addressed such as stone placement on both sides of the road and additional installation of culverts. Eldridge and Brooks Mc Candlish also discussed the finalizing of the Class VI Road policy additions submitted to the selectmen earlier this year. Selectmen Vitale explained that he has contacted the Zoning Board Chairman for his input. Mr. Vitale then gave the Commission copies of the comments to date on the policy. He indicated he wished to explore some items further and will contact the commission with the final version. The final discussion related to the intent to cut wood filings of James Bibbo. The Conservation Commission reviews all the intents. A wetland permit is necessary for the property of Pedrotti. Additionally, the town will require a road bond on Deer Valley Road. Cheryl will contact Mr. Bibbo to inform him of the necessary paperwork.

Bruce Edwards reported on the Road Committee meeting with SEA Consultants on Wednesday, March 27. The committee recommended to the selectmen that the option for the longer bridge be accepted.

April 10. Roll Call: Dick Vitale, Chairman; Bruce Edwards, Selectman; Peter Fenton, Selectman.

Town Personnel: Cheryl Behr, Administrative Assistant; Chief of Police, James Kirby.

Meeting was called to order at 10:00am. Selectmen met with Chief Kirby to discuss the installation of the time clocks and the procedure for their use. Selectmen will meet with the Highway Department in the next few days to review the same procedures with them.

Selectmen discussed the issues regarding a subdivision on Cheney Hill Road with the Chief and asked his opinions on signage.

The chief updated the selectmen on the interviewing for secretary and full-time police officer. Two candidates have been interviewed for secretary with one more applicant to review. The chief will set up a hiring board and physical test for the full-time officer position. Salary scales were discussed. Payment of officers in the part-time academy was mentioned.

Bruce Edwards contacted SEA Consultant Mike Croteau regarding the scope of the next Fairgrounds Road Bridge. The scope will include the remediation of the intersection with Pleasant View Road.

April 16. Bernard Lamach met with selectmen to discuss the issue of road improvements to Cheney Hill Road and his water supply. Mr. Lamach reported deeds from 1892 reserving his use of spring water located on either side of Cheney Hill Road. Two collectors gravity feed water to a cistern in his basement. The Highway crew has problems plowing the roads with the location of one of the collectors. Mr. Lamach has requested the selectmen resolve the problem by clearing a new area for a collector and installing well tile and cap to protect his source of water. Bruce Edwards reported on conversation with the Road Committee suggesting a new well be drilled for Lamach to eliminate the problem of the line under the road and possible contamination by lead pipe. Lamach is concerned with the possible loss of access to the water, and is content with the current quality and volume of water he has now. Lamach has had water continually during his ownership of the property with the exception of a broken water line that was damaged when the town crew was cleaning culverts. Alan Clark, a resident of Cheney Hill Road, also had comments. Clark had suggestions for realigning the intersection. Mr. Vitale suggested he submit his suggestions in writing. Selectmen will examine all the information concerning the road prior to making any changes. Selectmen asked input from Arnold Anderson, Road Agent, regarding culverts and other necessary repairs. Mr. Anderson suggested contacting Leonard Wheeler regarding wells in that area. The question of installing stop signs was raised and the decision to install the signs was made. No other road decisions were made.

Keith Stebbings met with selectmen on the same issue – Cheney Hill Road. Mr. Stebbings presented a proposal to the selectmen. Selectmen will review and make decision.

George Bibbo met with selectmen to discuss his plans for logging on Deer Valley Road. Wetland permits, road bonds, and other forestry-related information were discussed.

Selectmen discussed a letter prepared by Dick Vitale, regarding the increased traffic on High and Main Street with the Rte. 103 repairs. Bruce Edwards suggested placing the Craftsman’s Fair signs at exit 10 this year instead of exit 9 (Warner).

Bruce Edwards requested Cheryl prepare a list of engineering firms used by the town in the past, to send letters inviting proposals for design of the East Main Street drainage project.

Selectmen have decided to use the second meeting of the month as a staff meeting with the Chief of Police and Road Agent.

The legislative session is winding down as candidates ready for the upcoming election season. Concord is awash with would-be candidates making tentative bids for all elective seats and many considering a run for the Presidency in ’04. No politician visits New Hampshire without having their political aspirations questioned because this is the testing ground and must-win state for political hopefuls.

At the local level, we continue to struggle around issues of taxation and the still-unresolved problem of finding a fair and equitable formula for school funding. There are three choices being considered by various candidates for Governor that are being touted at campaign stops around the state. These are: a constitutional amendment to remove the Supreme Court from the legislative process, a broad-based tax such as sales or income, or the continuing use of the always-increasing statewide property tax that creates a system of donor versus recipient town.

Several candidates have promised to rid the state of the statewide property tax and, indeed, the House, with bipartisan support, passed a bill eliminating the tax by putting a sunset clause in the current bill as of January 2004. This would have left a hole in the budget with no funding mechanism for education and the next legislature would have to choose a new funding source. The Senate killed this bill but school funding will certainly dominate the next session as it has the last five. When you hear candidates promise "no more taxes" or "return the schools to local control", it may sound as though we are magically taking care of all our budgetary concerns without taxation but that is not the case. Those strategies would return taxation to local towns, a system that has pitted wealthy towns against poorer towns for many years and has resulted in a discrepancy in educational quality throughout the state that the Supreme Court, in the Claremont decision, has declared unconstitutional. Unconstitutional? Some candidates address this issue by promising the passage of a constitutional amendment that would remove the Supreme Court’s authority to weigh in on this issue and would upset the checks and balances of power among the three branches of government that keep any one branch of government from dominating another. I will continue to support an equitable tax system based on one’s ability to pay their fair share without burdening the local taxpayer with property tax increases that are an enormous and unaffordable burden to our citizens.

The next session should be very interesting and you will note a sort of deja vu as familiar themes reappear in the legislature. School funding, the environment, gun control, women’s issues, accountability for schools, and financing of county facilities will share the stage with proposed changes in the judicial system that have been highlighted since the impeachment hearings. We will also be addressing themes around the tremendous growth in population in New Hampshire that is expected in the next ten years and how that growth will impact on our environment and economy.

It is always encouraging to hear from constituents about local concerns and I urge you to call or e-mail me about issues you care about in our community or state.

West African Drumming and Dancing

West African Drumming and Dancing is coming to KRES/Bradford for an artist-in-residence program. All the students, K-5, will work with Marilyn and Sekou Sylla, members of Bamidele Dancers and Drummers. During the week of May 21, each class will spend a session with Sekou and Marilyn learning both dancing and drumming. The 5th graders will spend three sessions with this talented couple practicing for their culminating performance on May 23 at 6:30pm at the high school. That same evening, all of the students at KRES/Bradford will also perform their spring concert. Each class will sing songs from a different part of the world with the 5th graders giving us an extra special look into the culture of West Africa. The library and art programs at the school will also be exploring some West African themes.

Marilyn and Sekou are already known by many in this area. Last summer they worked with the kids at K.A.T. Company teaching drumming and dancing and performing in Anansi the Spiderman. Last year they were also the artists-in-residence at the Henninger elementary school. Brenda Wright, who coordinated the event, was impressed by Marilyn and Sekou's talent and with their ability to engage the kids in drumming and dancing. The kids also appreciated their very warm and friendly manner.

Marilyn Middleton-Sylla is the director of Bamidele Dancers which has been in existence for over 10 years. She has taught and performed throughout the United States, and in Brazil, Senegal and Guinea, West Africa. In 1998, she received an award from the University of Massachusetts for "Outstanding Support to Women of Color."

Sekou Sylla, Artistic Director of Bamidele Dancers, was a principle dancer, acrobat, and musician with Les Ballet Africains, the National Dance Company of the Republic of Guinea. In 1996 he moved to Massachusetts and since then has taught and performed all over the world including Australia, Europe, and South America. Like his wife, he teaches at many colleges in their area. Sekou is fluent in English, French, and his tribal languages of Sou Sou and Malinke.

Both Marilyn and Sekou are in great demand for their talents. Thank you to the Parent/Teachers' Association for sponsoring them. We are lucky to have them. Please come to the performance at KRHS, Thursday, May 23 at 6:30pm and show your support for our children and the artist-in-residency program. To learn more about Marilyn and Sekou's work and about the Bamidele Dancers and Drummers, log onto www.bamidele.com.

Woodcock = timberdoodle = cock of the woods = bog sucker = wood snipe.

One morning thirty-something years ago we discovered a lifeless woodcock in the driveway. A high school classmate of my sister had an interest in taxidermy and took temporary possession of the beautiful feathered body. I don’t know what happened to the amateur animal stuffer but I do know something of what happened to the stuffed woodcock. The woodcock and I relocated many times until, dusty and tattered, its remains were released to the suburban wilds of central Massachusetts, the original habitat of its demise having long since been covered with lawns and houses.

Woodcock returned from their wintering grounds in the southern states a month or so ago. They are among the earliest arrivals, waiting only for the bogs, spring holes and roadside ditches to thaw enough for the earthworms to rise to the warming surface. Their “borings” are distinctive, closely spaced holes drilled in the mud.

Their bills and powerful jaw muscles are similar to those of curlew, snipe, dowitcher and godwit—all birds that forage beneath the surface. They probe with bills equipped with extra nerve endings and an unusual design that involves movement of bones in the front of the skull that push the long bone that runs the length of the upper mandible forward. This causes the flexible tip to curve upwards on a slight hinge. These birds can thus capture a meal without forcing the entire length of bill open against the resistance of sand or mud.

At this season, woodcock presence is detected aurally more often than visually. At dusk and dawn, from courtship through incubation, their peculiar call comes from the brushy edges of wetlands. A soft ‘gulp’ is followed by a loud nasal ‘bleat’. This would seem a rude noise to the ears of our beloved but it works for them. After executing a series of these ‘peenting’ sounds, sometimes accompanied by strutting, tail-fanning, bowing, and contortions of the head and bill, the male is inspired to leap into the air and fly in a high ascending spiral of perhaps 300 feet before dropping back to where he started. A rapid twittering noise is made by the wing feathers and rises to a high-pitched vocal chirping before a brief silence signals the headlong descent.

The male continues to entertain the female for hours on end while she loosely constructs an inconspicuous nesting depression on the ground, lays three to five eggs and does most of the incubating. Their camouflage is so good that they can remain motionless until very nearly trod upon. In an interesting departure from the conventional method, woodcock chicks have both an upper and a lower temporary “egg tooth” on their bills and crack their shells longitudinally rather than latitudinally. Somewhat precocious at hatching, they are able to be up and running within hours. They can feed themselves and follow the protective adult who will feign illness to draw off predators or bird watchers. She may even pick up the young chicks with her feet, hold them against her body, and fly with them some distance. The young can flutter a bit on their own at two weeks and are fully mobile in less than a month.

Unfortunately, the adults cannot train their offspring to be aware of power lines and towers on the migration route, protect them from the ubiquitous domestic cat, teach them to lobby for buffer zones around their wetlands, or educate them about gunners. It is likely that the woodcock population rose at the beginning of the colonial period with the clearing of the forests. In 1894, over 1,000 woodcock were shot on a single November day over Framingham, Massachusetts. By 1900, however, there were no longer migratory flights of more than a half dozen birds at a time. Weather and hunting pressure fluctuate and despite the gloomy predictions of the early bird journals the woodcock has hung on.

In Bradford they are not an uncommon sight or sound, especially during their season of courtship. Later in the year they can be found at dusk and dawn rummaging in the undergrowth, beating the ground in likely places with their wings and feet, causing earthworms to rise within reach. It is not known exactly why this strategy works. It is also not fully understood why people would wish to preserve the bodies of dead wildlife or even write short articles about them, yet they sometimes do.

The NH Audubon Society library at their headquarters in Concord is fortunately open to members on Wednesdays and by arrangement.
