NANCY CALLAN:
FORCES AT PLAY

Luminescence Droplet, 2021.
SEEING GLASS THROUGH THE EYES OF NANCY CALLAN IS A DELIGHT AND EXPERIENCING THE MATERIAL THROUGH HER WORK IS A MASTER CLASS IN THE ARTISTIC PROCESS.

Her elegant, playful designs are inspired by a seemingly limitless visual vocabulary, and are executed with extraordinary technical expertise. Nancy Callan: Forces at Play exhibition, will debut at Museum of Glass in 2024 and will invite visitors to experience the multitude of ways Callan has used hot glass as a canvas for her perspectives on the world around her.

The exhibition will unfold through a series of thematic groupings that explore the sources of inspiration that have fueled Callan’s career: pattern and textiles; Pop Art and graphic design; and nature and the wonders of the universe. Each thematic grouping will be represented by a series of artworks, illustrating Callan’s conceptual development, and her exploration of form and pattern. These narrative themes will unfold in a multi-sensory environment, creating an insider’s look into Callan’s process through a series of studio vignettes, tactile

Nancy Callan: Forces at Play celebrates the thoughtfulness, wit, and sense of wonder that are signatures of Callan’s work and invites viewers to view the world around them with the same curiosity and passion that have fueled Callan’s artistic vision.

NANCY CALLAN

grew up near Boston, MA, working as a pizza-maker, band roadie, and graphic designer before attending the Massachusetts College of Art (BFA 1996). A chance peek into the hot glass studio changed the trajectory of her life; she was entranced by the fluid, glowing, material and the demanding choreography of working at the furnace. In 1996 she relocated to Seattle, WA to join maestro Lino Tagliapietra’s glassblowing team, rising to a key position as his assistant and travelling internationally to teach and demonstrate the craft. Through this nineteen-year apprenticeship, Callan mastered the traditional Venetian glassblowing techniques that are the foundation of her innovative work with line, pattern and color. She continues to blaze a trail as an LGBTQ+ woman, helping to inspire, teach and mentor the next generation of diverse artists in glass.

Callan began exhibiting her work in the 2000s. Her work made during a residency at the Creative Glass Center of America at Wheaton Village in NJ. Residencies, workshops, and collaborations continue to feed her practice and create space for experimentation.

AN AVID FAN OF VINTAGE POP CULTURE AND CONTEMPORARY FASHION, CALLAN’S WORK BRINGS A MODERN SENSIBILITY TO THE MATERIAL AND PROCESSES OF HOT GLASS WORKING.

Nancy Callan is represented by galleries throughout North America. Her artwork is held in numerous collections including Museum of Glass (WA), Microsoft Collection, Chrysler Museum of Art (VA), Mint Museum (NC), Peabody-Essex Museum (MA), Barry Art Museum (VA), The Coming Museum of Glass (NY) and Shanghai Museum of Glass (China).
