Motus Theater, in collaboration with Fair & Just Prosecution (FJP), is bringing JustUs presentations to the offices and communities of district attorneys affiliated with FJP in 2022-2023. These JustUs presentations share poignant personal stories of leaders who were formerly incarcerated, interwoven with powerful music, to expose the devastating impact of the criminal legal system and inspire action towards a vision of true justice.

A special component of these presentations is to pair Motus JustUs monologists with an elected district attorney, or other allied leaders working in the criminal legal system, who read aloud the monologists’ personal story as a means to stand in their shoes. Through the transformative experience of reading and holding someone else’s story, each performance creates the space necessary for listeners to learn from people who have been impacted by the injustices of the criminal legal system and reflect on choices that best support public safety for all.

“If you’re interested in partnering with Motus Theater to develop an in-person or virtual presentation specifically tailored for your office or larger community that will help support a greater understanding of the need for criminal legal reform, set up a conversation by emailing justustour@motustheater.org. Stories can be chosen from a range of themes that might be important to your office and community, for example: juvenile justice, racial bias in sentencing, criminalizing substance abuse, violence in prison, restorative justice versus punitive models, and the systemic racism and poverty that shuts young people out of legal economies pushing them into illicit economies.”

-if Miriam Krinsky, ED of FJP

“Motus Theater’s JustUs presentation at Fair & Just Prosecution’s 2021 Conference truly surpassed even our incredibly high expectations. Motus’ performances will make a difference in decisions made by DAs across the country and, as such, in the willingness to rethink punitive approaches that simply waste more lives.”

- Bryan Stevenson, ED of the Equal Justice Initiative

About: Motus Theater (based in Boulder, CO) creates original theater to facilitate dialogue on critical issues of our time – working at the nexus of strategic storytelling and policy change. Motus developed JustUs in 2019, launching the first performance for 1,600 people at the National Association for Community and Restorative Justice Conference. Since then, JustUs monologues have been featured as keynotes at over six national and international conferences. Guest readers include not only DAs, but also DOC officials, legislators, and law enforcement leaders.

“JustUs and mercy require us to walk in the shoes of others.”

- Dean Williams, ED of Colorado DOC about reading a JustUs monologue

“The shortest distance between two people is a story.”

- Bryan Stevenson, ED of the Equal Justice Initiative
