About Me

I started out as a graphic designer. From there I studied illustration, got my BFA and became a tattoo artist.

I transitioned from decorating skin to clothes, and even had my own apparel line for a little while. Having my own brand made me pursue further education in product development and entrepreneurship. Now I mostly support companies by creating original content: be it written, animated, or illustrated.

About the Blog

kellymeissner.com is a place where you can share in the joys of my art – both professional, and personal.
