Migrant Housing
Architecture, Dwelling, Migration

Mirjana Lozanovska, Associate Professor, Deakin University, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

Migrant Housing examines the house as the architectural construct in the processes of migration. Houses are pivotal to any migration story, with studies showing that migrant communities’ participation in the adaptation, extension or building of houses provides symbolic materiality of belonging. It draws on data studies from Australia, Macedonia, Canada, Sweden and Germany, to uncover the effects of unprivileged post-war migration in the late twentieth century on the house as architectural and normative model, and from this perspective negotiates the disciplinary boundaries of architecture.
