A Westchester organization that serves the homeless is holding an essay contest for children in grades seven through 12. The sponsoring group in Lifting Up Westchester and the subject of the essay is "Homelessness: What does it mean to you? How has it touched your life? What are your ideas about how to assist our homeless neighbors here in Westchester County?"

The contest is open to children in public, parochial, private or home schools or youth programs. Organizers of Lifting Up Westchester said they are holding the contest because on any given night in Westchester County, one of the wealthiest areas in the country, approximately 1,750 people are homeless, with 655 of them children.

"If we add those students whose families are 'doubled up' living with relatives or living in other temporary accommodations — the number of homeless children in our county is closer to 2,800, according to data collected by Southern Westchester BOCES," organizers said.

From Lifting Up Westchester:

An educated community is essential to dispel misconceptions about poverty and homelessness and to cultivate empathy and respect for those in our community who are experiencing homelessness. We hope that by sponsoring a contest for 7th through 12th graders more youth— their parents – will learn more about this important issue and start thinking about what we all can do to start reducing the problem.

The contest has been funded in loving memory of Beth Massey Rubens, a lifelong teacher, tutor and mentor with a particular love for language arts.

About Lifting Up Westchester
Lifting Up Westchester serves homeless men, women and children and others in need by providing them with emergency food and shelter, pathways to employment, permanent housing and other support so that they can achieve greater self-sufficiency. In 2016, we provided shelter to more than 1,300 homeless adults and served more than 100,000 meals through our soup kitchen, shelters and other homeless programs. Our housing programs helped homeless individuals find stable housing and maintain that housing through ongoing financial and case management support. Our youth programs work with hundreds of homeless children every year to help them be the first in their families to go to college and the last to live in poverty.

- Winner(s) will be announced on March 15, 2018

Essays will be judged by grade groups as follows:

- 7th and 8th grade
- 9th and 10th grade
- 11th and 12th grade

There will be three prizes for each grade group:

- First Prize $500
- Second Prize $250
- Third Prize $100

Each grade group will have a panel of three to five judges from the community who will evaluate the essays based on:

- Quality of written expression (style, word choice, organization, grammar, spelling and punctuation)
• Effectiveness of argument (is the essay focused, purposeful, does it build a logical coherent argument)
• Depth of understanding and appreciation of the issue of homelessness (does the essay demonstrate more than a superficial knowledge of some aspect of homelessness)
• Creativity and practicality of proposed solutions
• Award ceremony to be held in the spring of 2018 at a date and location to be announced.
