Architects and designers, you are in for a treat. NO TASTE FOR BAD TASTE is an exhibition that highlights the very best of French design. 40 masterpieces will be curated to represent the last 10 years of French Design production to share the spirit of French design.

This exhibition will bring the taste of France to Singapore. The exhibition was inaugurated at the Salone del Mobile, at the French Institute of Milan. It featured original scenography designed by Jean-Charles de Castelbajac and will present some forty design masterpieces from renowned design maestros like Philippe Starck and Jean-Paul Gaultier.

It will be travelling to more than 20 countries, and Singapore is one of the pit-stops.

NO TASTE FOR BAD TASTE will be held at the National Design Centre on the 12 Oct - 16 Nov A screening of a documentary on Métalocroset followed by a Q&A session with the French designer is set on 17 Oct.

A panel discussion on the links and bridges between Singapore and France design scenes is held on 18. This exhibition will also invite you to join in the conversation about design thinking.

More details:

Dates: 12 Oct - 16 Nov

Venue: National Design Centre

Exhibition fees: Admission to National Design Center Applies

More Details: https://www.designsingapore.org/modules/events/no%20taste%20for%20bad%20taste