Perhaps the brightest spot during our shift to remote learning last Spring was the blurred line between school and home life. We had an opportunity to see our students in their homes and were amazed, but not surprised, by the creativity, resiliency, and intuition of our new parent teachers. If your choice is to keep your toddler at home this fall, the BMFS Toddler professionals are offering support! Partnering with our Parent Support Program will equip you with many of the tools of the classroom, written and video instruction, and coaching sessions to help you transform your everyday life experiences into Montessori moments.

We will provide the guidelines and encouragement you need to expand on your current parenting practices to foster both the innate curiosity and blossoming independence in your toddler.

Our Program includes a variety of enriching and helpful Montessori tools

- A Monthly Activity Box* — a collection of handmade Montessori materials for your child, which represent all areas of the Montessori curriculum.
- Written and Recorded Lessons for you and your child, with variations and extension suggestions for activities, plus an overview of the educational intention and purpose of each activity
- Suggested Webinars and Readings from experienced Montessori educators
- Twice-monthly Virtual Group Discussions facilitated by our knowledgeable teachers, focused on helping you bring the Montessori Toddler curriculum to life in your home.

  Topics will include:
  Montessori home design and curriculum
  Toddler social/emotional development
  Support for growing independence
- Individual consultation time is also available by request.

Meet your teachers

Alison Bell was trained at the Infant Toddler level by The Center for Montessori Teacher Education NY in 1998. She has brought the Montessori curriculum to life for over 150 toddlers and is beloved in the classroom for her sense of humor and conflict resolution skills.

Jessa Sullivan (parent of five!) has taught toddlers in her classroom for over 8 years, earning her Montessori certification from Northeast Montessori along the way. Her students and parents alike love her because of her grounded presence and unflappable nature.

In the 2020-21 school year, this Toddler teaching team begins their 5th year together at Brixham Montessori Friends School in York, Maine. Their experience and expertise mean that you have the benefit of their combined background to enrich your at-home learning endeavour. Their kind, fun, genuine and engaging personalities will welcome you as you help your child grow and develop during the important and challenging toddler years.

*The Monthly Activity Box is most appropriate for children ages 22-36 months.
