To improve the well-being and quality of life of Asian Americans and Asian immigrant families in Ohio by providing social services and empowering individuals through education, training, and leadership.
In 2020, AACS offices were closed to the public following the Stay-At-Home order, but our staff immediately began providing other essential services, such as delivering meals, helping individuals to apply for unemployment benefits, translating Covid-19 informational materials, providing mental and physical health check-ins, and more.

Our youth program resumed in-person programming in the summer of 2020, and then began all-day programming during the school year, in order to support kids as they attended school remotely.

Health services were provided through telehealth, and most family services were likewise continued virtually. When the Stay-At-Home order was lifted, senior services resumed in-person support, such as transportation, interpretation, and other help.

Facing unprecedented need, AACS was incredibly humbled by the outpouring of community support—including donations of meals, hand sanitizer and PPE, and increased interest in volunteering.

In 2021, we will:

- Deliver holistic after school and summer programming to over 60 youth
- Provide 170 seniors with supportive services
- Resume weekly free health clinics, providing 280 appointments throughout the year
- Empower or screen over 80 individuals who have been the victims of crime
- Provide quality translation and interpretation services to area hospitals, schools, and more
- Increase English proficiency in dozens of individuals
- Provide meaningful volunteer and internship opportunities
- Study problematic gambling and gather community insights on preventions and interventions
- Train and outreach to hundreds of individuals
- Expand our bilingual counseling services
- Work to increase our capacity to serve even more community members
