Israel and the Middle East in the Age of Covid: The Shifting Political Landscape

A Conversation with Martin Indyk, Fmr. Ambassador to Israel

Hosted by Eran Broshy, Chairman of AFOU1

Thursday, June 11 @ 6:00pm EST / 3:00pm PST

Martin Indyk is a veteran diplomat and foreign relations analyst with deep expertise in the Middle East. Indyk served twice as United States Ambassador to Israel and also as Assistant Secretary of State for Near East Affairs during the Clinton Administration. In 2013 Indyk was appointed by President Barack Obama as Washington's Special Envoy for Israeli-Palestinian Negotiations. He is currently a distinguished fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations.

The Open University of Israel is the largest university in Israel, educating over 48,000 students at its 70 satellite campuses and online higher education learning platforms. Among Israel’s most vital institutions, the Open University’s core values are based on academic excellence, an open admissions policy, social justice and the inclusion of all citizens of Israel. Since its inception (1976), the Open University has graduated tens of thousands of students, nearly one third of whom were scholarship recipients. Today, a large percentage of Open University alumni are productive contributing members of Israeli society. The tremendous positive impact of the Open University on Israeli society is immeasurable. Indeed, the Open University waves not only the largest academic justice and social justice flags in Israel but also the flag of the path to excellence.

American Friends of the Open University of Israel is a registered 501c3 organization EIN: 13-309-1674, that provides critical support to the Open University of Israel. For more information, contact our Executive Director, Beth R. Nussbaum at beth@afoui.org, and visit our website, www.afoui.org.
