Silkroad Ensemble to Release Phoenix Rising EP on November 3

Live Recording of the Eponymous Program Performed at Tanglewood in 2022

Boston, MA — Silkroad announces the release of Phoenix Rising from the Silkroad Ensemble, which will be available on November 3, 2023. The EP comprises four works—all composed or arranged by Silkroad artists—performed live at Tanglewood on July 28, 2022 as part of the Ensemble’s Phoenix Rising tour. Colin Jacobsen’s arrangement of Peter Gabriel’s 1980 anti-apartheid protest song “Biko,” with Rhiannon Giddens and Mazz Swift on vocals and including Yo-Yo Ma on cello, is out today (October 19, 2023) as a single. The full EP is being released two days before Silkroad’s debut tour of American Railroad in the D.C. area and across California.

Phoenix Rising marked Silkroad’s first tour with Giddens as Artistic Director, ushering in a new era for the trailblazing Ensemble. Taking the phoenix as a symbol of rebirth and celebration, the program offered re-imaginations of past Silkroad compositions and arrangements, and also unveiled new commissions by Silkroad artists. Of the project’s origins, Giddens said: “As we prepare to emerge from multiple pandemics that have caused devastating loss, we vision a peaceful and just future while still honoring the central tenets of our past; we offer to you Phoenix Rising: a collective grieving song and clarion call, uniting audiences through varied cultural experiences and challenging each of us to reflect on, celebrate, and activate our unique talents to effect change."

The EP opens with Giddens’s own arrangement of the traditional folk song “O, Death,” a nod to her North Carolina roots, with particular inspiration drawn from folklorist Bessie Jones. Giddens writes in her artist statement about the arrangement, “These traditional songs have a way of getting to the bones of humanity, showing the stark contrast of life and death, and I thought it might do the same in a new setting with Silkroad.”

Following is Sandeep Das’s arrangement of Rabindranath Tagore’s song “Ekla Cholo Re,” created in tribute to the many Indian lives lost to COVID—including some of the country’s most treasured musicians and artists. Tagore was the first non-European to win the Nobel Prize for Literature and “Ekla Cholo Re” in particular served as a refrain for India’s independence movement.

Kaoru Watanabe’s new work for the program—and this EP—is “Ho-Oh,” named after a phoenix from various Asian mythologies. The Ho-Oh is ubiquitous throughout Japan, including in Gagaku, Japanese court music originally imported from China and Korea in the 8th century. Watanabe writes, “One of the ideas behind this piece is to reunite Gagaku with its distant relatives and see what emerges.” The work acknowledges the many talented musicians of Silkroad, each bringing their own musical traditions from around the world, coming together to create new connections and throughlines.

The Silkroad Ensemble has recorded 10 albums to date including Sing Me Home, which won the 2016 Grammy Award for Best World Music Album and was developed alongside the documentary feature The Music of Strangers from Academy Award-winning director Morgan Neville. Phoenix Rising will be the Ensemble’s first EP release.

About Silkroad
Yo-Yo Ma conceived Silkroad in 1998, recognizing the historical Silk Road as a model for cultural collaboration—for the exchange of ideas, tradition, and innovation across borders. In a groundbreaking experiment, he brought together musicians from the lands of the Silk Road to co-create a musical language founded in difference, thus creating the foundation of Silkroad: both a touring ensemble comprised of world-class musicians from all over the globe and a Boston-based non-profit organization working to make a positive impact across borders through the arts.

Today, under the leadership of Artistic Director Rhiannon Giddens and Executive Director Ben Hartley, Silkroad leads social impact initiatives and educational programming alongside the creation of new music by the Grammy Award-winning Silkroad Ensemble.
