LAYING THE FOUNDATION
Introduction

We have developed this comprehensive Supervisor Toolkit that contains all of the information you need to be a successful internship supervisor. The Toolkit outlines program logistics, expectations, and best practices. We cover the most essential information in Employer Orientation, but we know it’s helpful to have information readily available to refer back to.

Work-Based Learning Mentorship Basics

Supervisors for the YouthForce Internship program are the intern’s “go-to” person within your company for the duration of their work-based learning experience. Supervisors will assign projects/tasks and deadlines, oversee and provide feedback on their work, and help them develop and refine the skills they need to be successful. Embracing the difference between “Work-Based Learning” and a “Job” can make a world of difference as you prepare for, engage and manage your intern.

Toolkit vs. Playbooks - What’s the difference?

In addition to this Toolkit, our team has developed a number of Playbooks with fully developed work plans for projects and tasks aligned to roles within YouthForce NOLA’s high-opportunity skill clusters: Business Services, Digital Media/IT, Health Sciences, and Skilled Crafts. Many supervisors have also used the playbooks as examples or a starting point for developing their own internship work plans – using them for inspiration or customizing them significantly to fit their unique context.

We’ve also developed a number of tools to guide you through the process of building out a custom project for your interns. However, a detailed project/work plan is just one component of a successful internship. This Toolkit contains everything else you need to know about the YouthForce program and your role as a supervisor – regardless of what tasks or projects your interns are working on.
Understanding the YouthForce Internship Program

Program Basics
The YouthForce Internship program consists of two phases: Training and Internship. All Interns will participate in 60 hours of soft skills and work readiness training. Interns will then be placed in a 90-hour internship with a local business. Each intern will have an opportunity to earn up to $1,500 in award stipends throughout the program. Interns will have a coach to provide guidance and support throughout the program, in addition to the mentorship they receive from their internship supervisor.

Intern Training and Preparation
The YouthForce Internship Training\(^1\) is intended to teach interns essential work readiness and soft skills to ensure they are prepared for the world of work. The curriculum includes professional development sessions, interactive group activities, and special events where interns are able to deepen their understanding of our four skill clusters: business services, digital media/IT, health care, and skilled crafts.

The main topics covered during training include:

- Soft Skills\(^2\) (MHA Lab’s Building Blocks and Hirability Skills)
- Business Etiquette (email and professional communication, professional dress)
- Job Seeking Skills (networking, interviews, company research, resumes, LinkedIn)
- Life Literacies (digital literacy, financial literacy, scheduling)
- Industry Exposure
- Program Expectations and Human Resources

Interns complete about 50 hours of training prior to starting their internships. Our interns regularly demonstrate tremendous growth in this short amount of time, especially in terms of their soft skills (communication, social awareness, collaboration, etc.), their confidence and level of comfort engaging with adults in a professional setting, and their awareness of typical work expectations.

It’s important for supervisors to understand that interns come in with a wide variety of skills and knowledge at the beginning of the program, especially in terms of digital literacy and industry exposure. We do our best to get our interns up to speed, but these areas take time to develop. If your interns need a certain set of digital skills to be successful in their placement with you, please let us know in advance. We will do our best to match you with interns who have those skills and/or provide upskilling training when possible.

We also know many of our interns come into the program with one set of career goals and see these goals change over the course of the program. We do our best to match interns with a placement that is aligned to their career interests, but these are not fixed data points; throughout training, interns are exposed to new careers, and sometimes their interests shift. If one of your interns begins to express interest in another career or industry, do not be offended! Internships tend to focus on skills that are extremely transferable. Even if they change their career plans, the communication, problem solving, and time management skills they’re honing through this experience will be crucial to their success.

STARTING STRONG
Preparing for Your Intern

- Add Key Dates to Your Calendar
  Don’t let anything sneak up on you. Make sure orientations, the internship start date, and the internship end date are on your calendar. It’s also important to make sure you’re receiving emails from the YouthForce team (check your spam folder), so you don’t miss other key deadlines and reminders.

- Complete your Internship Placement Profile
  When your company decides to host YouthForce Interns, we ask the point of contact to complete a Company Profile survey. This collects high-level information about the company and provides the supervisor contact information. We then collect the Internship Placement Profile survey from the direct supervisors. This provides the specific details of the internship placement. These details include the information about you, schedule preferences, a project summary, and required or desired skills. The information from the Placement Profile survey develops the position description that interns see.

  Interns review the position descriptions and identify internship placements they are interested in. We then use the information you provide us through this survey, data about the interns, information the interns’ coach provides, and the intern’s preferences to determine placement matches. We do our best to match each intern into a placement that suits them and to provide each employer with the best-fit interns possible. Please make sure the data you provide is accurate and inform us of any updates or changes right away.

- Choose or Create and Review Your Playbook
  We have developed several “off-the-shelf” Internship Playbooks to be used as a supervisor’s guide. These playbooks are a step-by-step resource with pre-planned deliverables, feedback prompts, and capstone presentation ideas. If these playbooks don’t align with the projects you had in mind, we have also developed a Customizable Playbook Template that allows you to create a playbook tailored to the experience you want your interns to have. By thoughtfully answering the questions in the design questionnaire, we will create a playbook just for you that can be referred to each week of the internship and used for future internships, as well. Watch this quick video to learn more!

  So that we can make the best possible match between your company and interns, we will ask you to confirm your playbook of choice or finalize your customized playbook before the interns begin their training. If you have questions or concerns about the playbooks you have reviewed or the customization process, please reach out to Nathan Stockman (nathan@youthforcenola.org).

- Determine a Secondary Supervisor
  In the event you are absent (unexpectedly, at a conference, on vacation, etc.) or simply unavailable (in back to back meetings, out of the office for an extended time, etc.), it’s important to have a clear “second in command” who can fill in temporarily. Before the internship begins, please:
  - Align on norms and expectations with the secondary supervisor
- Invite them to join your initial meeting on Day 1, so they are part of the foundation building
- Keep them updated about the intern’s schedule and key projects/tasks

- Attend Orientation - Part 1 & Part 2
  During Employer Orientation, you will learn about the scope and expectations of the program, hear tips and best practices for hosting a successful internship, and go over important information regarding timekeeping. We will also be able to answer any lingering questions or concerns.

- Reconfirm Your Schedule Availability
  Before the summer begins you will be sent an email confirming that the internship schedules you selected in the Placement Profile survey are still accurate. We will only match interns with you that have selected the same availability. The schedule will be confirmed again in the introductory email and minor adjustments can be made, if necessary on Day 1. Once the final schedule is determined, those will be the hours you can expect your interns to be working. Please schedule check-in calls and other engagements during those working hours.

- Plan Your Team Lunch
  During the first two weeks, plan to have lunch with your interns and a few co-workers so they can meet your company’s broader staff and put their work into a larger context. This informal time together gives your interns a chance to practice their networking skills, learn more about the individuals in your company, and share more about themselves as they settle into their roles. Please identify a date and time for this in advance, so you can invite the interns and confirm their availability on Day 1.

- Finalize Your Intern’s First Day
  Confirm the date, time, and location of the intern’s first day with the YouthForce staff. This first meeting can set the tone for the internship - giving interns clear expectations and building rapport. Be sure to review the description in the toolkit and review the First Day Checklist in advance.

- Review Introduction Emails
  You will receive an email from the YouthForce team e-introducing you to your intern(s) and their coach(es) about a week before the internship begins. Please be sure to reply all to this email confirming Day 1 details and work schedules and sharing any additional information the intern(s) needs to know for their first day.

- Familiarize Yourself with the Soft Skills Referenced in Orientation
  YouthForce NOLA uses the evidence-based work-readiness Hirability Framework developed by MHA Labs. MHA Labs spent seven years working to isolate a universal skill framework that could predict supervisor satisfaction of their intern’s work performance. MHA Labs isolated 12 work-readiness skills that are most predictive of supervisor satisfaction - meaning the supervisor deemed that their intern was work-ready enough to be hirable. Check out the Hirability Skills one pager to learn more.
Review this Toolkit and Bookmark to Check Back Often

This Toolkit should be your go-to resource throughout the internship. There are several documents available online that you may also want to use. Make the most of the resources by bookmarking on your web browser, downloading to your desktop, or printing a copy and keeping it nearby for quick reference.

Day One - Your First Meeting

Welcome the Interns & Get to Know Each Other

- Start off the meeting with introductions and a culture-building ice breaker. It is highly recommended that the supervisor also participates in this activity.
  - Here are a few ideas for day one ice-breaker prompts:
    - Which superpower would you have and why?
    - If you could only listen to one album or musical artist for the rest of your life, what or who would it be and why?
    - Who is the person who has had the greatest positive influence on you?
    - If you could have lunch or dinner with one person in the entire history of humanity, who would it be and why?
  - Share info about yourself and your team, and give interns a chance to introduce themselves.
    - We suggest giving them specific questions or prompts to answer. They’ll likely feel very nervous on day one, so this will help provide a structure and ease nerves. For example, “Please share your name, pronouns, what school you attend, and one thing you’re hoping to learn this summer.”

Provide a Company Overview

- Share your company’s vision, mission, values, and other key info.
- Interns are curious to learn more about the companies they are working with, even if they won’t be involved in some aspects of the work.
- We also recommend sharing insights into office norms before COVID-19 and any adjustments your team has made since the beginning of the pandemic.

Introduce the Secondary Supervisor and Other Team Members

- Introduce the interns to the person you identified as the Secondary Supervisor for this internship. Explain to your interns that this is the person they should go to if you (the primary supervisor) are ever absent or unavailable.
- Ensure the interns have this person’s contact information.

Set the interns’ work schedule for the duration of the internship

- Based on the schedule options that you and your interns have selected, we’ll confirm one of the schedule options in the intro email. Interns will come to the first meeting with any modifications they need to make to the schedule (e.g. They may need to miss one Tuesday for a family event and add another day to their schedule to make it up).
• Interns must work a total of 90 hours, and we strongly recommend planning for 100 hours to account for any unexpected schedule changes (e.g., absences due to sickness, power outages).
• Be sure to plan ahead for any adjustments you may need to make for holidays (e.g. July 4th). We try to account for this on the schedule options, but we know companies may have a unique holiday schedule.
• During the meeting, closely review and finalize the interns’ schedules.
  ○ Interns will come to the meeting with a draft internship schedule printed or in Google Sheets. They should share this with you during the meeting. To approve the schedule, please write or type your name and date into the corresponding boxes at the bottom. If using an electronic version, change the name of the document from “Draft Internship Schedule” to “Final Internship Schedule.”
  ○ After you sign, interns should share the final version with their coach and internship@youthforcenola.org to ensure all parties have access to the agreed-upon schedule.
  ○ YouthForce staff will then update the interns’ When I Work shifts accordingly.

☑ Schedule Weekly Check-Ins
• Take a moment now to schedule weekly check-ins (30-60 minutes) with your interns to provide regular feedback, provide an opportunity for the interns to ask clarifying questions about tasks, and set a culture of consistent communication. All interns should attend the same check-in with you.
• Create digital calendar events for check-ins. Be sure that the secondary supervisor, interns are all on the calendar event (the secondary supervisor is not required to attend).

☑ Schedule Your Team Lunch
• Schedule an informal lunch for you, your co-workers, and your interns. This should happen within the first one to two weeks of the internship
• Create a digital calendar event and invite all participants, so it is on everyone’s calendar.

☑ Establish Expectations for Daily Touch Points
• Communicate your plan and expectations for daily touchpoints, which can either be done at the beginning or end of each internship shift. This could be a daily check-in/check out email from each intern communicating daily goals and achievements or a daily group huddle. We defer to your preference, but we do expect some form of daily touchpoint to provide accountability and consistency.

☑ Share Communication Expectations & Norms
• Explain how you prefer your interns to contact you in general (email, phone, or text).
• Discuss additional communication procedures (i.e., when/how the interns should contact you in different scenarios -- unexpected absence, quick questions between check-ins, etc.).
• Make sure interns have accurate contact information for you and any other key members of your team they will be working with.
● If your company has video meetings, discuss those norms with your intern.

Discuss Covid Procedures
● Interns need to know how your company navigates Covid-19. Discuss what should happen if the intern tests positive. Who should they tell and how should they tell them (email, phone)? What happens if a co-worker tests positive and your intern is considered a close contact? Do they need to work remotely? If so, for how long?
● If there is a change in office policy (e.g. everyone needs to work from home, new mask mandate, etc.), how will the intern find out?
● The more details you can provide, the more prepared the intern will be in the event they need to make significant adjustments mid-internship.
● If your company doesn’t have robust covid procedures, YouthForce is happy to share suggestions.

Discuss the Project Plan
● Review the overall goals and outcomes for the internship, as well as the key skills and knowledge the interns will develop over the course of the internship.
  ○ We recommend sharing the overview page and the “What Does Success Look Like?” chart of your internship Playbook for full transparency with the interns (and their YFI Coach). Think of this page like a syllabus that everyone can refer back to throughout the internship, as needed.
● Explain key deliverables and set deadlines.
  ○ We suggest having the interns create digital calendar events for key due dates and invite the intern supervisor to help build digital literacy and time management skills.
● Provide detailed explanations of expectations for tasks and projects.

Provide Additional Details for Week One
● After explaining the full scope of work and overall expectations for the internship, make sure to also deep dive into their tasks and next steps for the first week.
● Provide interns with specific due dates for the coming week and make sure they know how to submit any deliverables to you that are due before your first check in.
  ○ You’ll likely want interns to submit their work product to you far enough in advance of your first check in for you to be able to evaluate their work and prepare to provide feedback and clear next steps for week two.
MAINTAINING MOMENTUM
Check-Ins

As a supervisor, you know how important it is that during your regular check-ins with your intern, you:

➔ Make sure to give feedback on recently completed and currently in-progress projects/tasks
➔ Share details about upcoming projects/tasks
➔ Give the intern time to ask you questions that have come up over the past week

After interviewing internship participants we learned that the most successful supervisors were the ones who prioritized finding time to communicate with their interns and share their experiences.

We know every supervisor has a unique check-in style, and many organizations have formats that they already use. You are welcome to use check-in templates and resources you already use with your employees and/or manager when checking in with your interns or download the YFI Supervisor & Intern Weekly Check-In Guide from our resource page to use during your check-ins.

The check-in agendas include the following sections (but feel free to adjust to fit your needs):

- Ice Breaker/Opener - Start with an opener to get to know each other more and build rapport
- Reflection & Meaning Making - Ask open-ended questions to help the interns reflect on the past week, reinforce the transferability of skills used, and monitor progress towards high-level goals
- Feedback - Supervisors should assess the interns work and prepare feedback in advance, then utilize the Feedback Formula to engage in a feedback conversation
- Preparing for the Week - Deep dive into upcoming projects, tasks, and deliverables. Be explicit about expectations and due dates.
- Clarifying Questions & Confirm Next Steps - Review next steps discussed during the check-in, clarify any lingering questions, and reconfirm date and time for the next weekly check-in.

You’ll also find specific feedback prompts and check-in advice throughout your job-specific playbook. If you need more help preparing for or facilitating check-ins with your intern, please be sure to reach out to the YouthForce team.

Team Lunch

Often, the best parts of an internship are the relationships that young people are able to build with people in the office - the small conversations that happen in the elevator, at the coffee machine, or walking down the hall. Similarly, a scheduled team lunch is an effort to allow interns to organically practice their networking skills. This informal lunch should be joined by a handful of your colleagues that are comfortable sharing about themselves and interested in learning more about the interns. You can open the lunch with introductions and an ice-breaker (e.g. What was everyone’s favorite high school class and why?) and then open the floor for questions. The interns will have some questions prepared and will also be ready to share about themselves.
Best Practices & Advice for Supervisors

✓ Get to know your interns
- Share your personal story (e.g., where you are from, if you went to college and if so, what you studied in college, industry certifications or credentials you’ve earned, how you selected your career path, long-term goals).
- Ice breakers and casual conversations at the beginning or end of your meetings can help you learn more about your intern over the course of the internship.
- Notice, respect, and use your interns’ personal pronouns. To help you cultivate a safe and welcoming environment, check out this Welcoming Schools website and www.mypronouns.org/.
- Maintain professionalism throughout the internship. Supervisors should refrain from initiating and/or accepting connection requests with interns on social media platforms other than LinkedIn.

✓ Set up a consistent weekly schedule and stick to the schedule you set
- Establishing a consistent weekly schedule (i.e., same days and times every week) will help both you and your intern keep the schedule straight. This also mirrors real-world work scenarios, when employees typically have a set work schedule.
- However, be sure to plan ahead for any adjustments you may need to make for holidays (e.g., July 4th).
- Once the schedule is finalized, create recurring digital calendar events for your daily check-ins (beginning or end of day) as an extra reminder for you and your intern.

✓ Make the most of check-in meetings with your interns
- Utilize the Weekly Check-In Guide, and feel free to share a digital version with the intern and their coach, so everyone is on the same page about the interns’ progress.
- Don’t be afraid of giving timely, constructive feedback, using the Feedback Formula.

✓ Allow your interns to attend other meetings or events, if possible
- These are great ways for your interns to receive exposure to all parts of your company, to get to know others in the company, and to learn about the various career paths available to them.
- Feel free to assign them a task for these events (e.g., note-taking, etc.)

✓ Choose one of the following engagement activities for your intern(s), and get it scheduled:
- Have the intern attend or watch a pre-recorded professional development session and discuss the experience afterward.
- Include the intern in other team activities, lunches, team building, etc.
- Schedule some “downtime” where you and the interns can chat more informally, for interns to ask questions about your career trajectory or get advice on their next steps after high school.
- Allow the intern to interview or have a Q & A session with other staff members.
✓ Reach out to the YouthForce team early and often

- If you have any issues with your interns, reach out to Sarah Bell (sarahb@youthforcenola.org) or the interns’ coach right away.
  - Your interns’ coach will be CCed on your intro email, so you’ll have their contact info.
- You will receive calendar invitations for Zoom “office hours”. These are times throughout the week for you to hop on a call with YouthForce staff to share any concerns or questions that have come up.
- We love to hear about positive things the interns are doing throughout their internship. Don’t be afraid to share some good news!
- Please don’t hesitate to reach out with any questions, ideas, and feedback on how to make this experience most impactful. We are here to support you and ensure a successful internship for both you and your interns, and we love feedback.

✓ Integrate Skill Building Practices

Experienced supervisors understand the importance of skill building as an integral part of the internship experience. Offered below are some steps that provide a comprehensive approach to skill development.

- Reveal Targeted Skills - identify the most crucial skills for each task or project and communicate these to the intern
- Establish Performance Evidence - set clear expectations and explain what success looks like
- Focused Activity Design - make sure the activities/tasks you’re asking interns to complete, align with the target skills and performance evidence you communicated to them
- Reinforce Expectations - make this a part of regular check-ins
- Assess Using Feedback - refer back to the performance evidence you already established while assessing their performance and when providing feedback
- Magnify Recognition - recognize the intern for doing things right to positively reinforce behavior
- Explore Meaning Making - highlight how the projects/tasks fit into the company’s larger work AND how the skills the intern is developing can be applied in future scenarios or jobs

A note about feedback: One of the most critical components to growth is delivering and receiving effective feedback. Feedback that is honest, consistent, evidence-based, and action-oriented has proven to be a contributing factor to student success. We HIGHLY recommend all supervisors familiarize themselves with and utilize MHA Lab’s Feedback Formula and check out this quick video to learn more!

✓ Utilize Cooperative Learning/Group Dynamic Strategies

Cooperative learning and group dynamics are commonly used in the world of education and/or project-based learning. We believe they will transfer well to the world of work. Check out the Cooperative Learning Resources to learn more!

Digital Timesheets: When I Work

When I Work is the software we use to manage interns’ attendance/timesheet data. When I Work makes the process easy:
Supervisors review interns’ time logs weekly to quickly approve time or flag any discrepancies or concerns to the YouthForce team.

YouthForce staff and coaches review data daily to ensure interns are working according to their schedules and on track of time requirements, to review any employer comments with feedback for the interns, and to resolve timesheet mistakes in a timely and efficient manner.

Interns get timesheets approved digitally (eliminating the need for paper timesheets).

- Note: Interns need to track and have hours approved to be eligible for their financial awards, to obtain school credit, and to successfully complete the program. As a reminder, all interns need 90+ internship hours to complete the internship program.

Interns also have the option to leave notes each time they log in and out. If you’d like, you can encourage them to record daily goals and accomplishments in those notes sections each day. If you do this, be sure to reinforce expectations with your intern and let them know you review this data, so they know it’s important to be specific in the notes section.

How To Approve Your Intern’s Time

Approve hours – weekly; you will need to log into When I Work each Friday to approve your intern’s hours from that workweek.

- All interns will be required to check-in and out on their internship days.
- If you are hosting more than one intern, you will need to approve hours for each intern separately.
- You must use a computer to approve intern timesheets, as this feature isn’t available on the When I Work mobile app.
- When you log into When I Work, you will need to click the attendance tab at the top of the screen, then select timesheets. You will be taken to a page that allows you to toggle between the timesheets for each of your interns to view their check-in and out times for a given week.

After reviewing an intern’s timesheets, click the green “Approve” button at the top of the timesheet to approve that intern’s hours for the week. If you’ve successfully approved an intern’s hours, a green check will show up next to their name in the sidebar on the left side of your screen. You will need to approve each intern’s timesheet separately.

If there are mistakes or discrepancies on an intern’s timesheet, leave a note detailing what the mistake or discrepancy is. Be as specific as possible. You can also leave comments for coaches, interns, or YFI staff.
in the notes section. This is another way to communicate any concerns or highlights throughout the internship.

Other Considerations

- It’s imperative that we capture accurate attendance data to ensure fidelity and accountability with our internship program.
- If there are any discrepancies, alert both the intern and the intern's coach. The coach can manually edit intern hours and re-submit to you for approval.
- Interns should check in and out for breaks every day. Federal law requires that any employee under the age of 18 MUST take an unpaid 30-minute break when they work more than five consecutive hours. Students must log those breaks into When I Work. Please help us to ensure that we are in compliance with this by double-checking that the intern entered their break.
- If you are able to see a timesheet for anyone who is not your intern, please let us know right away!
FINISHING
WELL
Closing Out the Internship

Capstone Presentations

During the final week of the internship, interns are expected to complete a Capstone Presentation in front of an audience of their supervisor and other members of your company. This should be scheduled during the first meeting and reconfirmed a few weeks before the presentation. Here is a video that includes example presentations.

The presentation will be a compilation of what the interns have completed during their internship and include their final reflections and lessons learned. The structure of this presentation should include a slideshow (PPT or Google Slides) and the presentation will be produced collaboratively among the group of interns with each adding input and creativity and also being responsible for a portion of the oral presentation.

Capstone Presentations should include the following elements (plus any additional components outlined in your specific Internship Playbook):

- Introductions and overview of the interns’ roles and accomplishments during the internship
  - Guiding questions: Who are you (name, school, etc)? What company are you placed at? What projects did you contribute to? What did you accomplish?

- Deep dive into major projects/deliverables/tasks the interns worked on during the internship
  - Note: This section should be the primary focus of the presentation, but it often looks different for each internship placement (since work assignments/projects vary).
    - Supervisors should provide additional guidance to their interns about what to include and focus on in this section, as well as industry or company norms for presentations.
    - Whenever possible, your intern(s) should include photos, screenshots, or links to completed projects or deliverables in their slides. During the presentation, the interns should walk the audience through the end products and the process (when appropriate).
    - If each intern completed different projects or tasks, they will each have their own section. If the interns collaborated on a project collectively, each intern should speak about their individual contributions to the overall project.

- Key takeaways and reflections from this opportunity
  - Guiding questions: What did you learn through this experience? What skills did you learn or improve? What surprised you the most? What are you most proud of accomplishing during your work-based learning opportunity?

Interns should submit the final version of the PPT/Slides 1-2 business days before the presentation, so you have time to evaluate their work and prepare feedback for their exit interview. As you’re listening to the final presentation, adjust your feedback plan as needed.

3 Optional - If you’d like, you can record the presentation or invite the YouthForce staff or coaches to sit in
The Hirability Assessment

At the end of the internship experience, you will be asked to complete a short survey to reflect on your interns' performance in the core 12 Hirability Skills, as well as 3 internship sector-specific technical skills. The Employer/Supervisor Hirability Assessment, which can be found at www.workingimpact.org, is an assessment of your intern's skill performance during their internship. In addition to providing us with valuable data, the assessment serves as an excellent feedback tool! Once you complete the assessment, a youth-friendly scorecard will be emailed to you. We ask that supervisors share a copy of the scorecard with the intern and talk through the scorecard with their intern during their exit interview. If you host multiple interns, we ask you to complete an Hirability Assessment for each intern. Our goal is for each intern to experience a mini-performance review where you identify their strengths and areas for growth.

Exit Interview

A brief exit interview should take place with your intern during the last day or week of their internship. The exit interview should serve as an opportunity for the supervisor to give their intern feedback and ask the intern questions about their experience. In advance of the exit interview, the supervisor should complete the Hirability Assessment and share the Scorecard with the intern.

Complete the Program Feedback Survey

The YouthForce Internship Feedback Survey is a holistic feedback survey that we ask all supervisors to complete. The Feedback Survey is focused on your overall experience with the YFI program. Your input is helpful to us in order to guide our future programming. We ask about your overall experiences with your YouthForce intern(s), the YouthForce staff and coaches, YouthForce communication, and suggestions for the future of YouthForce Internships. The YouthForce team will send you a link to the survey from the YouthForce team at the end of the internship.

Closing Ceremony

YouthForce NOLA produces a closing ceremony at the end of the program to celebrate all of the hard work and collective success of our interns. For safety and convenience, we will be hosting this event on Zoom for our interns, their families, and our employer partners. We will select an intern and employer partner as speakers in addition to other community members involved in our work. You will receive an invitation with event details during the program.
