<td>WHAT</td>
<td>To tip off the Phillips 66 Big 12 Men’s and Women’s Basketball Championships in Kansas City, the Big 12 Conference and the Kansas City Sports Commission &amp; Foundation will reveal its latest joint legacy project - a makeover of a centrally located room at Kansas City Girls Preparatory Academy in Kansas City, MO. The legacy project was made possible in partnership with the College Football Playoff (CFP) Foundation’s Extra Yard for Teachers (EYFT) initiative and Lakeshore Learning Materials. With the $50,000 grant, Kansas City Girls Preparatory Academy has been able to transform a centrally located room, which students have previously used for storage of their possessions, into a space where students can learn in a welcoming and relaxing environment.</td>

WHY

The Big 12 Conference and the Kansas City Sports Commission & Foundation have a long-standing history of legacy projects in the area. Last year, the respective organizations completed a legacy project for a classroom makeover at Noble Prentis Elementary School in Kansas City. Other legacy projects in Kansas City have included renovating basketball courts at Oak Park in 2018, refurbishing a gymnasium at the Kansas School for the Deaf in 2017, and renovating basketball courts at the Urban Youth Baseball Academy in 2016.

Additionally, the CFP Foundation is committed to elevating the teaching profession and helping make an impact on today’s youth through education.
