PHOTOGRAPHIC REPRODUCTION POLICY

Warning Concerning Copyright Restrictions

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, U.S. Code) governs the making of reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish or allow the making of a reproduction. One of these conditions is that the reproduction is not to be "used for any purposes other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement. The Red Bank Public Library reserves the right to refuse a request for reproduction, if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the request would involve violations of the copyright law.

LIBRARY RULES ON REPRODUCTION OF PHOTOGRAPHS

The Library balances access to materials with preservation needs. The library will not permit reproduction of any photographs that are fragile or susceptible to damage by the reproduction process. Nor will the library permit reproduction of any photograph for which the library does not own copyright. Reproductions of some of the Library's historic photographic collection are available through the library's online database. Patrons are allowed to download copies for personal use and researchers may download copies for publication so long as they provide a permission to publish agreement and credit the Red Bank Public Library. Images the Library does not have the copyright too are watermarked for protection, and information on copyright ownership and who to contact are included in the image description.
