Host Institution

Cincinnati Children’s Hospital Medical Center is a full-service, nonprofit pediatric academic medical center with 629 registered beds. Established in 1883, Cincinnati Children’s comprises the Department of Pediatrics of the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine and is the second-highest recipient of National Institutes of Health grants for pediatric research. Our vision is to be the leader in improving child health. Cincinnati Children’s Hospital Medical Center ranks third in the nation among all Honor Roll hospitals in U.S. News & World Report’s 2019-20 Best Children’s Hospitals ranking.

About the Heart Institute

In 2019, U.S. News & World Report ranked Cincinnati Children’s Heart Institute a top ten program in the nation for pediatric cardiology and heart. The Heart Institute team has pioneered many advances in pediatric cardiology, including a first-in-nation ventricular assist device in a Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy patient, numerous transcatheter (nonsurgical) intervention therapies, echocardiography of complex cardiac malformations and the evaluation of cardiac disease during exercise stress. As one of the largest pediatric cardiology programs in the nation, the world-renowned team at the Heart Institute at Cincinnati Children’s Hospital Medical Center has achieved outcomes that rival or surpass those at other top centers, for even the most challenging cases. These outcomes are driven by a bench-to-bedside approach, which allows the Heart Institute to bring research results into mainstream treatment plans for patients before they are available elsewhere.
Greetings,

On behalf of the Heart Institute at Cincinnati Children’s Hospital Medical Center, I invite you to take part in the 2020 Cardiovascular Ultrasound Fall Conference to be held virtually on September 19, 2020. This unique conference will bring together sonographers, fellows and faculty who perform or interpret fetal, pediatric or adult echocardiograms. The conference will highlight important progress, developments and research in the fields of pediatric and adult echocardiography.

We are anticipating approximately 200 virtual attendees this year including cardiac sonographers, fellows, physicians and students. This conference will be an excellent fit to highlight your company and show your generous support of the cardiovascular ultrasound field.

Virtual support options are outlined in this prospectus. Space is limited for these opportunities, so I encourage you to contact us early. I would be more than happy to provide any additional information you may need and, on behalf of the program committee and faculty, we want to thank you for your consideration of this request.

Best regards,
