The 32nd Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime

Information – Shield, Sword and Achilles Heel – in the fight against economic crime?

This year the Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime will celebrate its thirtieth-second year. It is a testament to the Symposium’s unique blend of relevance, practicality and topicality that over the years it has enjoyed the support of so many institutions and experts from around the world. It also attests to the deep concern of governments, financial and other institutions and their professional advisers as to the extent of the risks to stability and security thrown up by economic crime and in particular organised crime. The annual Cambridge Symposium is a truly unique event which over the years has made an unrivalled contribution to understanding the real issues involved in preventing and controlling economically motivated serious crime. As a unique respected and trusted international forum and network it has also made an impressive and meaningful contribution to fostering international cooperation and promoting mutual understanding and goodwill.

The Thirty-second symposium will focus on the advantages and vulnerabilities that today’s information orientated society presents us with in fighting and protecting ourselves from economic crime. The appropriate and timely use of data can reduce exposure to risk and facilitate effective action against those who seek to exploit through criminal and subversive means the integrity of our institutions and economies. However, the misuse of data and its manipulation and misappropriation can itself expose us to profound risks and dangers. Expert international speakers from around the world will address these issues in plenary sessions with opportunities for interaction and further discussion in a number of specialised practical workshops and think tanks.

While the primary focus of this year’s symposium is on the use and misuse of information, as in previous years the programme includes a host of other issues, some more related to the theme than others, which are of pressing concern to those seeking to protect the integrity and stability of financial and business institutions and the wider economy. The more we develop procedures and devices to better disrupt criminal and other subversive activities, the more we shift responsibility which can manifest itself in increased legal and regulatory risk on those who mind other people’s wealth in the ordinary course of their business. In the complexities of the modern world getting the balance appropriate let alone fair is not always an easy option. The programme provides a unique opportunity at a very practical level, to share the experiences of over 360 specialist speakers and panellists in the prevention and control of risk to the integrity and stability of the financial system and those who operate within it.

The Symposium brings together in one of the oldest medieval Colleges within the University of Cambridge, ministers, legislators, senior officials, diplomats, judges, regulators, law enforcement, intelligence and security officers, financial intermediaries, bankers, professional advisers, compliance and risk officers and scholars from around the world. Last year the symposium attracted well over 1,600 participants from over 100 countries.

The programme is structured to provide a depth and breadth of opportunity - second to none, for those participating in the programme to become aware not only of existing, but also new threats, and how best to address them. Through the numerous plenary and other workshops and in particular the considerable opportunities to meet colleagues socially, there is a degree of interaction and collaboration that could only be encountered in an institution that has the highest world reputation for learning and research. The University of Cambridge collaborating with a host of distinguished institutions throughout the world offers a wholly different experience in addressing these fundamentally important issues.

The Cambridge Symposium is not and has never been just a conference. It is organised on a non-profit making basis by some of the world’s most respected academic and research institutions with the active involvement and support of numerous governmental and inter-governmental organisations. It was established to promote meaningful international co-operation – in the fight against financial crime. Its record is its best testimonial. Successive symposia have made a real contribution – at all levels, to promoting stability, good governance and the disruption and control of serious crime and terror. Those who are concerned to protect and promote the integrity and wellbeing of their national economy, institution or enterprise – or who are concerned to better understand the risks facing business today, cannot afford to miss this very special event.

Informal Lunch hosted by The Centre for International Documentation on Economic and Organised Crime

The above programme is confirmed subject to where the contrary is indicated by an asterisk. Inevitably given the number of speakers and panellists there will be changes and a fully updated programme will be available on the website, www.crimesymposium.org

Workshops

Participation in the non-plenary workshops will be restricted so as to facilitate informal discussion. Registration for workshops will be on a first come basis. The convenors for each workshop are indicated in the programme, but discussion will be open to all those participating.
Jesus College, Cambridge and the University of Cambridge

Jesus College was founded as a college, within the University of Cambridge, in 1496 by Bishop Alcock of Ely. The history of the College is, however, rather more ancient. An order of nuns occupied the site and buildings for at least two hundred and fifty years before this. Since the inception of the annual Cambridge Symposium, thirty-two years ago by Professor Barry Rider, the Master and Fellows of the College have been pleased to host the event and the College administers all financial matters pertaining to the programme.

The earliest record of the University of Cambridge is in 1209 so the University has recently celebrated its 800th anniversary. The University consisting of over 100 departments, faculties and schools is rated as the world’s foremost research university. A number of the University’s centres and programmes are involved in supporting the annual Cambridge Symposium on Economic Crime

The Centre for International Documentation on Economic and Organised Crime (CIDOEC)

CIDOEC was established as a non-profit making organisation and network in 1988 to promote collaborative and comparative research in the prevention and control of organised and economic crime. It is based in Cambridge, although it has branches in southern Africa, North America, Latin America and the Far East. The Chairman of CIDOEC’s Advisory Board is Mr Saul M Froomkin QC, a former Attorney General of Bermuda.

The Institute of Advanced Legal Studies and the Society for Advanced Legal Studies

The IALS was established in 1947 and is a constituent member of the School for Advanced Study of the University of London. Although part of the University of London, the Institute’s role is national, and is funded by government on this basis. Its library is the national law library and the Institute’s research staff is concerned with promoting and conducting research across a broad spectrum of legal and related issues. The Institute’s Advisory Council is chaired by The Rt Hon The Lord Hope of Craighead PC, Lord of Appeal in Ordinary and Justice of the Supreme Court of the United Kingdom.

The International Association of Anti-Corruption Authorities

The IAACA was established by resolution of a number of governments at a meeting hosted by the Prosecutor General of China in Beijing in October 2006. The primary objective of the IAACA is to facilitate the effective implementation of the UN Convention against Corruption and assist governments generally in fighting corruption and corruption related crime. The IAACA’s Secretary General is Dr Ye Feng of the Supreme People’s Procuratorate of China.

National Crime Agency

The NCA leads, supports and co-ordinates the response against serious and organised crime affecting the UK with a national and international reach and the mandate and powers to work in partnership with other law enforcement organisations. It incorporates a number of commands including the Economic Crime Command and the National Cyber Crime Unit. The commands are supported by a central Intelligence Hub. The Economic Crime Command is tasked with leading and co-ordinating the response to economic crime affecting the U.K. including amongst others: fraud; cyber-enabled fraud; bribery and corruption; intellectual property crime and market abuse

City of London Police

The City of London’s Police are entrusted as the National Lead Force for fraud on behalf of the UK Police Service. They lead the police service fight against fraud and economic crime.

The Serious Fraud Office of England, Wales and Northern Ireland

The Serious Fraud Office is an independent government department, operating under the superintendence of the Attorney General. Its purpose is to protect society by investigating and, if appropriate, prosecuting those who commit serious or complex fraud, bribery and corruption and pursuing them and others for the proceeds of their crime. Its, Director is David Green CB QC.

A complete list of all the organisations around the world supporting the annual Cambridge Symposium is to be found on page 2 of this programme
